Law Report, July 7

SUMMARY

The Lord Chief Justice and a special jury began the hearing of an action in which Miss Mollie Frances Hunt, who had been expelled from the school called Upper Chine, at Shanklin, Isle of Wight, in circumstances which gave rise to the present proceedings, claims damages from the headmistress, Miss Kathleen M. Damon, for alleged libel and breach of duty as a schoolmistress. Miss Damon denies the breach of duty. As to the alleged libel, she says that, without the defamatory meaning attributed by Miss Hunt to the words complained of, those words were true in substance and in fact, and she also pleads privilege. (HUNT v. DAMON.)

HIGH COURT OF JUSTICE
KING'S BENCH DIVISION
LIBEL ACTION BY SCHOOLGIRL AGAINST MISTRESS
HUNT v. DAMON

(Before the LORD CHIEF JUSTICE and a Special Jury)

The hearing was begun of an action in which Miss Mollie Frances Hunt, of Harringworth, Elm-grove, Guernsey, claims from Miss Kathleen M. Damon, a schoolmistress, of Upper Chine, Shanklin, Isle of Wight, damages for alleged libel and breach of duty as a schoolmistress.

Miss Damon, in defence, denies the breach of duty. With regard to the alleged libel, she says that, without the defamatory meaning attributed by Miss Hunt to the words complained of, those words were true in substance and in fact, and she also pleads privilege.

Mr. Singleton, K.C., and Mr. Tristram Beresford appeared for the plaintiff; Mr. Birkett, K.C., and Mr. N. Fox-Andrews for the defendant.

Mr. SINGLETON, in opening the case, said that Miss Hunt was now 19 years old. Miss Damon was the headmistress of a girls' school called Upper Chine, Shanklin, Isle of Wight.

Miss Hunt went to Miss Damon's school in 1924, and she remained a pupil there until early in May, 1929, when she was expelled in circumstances which had given rise to the present proceedings. Expulsion very often reacted throughout the life of a boy or a girl. There was no reasonable justification for the expulsion of Miss Hunt.

In 1927, when Miss Hunt had an operation, Miss Damon was very kind to her, but, except at that time, they did not get on too well together. In September, 1928, a new matron, Miss Widdowson, arrived at the school. Miss Widdowson, who was known in the school as "Sister," was aged about 40, and she apparently showed a liking for Miss Hunt. From time to time she discussed Miss Damon with the girl. The friendship between them developed, but Miss Damon objected to it, and pointed out to Miss Hunt that she thought it best that there should not be a friendship between a member of the staff and a pupil. Next term the friendship lessened.

During the Easter holidays in 1929 it was decided that Miss Hunt should leave the school at the end of the summer term. She wrote two letters to Miss Widdowson. One dealt with some gramophone records which she (Miss Hunt) had lent Miss Widdowson; in the other she said that she was leaving.

The first letter concluded:—

Don't write if you feel that it would be unfair to Miss Damon. But I would love a letter as I am rather down in the dumps at the moment.

In reply Miss Widdowson sent Miss Hunt a picture post-card.

On April 21 Miss Hunt wrote:—

Thanks so much for your post-card. . . . I simply had to write to tell you the joyful news that Mum has written to Miss Damon to say that I am leaving at the end of this next term. Thank the Lord, as I don't think I could have stood much more of it, judging by last term. . . .

I hope you don't mind my writing to you again, Sister, but I don't think anything can matter much now that I am leaving. . . . Tons of love.

AN INTERVIEW

On May 3 Miss Hunt returned to school. Next day, to her surprise, she was called to the headmistress's study and Miss Damon told her that she had seen her letters to Miss Widdowson.

"She has shown both of them to me," Miss Damon said, "because she considered that they were too disloyal to receive. Sister has never encouraged this friendship. I do not want you here. You are only here on sufferance."

Miss Damon also spoke of slackness in work. Miss Hunt said that she would try to do better and promised that she would not again write to Miss Widdowson. Miss Damon then said that she should have a fresh start. On the same, or the following, night Miss Hunt told some of the girls in the dormitory, including a new girl, about the interview.

"Most of us," said counsel, "must be familiar with the kind of conversation which would take place at a school after one of the pupils had had an interview with the headmistress. I daresay that the headmistress is not always spoken of with the highest respect."

In some form or other the conversation, or part of it, was repeated to the headmistress. On May 7 Miss Damon sent for Miss Hunt and said to her: "I hear that you have been speaking about me in a very disgraceful manner and ridiculing the interview we had." The expression, "old cat," had been used in the dormitory and that might, perhaps, be described as "disgraceful." Miss Hunt denied ridiculing the interview.

Miss Damon, however, said: "In view of this and of your extreme disloyalty, I cannot keep you here, and you are going home at once." Miss Hunt asked whether she might get her things, but Miss Damon said: "No. They will be sent on to you."

Miss Hunt was sent away from the school at a moment's notice in the charge of a mistress. She was dressed in her gymnasium clothes and had merely her night attire with her. On the train she was not allowed to speak to a friend. At Waterloo Station Miss Jackson, the mistress, handed her over to her aunt.

On May 6 Miss Damon had sent to Mrs. Carre, Miss Hunt's mother, a telegram in which she said:—"I regret I must ask you to remove Mollie from here at once."

In a letter sent on the same day, Miss Damon said that Mollie had written some very disloyal letters, but that she had offered the girl a fresh start. The letter continued:—

I now hear that Mollie has been talking to the other girls on the subject [of her conduct at school] and speaking in a most disloyal way in the presence of a new girl. She told the new girl that I was unjust, &c., and ridiculed the interview that I had had with her, and the other girls in the dormitory were so disgusted that they felt bound to bring the matter to my notice.

I have no alternative, therefore, than to tell you that I wish Mollie to leave this school immediately.

I hope she will not make any attempt to come back to Upper Chine again, and I forbid my other pupils to write to her or have any further dealings with her.

In reply, Mrs. Carre described Miss Damon's action as unnecessarily cruel, in view of the fact that she (Mrs. Carre) was ill, and she said that she had been advised that "Mollie's conduct, reprehensible though it be, does not justify such drastic treatment as her dismissal from school."

On May 9, Miss Damon, whose complaints appeared to be increasing, wrote a letter to Mrs. Carre, in which she said:—

I am now hearing on every side how disloyal she has been. It would be ridiculous for you to suppose that I sent her away for her last misdemeanour alone. It was the culminating point of repeated disobedience and she had broken her promise to ME OVER AND OVER AGAIN. The fact that she made fun of the promise she had just made and tried to unsettle a new girl by disloyal talk showed me that she had not the smallest intention of behaving herself this term. Her criticisms of my personality have no bearing on the case, and you have entirely misread my letter if you imagine that is so.

No one is more sorry than I that it was necessary to send Mollie away. I can only hope that she may even now from this episode learn a salutary lesson on the sacredness of keeping a promise and of the elementary principles of loyalty.

Miss Hunt and her relatives had wanted an apology from Miss Damon so that the girl's position might be made clear, but it had been refused. So the present action was begun.

MISS HUNT'S EVIDENCE

Giving evidence, Miss Hunt said that, on one occasion, after Miss Widdowson had attended to her for a hurt ankle, she (Miss Widdowson) sent her a note beginning "Darling Mollie." She did not answer the letter. When she saw Miss Widdowson again, the latter asked her why she had not replied. She (the witness) said that she had not seen any need to do so.

Miss Widdowson once said that she thought that Miss Damon "had a down" on her (Miss Hunt) and that she would do better at another school.

Describing the scene in the dormitory, Miss Hunt said that she told the other girls that Miss Damon had been shown the letters which she (Miss Hunt) had written to Miss Widdowson and that Miss Damon had asked her to promise to have nothing further to do with Miss Widdowson. She also said that, as Miss Widdowson had shown the letters to Miss Damon, she (Miss Hunt) had no wish to have anything more to do with her.

Mr. SINGLETON.—You had given a promise with regard to Miss Widdowson. Did you intend to keep it?—Yes.

Did you ridicule Miss Damon?—No.

What did you say?—I said that I thought she was unjust. I told the new girl not to pay any attention to what I said because Miss Damon was always extremely nice to new girls.

Did you call anyone any names?—I called Miss Damon an "old cat."

Miss Hunt denied that she had been guilty of a "continual course of disobedient and defiant conduct, subversive of the discipline of the school." In the Christmas term of 1928 she had no "disobedience" marks against her.

Cross-examined, Miss Hunt said that she regarded it as important to keep a promise if it were a reasonable one.

Mr. BIRKETT.—If the promise is, in your view, not a reasonable one, you would give it and break it?—Yes.

On that course nobody could ever trust you?—Yes.

A LETTER TO A PUPIL

Miss Hunt said that she felt her position in the witness-box. She agreed that, after her expulsion, she wrote a letter to a pupil at the school, Miss Alice Gibbons, in which she said:—

My dear old Alice.—What ho! I have been expelled !!!!!!!!!!!!!!!! I do not suppose I ought to write to you as Miss Damon said I was not to correspond with any one at the school so don't, for the love of the Lord, say that you have heard from me. The one point I will tell you is that Sister is at the bottom of all this and, anyhow, I do not deserve to be expelled. Mum is going to law about it. I have got to go up to London on Monday morning to see the lawyer, but I don't mind as he is an awfully nice man and very nice-looking and he said Miss Damon had no right to expel me on the grounds that she has done. . . . What fun if I have to stand up in a witness-box against Miss Damon! One of the reasons that she gave was that I was disloyal to her. All my family are furious with her and I am having a ripping time down here with theatres, &c. !!!

By the bye, thanks most awfully for your letter and the pictures of Ronald Colman. They are topping.

Mr. BIRKETT.—When you said that you felt your position in the witness-box, you did not know that that letter was going to be read?—No.

Were you not there, within a week of your expulsion, glorying in the fact?—Yes.

You thought it would be nice if you could go into the witness-box and say things against Miss Damon?—Yes.

Miss Hunt agreed that Miss Damon had 130 girls under her care and was proud of her school and its traditions. She also agreed that Miss Damon once spoke to her about her friendship for a lady parlourmaid who was employed at the school. Miss Damon complained that, instead of being in the schoolroom, she was in the pantry and said that that sort of thing led to suggestions of favouritism.

Miss Hunt admitted that she sent notes to Miss Widdowson. Miss Widdowson never wrote and told her: "Don't be stupid. Pull yourself together." In the middle of the Michaelmas term of 1928 she promised Miss Damon not to pursue "Sister" any more.

When she had influenza during the next term she did not have trouble with the nurse who looked after her because she would not do what she was told. Immediately on her return to school-work she did not go out in the snow with only slippers on.

On the occasion of the performance of a Passion Play on the evening of Good Friday, 1929, she was told to go out of the room.

Mr. BIRKETT.—Why?—Because I laughed before the play had started.

Was the play practically a religious service?—Yes.

Later, Mr. BIRKETT asked:—"Did you resent discipline?"

Miss Hunt.—Not always. I did sometimes.

And you took your own course, breaking the rules?—Yes.

Don't you think the headmistress in those circumstances was entitled to complain of you?—Yes, but I don't think I broke more rules than a lot of other people did.

Perhaps you will admit that you were disloyal?—No, I do not think I was.

When she was talking to the other girls in the dormitory, Miss Hunt went on, she called Miss Damon not only an "old cat" but also by her nickname of "Demon." (Laughter.)

Mr. SINGLETON (re-examining).—How did your friendship with Miss Widdowson begin?—She asked me to sit next to her at breakfast.

Mrs. Elaine Carre, Miss Hunt's mother, said that, for some time before her operation and after it, Miss Hunt was unable to do much work owing to reasons of health. Miss Damon recognized the condition of the girl's health to a certain extent, but not sufficiently. Before Miss Hunt's expulsion she (the witness) had no reason to believe that her daughter was disobedient or defiant at school. The reports which she received of her were quite all right.

Mr. SINGLETON.—Was there ever any suggestion against her character or that she was a bad influence in the school?—Never. It came as an absolutely unexpected blow.

Do you know of any reason why your daughter should be regarded as unfit to talk or write to other girls?—Certainly not.

In cross-examination Mrs. Carre denied that Miss Hunt was ever sulky or sullen.

Mr. BIRKETT.—Does she bottle up her feelings for a day or two and then let them go?—No.

You have heard what she has said to-day about her breaking a promise if she thought it unreasonable to have made it?—You may have wrung that out of her, but I have never known her break a promise.

"There are few girls of 19 who obey," added Mrs. Carre, "but Mollie does."

The hearing was adjourned.

LORD GLENARTHUR'S AFFAIRS

The first meeting of creditors was held yesterday at Bankruptcy-buildings under a receiving order made against James Cecil, Lord Glenarthur of Carlung, described as of 56, Pont-street, S.W.

Mr. E. PARKE, Official Receiver, reported that the debtor estimated his liabilities at £60,000 and returned as assets a book debt of £1,500, regarded as bad, and a life policy held by his bankers (who might have a lien on it) for safe custody. The household furniture was sold in 1928 for some £11,000 or £12,000, being subject to a mortgage of £7,000. The debtor had stated that at the date of his marriage in 1907 he was appointed director of a family company in Glasgow, in which he was given 20,000 £1 shares. He had also received an allowance of £1,200 a year from his father. During the War he served in the Ayrshire Yeomanry, and afterwards he lived in Paris for 12 months, his allowance being increased to some £1,800 or £2,000 a year, and there he dealt in motor-cars as a hobby, but unprofitably.

In the autumn of 1921 he returned to his directorate, but retired in January of last year, when he was granted an allowance of £2,000. He had since been without occupation, except to act as a director, without remuneration, of the Faradex Seraphone Company, Limited, in which he invested £3,000. That company, however, was in liquidation. His father, who was created baron in 1918, died in 1928, and he (the debtor) then succeeded to the title. He attributed his insolvency to having lived beyond his income; to heavy interest on borrowed money; to his loss over the Faradex Seraphone Company; and to ill-health.

Mr. F. S. Salaman, C.A., of 1 and 2, Bucklersbury, E.C., was elected trustee to wind up the estate under an order of adjudication in bankruptcy.

THE LATE MR. J. SHARPE

Sympathetic reference to the death of Mr. Joseph Sharpe (magistrate at the Thames Police Court) was made by Mr. Graham Campbell at Bow-street Police Court yesterday. "He passed away," Mr. GRAHAM CAMPBELL said, "on the very day that he was to have resigned his position as magistrate. His one aim was to do justice, and he won the affection of a large number of the poorer inhabitants of the East End. Our sympathy goes out to his sister and his other relatives in the heavy loss they have sustained."

At the Thames Police Court, Mr. J. HARRIS, the sitting magistrate, said that Mr. Sharpe would be greatly missed by many friends. He was very proud indeed of his position as Metropolitan police magistrate, and he was extremely loth to relinquish that position; so much so that he remained there doing his work in circumstances of great disability and pain.

HIGH COURT OF JUSTICE
PROBATE, DIVORCE, AND ADMIRALTY DIVISION
MARRIAGE ABROAD WITHIN PROHIBITED DEGREES INVALID

(Before the PRESIDENT)

These cross petitions for restitution of conjugal rights and nullity of marriage raised the question whether the marriage in India, by special dispensation of the Roman Catholic Church, of a Roman Catholic to an aunt of the half-blood, also a Roman Catholic, was a valid marriage according to the law of India, the law of the domicile at the time of the ceremony. The PRESIDENT (Lord Merrivale) held that the marriage was null and void.

By her petition, dated April 18, 1928, Mrs. Delphine Monica Peal, née Peal, of St. John's-road, Harrow, prayed for a decree of restitution of conjugal rights on the ground that her husband, Captain Daryl Robert George Peal, of the Indian Army, at present living at Marish Court, Langley, Buckinghamshire, had withdrawn from cohabitation without just cause. The marriage took place on May 23, 1921, at the Roman Catholic Church of St. Francis, Naini Tal, India, and there is one child, a daughter.

By his answer the respondent said that the ceremony of marriage was invalid because the petitioner was the daughter of the respondent's paternal grandfather, and that they were, therefore, within the prohibited degrees of consanguinity. On that ground Captain Peal filed a separate petition for a decree of nullity of marriage.

Mrs. Peal, by her answer, said that both parties to the marriage were Roman Catholics, domiciled in India; that a special dispensation was granted by the Roman Catholic Church for the marriage to be solemnized; and that the marriage was a valid marriage duly solemnized according to the rites of the Roman Catholic Church and the law of India.

Serjeant Sullivan, K.C., and Mr. E. Holroyd Pearse appeared for Mrs. Peal; Mr. Cotes-Preedy, K.C., and Mr. Eric O'Donnell for Mrs Peal.

JUDGMENT

The PRESIDENT, in giving judgment, said that it was admitted that the petitioner (Mrs. Peal) was the daughter of the respondent's paternal grandfather, and it had to be determined whether that relationship was an irremovable bar, as the parties were within the prohibited degrees under English marriage law.

For the respondent two main contentions were made:—(1) That his progenitors and he possessed an English domicile at all material times; (2) that if their or his domicile should be held to be Anglo-Indian, the English marriage law must still apply. For the petitioner it was contended that the domicile was Anglo-Indian; that the parties were Anglo-Indian Roman Catholics; and that by the personal law appertaining to them they could lawfully contract marriage in India, if due ecclesiastical sanction was obtained, as it actually was.

He (his Lordship) held that the respondent acquired an English domicile in 1922, whatever his domicle was before that date.

Assuming, he continued, that at the time of the ceremony the parties were domiciled within the domains of the King-Emperor in India, the question was what law determined their capacity to contract matrimony? The eighteenth-century charters dealing with the matter were reviewed in Lopez v. Lopez [1886]; Indian L.R., 12, Col., 706). From 1851 there was a series of Indian Acts relating to the marriage and divorce of Christians in India. The Indian Christian Marriage Act, 1872, section 17, provided:—

Nothing in this Act shall be deemed to validate any marriage which the personal law applicable to either of the parties forbids him to enter into.

The absence of any specification of the prohibited degrees resulted from the fact that the Indian Legislature had by successive enactments provided a comprehensive code of law which governed the celebration of marriage not only for British Christians, whose union had been provided for by the older laws, but for native and foreign Christians in India; that was, for various classes of persons governed by different systems and codes of personal law.

What was really in question was whether British subjects in India, who happened to be Roman Catholics, belonged as regarded capacity to marry in a distinct and legally different class from their British fellow subjects. If they did, it would seem that of their own volition, contrary to the general law, by marriage within the prohibited degrees, they might create relationships and confer successional rights and interests in prejudice of the statutory rights and interests of their kin. Rights of inheritance and interests under the Statutes of Distribution could thus be conferred. There was no trace in the statutes of any such intention on the part of the Indian Legislature.

He therefore decreed that the ceremony of marriage in 1921 was null and void, but the decree nisi would not be made absolute until the petitioner had the opportunity of obtaining a decision of the Court as to her own material interests and as to the care and upbringing of the child.

DISTURBANCE AT ALBERT HALL
WYCLIFF PREACHER BOUND OVER

At the Westminster Police Court yesterday JOHN DUFFY, 28, of the Kensit Memorial College, Finchley, was charged with insulting behaviour outside the Royal Albert Hall on Saturday afternoon.

A police-constable stated that a meeting was being held at the hall in connexion with the Anglo-Catholic Congress. A procession of children was about to enter, and there was a crowd. The defendant and several other men were there, and there were shouts of "Down with the priests!" The children were hustled, and a fight began between the defendant and another man. This disturbed the procession and frightened some of the children. The witness seized the defendant and told him to behave in a proper manner. He made no answer to that, but attempted to get back into the crowd. The witness again seized him, and there was a struggle until another constable came to his assistance. When told he would be arrested he said, "Well, we have to put up with it at our meetings."

Mr. Beney (defending) suggested that the defendant never used such an expression as "Down with the priests!" at all.

The constable.—I heard it several times, and also from his colleagues, during the quarter of an hour before his arrest.

Another constable said he also heard the defendant and others shout "Down with the priests!" The defendant pushed about among the children in the procession.

The defendant, giving evidence, said he had been one of the Wycliff preachers for four years. They carried on their campaign wherever they felt Catholic influence was strong. He had been at the Albert Hall during the week, distributing pamphlets, singing, and reciting Gospel texts. It was not true that he used the expression "Down with the priests!" One man back-heeled him, and he nearly lost his balance.

Several witnesses were called supporting the defendant's version, and counsel urged that the charge had not been made out.

Mr. BOYD (the magistrate) said that both religious parties were entitled to their views and to hold meetings without being disturbed. The defendant no doubt went to the hall for the purpose of demonstrating against the Anglo-Catholics, and was carried away by his feelings and made observations which were wrong and provocative. He would be bound over in £3 for six months' good behaviour.

THE DERATING APPEALS

The Court of Appeal—Lord Justice Scrutton, Lord Justice Greer, and Lord Justice Slesser—will deliver reserved judgments on Friday, July 11, in 17 cases which raise the question whether the premises of respective parties are entitled to be included as "industrial hereditaments" under the Rating and Valuation (Apportionment) Act, 1928, and, therefore, entitled to the relief given by that Act.

NEW PRESIDENT OF LAW SOCIETY

At the annual general meeting of the Law Society, held at the Law Society's Hall, Chancery-lane, last Friday, Sir John Roger Burrow Gregory, of London, was elected president, and Mr. Philip Hubert Martineau, of London, elected vice-president of the society for the ensuing year.

Sentence of four years' penal servitude was passed at the Central Criminal Court on Friday on Francis John Marritt, 40, acrobat, found Guilty of possessing a pistol and ammunition with intent to endanger life.

SOLICITORS' FRAUDS
SIR J. WITHERS TO BRING IN A BILL

Sir J. J. Withers, M.P. for Cambridge University, sends us the following copy of a letter he sent yesterday to the President of the Law Society:—

Howard House, 4, Arundel-street,
Strand, London, W.C.2.

DEFAULTING SOLICITORS

My dear President,—Twenty years ago, after a series of disgraceful defalcations by solicitors, some members of the Law Society, with whom I was associated, pressed for action to be taken by the society to prevent a recurrence of these serious scandals (inter alia) by regulations compelling solicitors to keep their clients' moneys in separate banking accounts. After a motion, defeated at a general meeting in the hall, had been carried on a poll of the members of the society, a committee was appointed, but nothing effective resulted, and interest in the matter gradually evaporated.

Recently, after another disgraceful series of frauds, the Law Society was forced to take action by the introduction of a Bill in the House of Commons and a flood of questions addressed to the Government on the subject. On May 9, 1930, the council, unanimously, if I remember rightly, passed the following resolution:—

"This council are of opinion, with a view of promoting the discipline of the profession and the keeping of special accounts, steps should be taken to provide for the compulsory membership of the society, and that with that object, at the next meeting of the society instructions should be requested to promote a Bill for that purpose, and for the discipline of the profession and the keeping of special accounts."

I particularly draw your attention to the concluding words. A Bill was accordingly drafted, providing for compulsory membership of the society and the formation of a small charitable fund and empowering the society to make rules, with the concurrence of the Master of the Rolls, for the professional conduct and discipline of solicitors. It further provided that the society, with the like concurrence, should make rules (a) as to the opening and keeping of banking accounts into which a solicitor should pay the moneys of his clients, and as to the conditions under which such accounts should be operated; and (b) as to the keeping by a solicitor of accounts containing such particulars and information as to moneys received or paid for, or on account of, clients as may be prescribed by such rules.

I was prepared to support this Bill as the first constructive proposal which had been put forward, but, as you know, I expressed my opinion that the small charitable fund was of little value, and the direction to the Law Society to make rules as set out in Clauses (a) and (b) above was illusory, because I did not think it would be possible to get efficient rules passed by the society. My reason for this last-mentioned opinion was that the members of the profession, eager as they no doubt are to do the best, are so habitually critical of every proposal that they cannot collectively initiate any constructive policy.

Unfortunately my opinion was correct, for, although the draft Bill was approved by the provincial law societies, at the general meeting of the society held on July 4, 1930, the only two clauses of merit—namely, those set out as (a) and (b) above, were deleted with the concurrence of the authorities, and the Bill was, therefore, in my judgment, rendered useless.

In these circumstances, I have reluctantly come to the conclusion that the Law Society itself is unable to take the necessary steps to prevent a recurrence of the grievous defalcations of solicitors. This time matters will not be left as they are, nor allowed to be forgotten as before, and accordingly, as it is better that an efficient remedy should be proposed from within the profession than from without, I shall myself, as an individual, introduce a Bill into Parliament providing for the compulsory keeping of separate banking accounts for clients' moneys and annual audits.

As this action of mine is independent of the Council of the Law Society and may not be approved by them, I hereby tender you my resignation of membership of the council, with grateful thanks for the great kindness and consideration I have always received from all my colleagues and the staff of the society.

I am, my dear President, yours truly,
JOHN J. WITHERS.

ROAD REPAIRS IN LONDON
TRANSPORT MINISTER'S LIST

Below is a list issued by the Minister of Transport of works of road maintenance and improvement in London to be begun during the fortnight ending July 19. THE SMALLPOX OUTBREAK

The General Purposes Committee of the Hackney Borough Council report that three officials of the council have worked 2,137 hours' overtime since January discharging extra duties consequent upon the outbreak of smallpox in London. If the extra work were paid for at the rate paid to temporary clerks, the cost would be £265. "There is no doubt," the report states, "that the epidemic in Hackney would have been considerably worse but for their excellent work under the direction of the Medical Officer of Health." Payments for the extra services are recommended.

Counsel stated that that amount was in excess of the requirements of the company, which had been very successful in selling chewing gum in this country.

THE NOTTINGHAM MEETING

SCOTTISH FUSILIER WINS

(FROM OUR RACING CORRESPONDENT)

The Nottingham July Meeting was begun yesterday in very fine weather. The going was hard, and fields, in consequence, were small. There was a good attendance of visitors.

The afternoon's programme was begun with the Holme Pierrepont Selling Plate, for which Lady Gay, who had run well last week in the race won by San Marino at Newmarket, was made favourite in an open market. She was always well placed and, taking the lead below the Distance, held off a challenge from Son John to win by three-quarters of a length, with Lightarmed half a length away third. After passing the winning-post Swanee River collapsed and fell. She died within a few minutes. Her rider, Stephenson, was not injured by the fall. There was a most exciting finish to the Arnold Selling Plate, Wearing a Crown beating Bright Steel by a short head, with Pheidon the same distance behind the second. Wearing a Crown was best away at the start, followed by Pheidon and Bright Steel, and at half-way it was obvious that one of them would win. Wearing a Crown just managed to hold on to his initial advantage.

Watch Light, who is by Warden of the Marches, had not run since winning from a big field at Thirsk early in May, but was made a short-priced favourite for the Savile Plate for two-year-olds. Neither she nor anything else in the race had any chance against Wenceslas in the last furlong, however, Mr. Ainsworth's gelding drawing away from Watch Light to win very easily by three lengths. Douceuse was third, a head behind the second. Kings Oven ran disappointingly in the Harrington Handicap, and eventually finished last. He is obviously not so good as he was last year. Scottish Fusilier took up the running from Break of Day soon after the start, and was never afterwards headed, winning by a length from Golden Lyre, who beat Ravenscar by two lengths for second place. Golden Lyre, who lost ground at the start, finished fast and may have been rather unlucky to be beaten.

Bill Sykes, who had won his three previous races, was beaten some way from the finish in the Bramcote Plate, and eventually was unplaced behind Galette, who challenged Rinmaher inside the Distance and went on to win a good race by half a length, with White May only a neck away third. Spinner's Cottage was made an odds-on favourite for the Elvaston Stakes, with which the afternoon's programme was concluded, and, taking the lead from Four Up half-way up the Straight, drew away to win easily by three lengths from Lycidas, who beat Four Up by a neck for second place.

NOTTINGHAM PROSPECTS

2.30.—NETHERFIELD SELLING PLATE (5f.).—Several of the possible starters here have shown promising form in races of a similar nature. Fullolite, after winning at Redcar, failed at Wolverhampton, and on that form has not so good a chance here as Cold Blast, who comes from a stable in form. Gladly won easily at Manchester and ran quite well at Newmarket last week in the race won by that good plater Farimage. She was badly away at Newmarket or might well have been second. Slave Trade filly has a chance on Gatwick form, as has Whinnie Brae filly on Hurst Park form, although it is to be noted that she has since failed at Sandown Park. I do not find it easy to bring these two-year-olds together. The best of them may be GLADLY.

3.0.—RATCLIFFE SELLING PLATE (1½m.).—If Compound Fracture is started he would, I think, win, for he won a similar event at Hurst Park and then ran well in much better company at Newcastle. The best of the others may be Night Rider, who has been running fairly well in better class races, and Bucks Maiden, who was placed in her last two races, and who, on the handicap, still has the beating of Happy Dust. As COMPOUND FRACTURE is down to run and will be ridden by Jelliss he is my selection.

3.30.—BOLSOVER HANDICAP (6f.).—I had thought that Gossamer was rather nicely handicapped here and might win, but he has been scratched. BELLIGERENT has been backed several times this season, but never seems to run as well as expected. In this small field he may do better and win.

4.0.—DUKERIES FOAL PLATE (1m.).—This distance is surely too far for Cedarwood, and, in spite of his weight the race looks to me to be a good thing for BOTANY BAY, who won his last race at Newmarket after apparently being out of the contest.

4.30.—CLUMBER MAIDEN PLATE (5f.).—THE PARSON II. was a pronounced favourite when finishing third at Doncaster, and should be given another chance here, where the opposition does not appear so formidable.

BIBURY CLUB PROSPECTS

2.0.—DUNBRIDGE WELTER PLATE (1½m.).—Kilkenny is trained by Cottrill, whose experienced son will ride Norland, who must have a good chance of success here. The Torch, Maugre, and High Minded are other runners who should be concerned with the finish. NORLAND seems to me to have the best chance.

2.40.—OPEN SELLING PLATE (1m.).—SPRINT has been running in better-class races than this and was a good favourite to win a handicap at the spring meeting at Epsom. He will be ridden by Ray and may win. Silver Sword seems to have the best chance of the others.

3.10.—AMATEURS' CUP (1m. 6f.).—CHERRY KING is not too reliable, but he is a useful horse in such a race as this, and as he will be ridden by Mr. Cottrill he seems the best selection.

3.40.—NORMAN COURT STAKES (1m. 6f.).—MOYRESQUE seems, when at his best, to be a very useful horse, and, in spite of his weight, he should win this race, in which the best of the others seems to be Heraclida.

4.10.—WILTON HANDICAP (5f.).—This should be the best race of the day. Canfield has missed several races recently apparently to be started here. He is fairly handicapped, but no more than that. Indeed, this is a very difficult handicap to fault. Teacup was very useful last year, but has run only once this season, and then without success, at Sandown Park. Early Closing is rather nicely handicapped, but has no better chance on form than several others in the race. The Dominie ran well at Newmarket last week. Mellin and Tutbury are exactly where one would expect to find them in the handicap, while Marble never wins, although apparently is often expected to do so. Phonemeter has about the same chance as several others on the handicap. I find it very difficult to make a selection, and so shall take one of the top weights, CANFIELD, as the possible winner.

4.40.—SALISBURY MAIDEN PLATE (5f.).—This is just the sort of race that is often won by a newcomer. With that safeguarding clause I suggest that the winner on known form may be CRUSTY, who showed promise at the last meeting here in the race won by Cameronian.

NEWMARKET PROSPECTS

(FROM OUR NEWMARKET CORRESPONDENT)

Owing to the hard state of the ground the fields at the final stage of the Nottingham Meeting to-day may be small.

Such races as the Netherfield Selling Plate usually attract good size fields, and Newmarket will supply eight or nine runners, although Cold Blast may not be among them. SLAVE TRADE FILLY has been second in her two attempts, and her latest public form is useful. She has done very well in home gallops lately, and she may prove the winner.

The Ratcliffe Selling Plate—Cabman, Bucks Maiden, Compound Fracture, and Loveliness are likely to run. BUCKS MAIDEN, so far, has not won a race this season, although she has only just failed on several occasions. She seems to do well on hard work, and she went in her gallop on Saturday as well as ever. Her chance of winning this race is a good one.

The Bolsover Handicap Plate has an open appearance. Knight of the Vale will take his chance. BELLIGERENT failed to run up to his true form at Newbury, and I am inclined to ignore it as a guide. In his gallop on Saturday he went very well and if he shows the same form in the race I do not know one that will beat him.

Most of the entries in the Dukeries Foal Plate are under orders to run. Botany Bay is a very useful animal, and, in spite of his weight, he will require a lot of beating, but in CEDARWOOD he may find one too good for him. The Clarehaven Lodge horse has been showing very good form in home gallops. If he shows his best I feel confident he will be returned the winner.

Several of our entries in the Clumber Plate may not be sent to run. As Boy Bachelor has been scratched I shall select THE PARSON II.

In the Newark Plate I look to CASTELLANE to prove better than Snoops, although the latter is fancied.

SALISBURY

Our runners at the Bibury Club Meeting at Salisbury will be few, but there may be a winner among them.

In the Amateurs' Cup SILVER LAKE should run well.

M.C.C. CHALLENGE PRIZES

W. D. Macpherson beat R. H. Hill in the final of the All-Comers' Competition for the M.C.C. challenge tennis prizes at Lord's yesterday by three sets to one (6—5, 5—6, 6—2, 6—3). Hill was handicapped by having a strained wrist and an injured thumb. Hill gave an underhand twist service almost all through the match, being afraid, apparently, to trust his wrist for the American service, and Macpherson found this underhand service much to his liking. Macpherson played very well indeed in every department of the game.

Hill led 1—0, 2—1, and 4—3 in the first set, but there was never more than a game between the players. Macpherson drew level again at 4—4, and the score was 30—30 in the ninth game. Hill laid down chase three and four and chase worse than two, and crossed over to defend them. Macpherson won the first chase with a beautiful stroke, but would have lost the second if Hill had let the return go. As it was Hill snapped at the ball, being in two minds, hit it in the net, and so lost a very important game. He won the next game to 30, however, being very lucky to make chase better than half a yard off the dedans penthouse. Macpherson was 40—15 in the final game. Hill crossed over to defend chase one and two successfully, but he lost the next rest, which meant the set, by hitting a slow boasted force for the dedans from Macpherson into the net.

Macpherson led 2—0, 4—1, and 5—3 in the second set. Hill won a love game, serving one nick and playing one beautiful stroke to the foot of the tambour. Another love game, perfectly played, made Hill 5—5. He went on to 40—0 in the final game, making a sequence of 11 points in all, in which was one perfect grille. Macpherson won the next rest, when Hill was attacking chase the last gallery, with a stroke to the grille, but Hill won the game and the set with a boasted force to the dedans.

Macpherson and Hill won one game each in the third set to 15 and then Macpherson with two 30 games went to 3—1. Hill saved the fifth game with a wonderful back-hand stop off the wood of the racket when the ball was almost in the dedans and he eventually won that game. Macpherson, however, played brilliant tennis to win the next three games to 30, after deuce, and to 30. Macpherson led 3—0 in the fourth set and later 5—1. Hill made one more effort and took the seventh and eighth games. Macpherson, however, played beautifully in the ninth game, in which he found the grille once, and made a perfect stroke to crush the ball under the grille, won it to love and with it the match, which had lasted over two hours and a quarter.

W. D. Macpherson (challenger) plays Lord Aberdare (holder) for the Silver prize on Saturday. The match will be begun at 1 o'clock p.m.

RUGBY FOOTBALL

CHRISTCHURCH, July 7.—As W. H. Sobey and T. P. Murray are both injured, Mr. James Baxter, manager of the British Rugby Touring Team, has telegraphed for A. T. Young, and hopes Young will be able to reach Wellington from India in time for the fourth test match on August 9. R. S. Spong, the stand-off half-back, will be tried at scrummage half-back on Wednesday against a Maori XV.

Murray, who dislocated his shoulder in the second test match on Saturday and was taken to hospital, has been discharged, but he is still on the casualty list. J. S. R. Reeve and J. Hodgson are almost fit again, and R. Jennings is improving. Sobey, however, is not yet able to attempt any training.—Reuter.

LAWN TENNIS

DOUBLES CHAMPIONSHIP

W. Allison and J. Van Ryn, the holders, retained the Doubles Championship at the All-England Courts at Wimbledon yesterday afternoon, beating their rivals, the American champion pair, G. M. Lott and J. H. Doeg, rather easily in three sets by 6—3, 6—3, 6—2. The result was rather unexpected and disappointing in view of the long struggle the two pairs had made at Queen's Club just over two weeks ago. It was thought that there might be a battle between them to decide which pair was to represent the United States in the Davis Cup matches, but all were playing below their form, except Van Ryn, who played quite as brilliantly and spiritedly as he always does.

Doeg was the one who most of all failed to realize expectations. His service, which is generally so powerful as to be difficult for any one to return, was not up to his usual and he lost several of his service games. That took the sting out of the play of Doeg and Lott and Allison and Van Ryn had a much more easy victory than had been looked for.

An exhibition match was played afterwards in which H. W. Austin and J. S. Olliff beat B. Bell and G. S. Mangin, of the United States, by 4—6, 4—6, 6—2, 6—3, 6—2.

RESULT

FINAL ROUND

W. Allison and J. Van Ryn (U.S.A.) (holders) beat J. H. Doeg and G. M. Lott (U.S.A.) (6—3, 6—3, 6—2).

EXHIBITION DOUBLES MATCH

H. W. Austin and J. S. Olliff (Great Britain) beat B. Bell and G. S. Mangin (U.S.A.) (4—6, 4—6, 6—2, 6—3, 6—2).

THE DAVIS CUP

F. E. Dixon, chairman of the American Davis Cup Selection Committee, states that W. T. Tilden, who won the singles championship at Wimbledon on Saturday, will not represent the United States in their Davis Cup matches.

EAST OF ENGLAND CHAMPIONSHIPS

There is a large entry for the East of England Championships, which were begun at Felixstowe yesterday. One of the best matches of the day was that in the first round of the Singles in which D. C. GOLF

ENTEBBE G.C., UGANDA

The competition for the cup presented by the Prince of Wales to the Entebbe Golf Club took place on Whit Monday over the nine-hole course of the Entebbe Club, which lies above the shore of Victoria Nyanza. There were 50 competitors over 18 holes against Bogey on handicap. The conditions in the forenoon were unpleasant and scores were poor, but in the afternoon the sun shone, but not too brightly, and the course was in splendid order. The best card returned was by R. J. Radford Potts (12), who was two up. Four players, G. R. F. Martin (12), W. L. Mackintosh (12), A. Maclure (5), and R. A. Snoxall (12), tied for second place with four down. At the conclusion the cup was presented to Radford Potts by Mrs. P. W. Perryman, wife of Mr. P. W. Perryman, the Acting Governor of Uganda.

THE PARLIAMENTARY HANDICAP

Further progress was made with the Parliamentary Handicap yesterday, when Sir Assheton Pownall and J. Waddell gained victories. The former, who has a handicap of 15, beat Sir G. Gockerill (14) in a fifth-round match at Sandy Lodge by one hole, while Waddell (9), at Walton Heath, beat V. Gordon Lennox (7) in the fourth round by two and one.

POLO

THE EMPIRE CUP

England beat Australia in the first match of the tournament for the Prince of Wales's Empire Cup at Hurlingham yesterday by 10 goals to nine after a splendid and most exciting game. Until this year the tournament has resolved itself into a match between England and Ireland, no team from overseas being available to compete, and it is unfortunate that Ireland have had to scratch. In the circumstances England will meet India in the final tie on Saturday. The four brothers Ashton, representing Australia, put up a fine show yesterday, and England did exceedingly well to beat them.

Play was fast and evenly contested all through the match, and, after losing the lead in the second chukker, England did not regain it until the end of the fifth. Colonel P. K. Wise, at No. 3, was in very good form, meeting the ball cleverly and hitting particularly well, while Captain H. G. Morrison always looked dangerous in the vicinity of goal. Major J. F. Harrison was safe at back, and Captain J. de Pret, after starting rather shakily, put in a lot of hard work. The brothers, as usual, played hard all the time, with perhaps J. H. Ashton the most prominent of the four. Their combination and the way in which they cover each other is the strongest feature of their play, and there are few sides of their own handicap—they total 24 points—capable of beating them. England totalled 26 points, so that if the match had been played on handicap Australia would have won.

Colonel Wise saved well from J. H. Ashton in the first minute of the game, and when England took up the attack R. R. Ashton cleared a drive from Captain Morrison. England obtained what proved to be the only goal of the chukker just afterwards, Colonel Wise hitting through from a hit out by R. R. Ashton. Australia were not long in drawing level, G. G. Ashton turning through a free hit from 60 yards by J. H. Ashton, and they took the lead when P. S. K. Ashton scored from a big hit up by J. H. Ashton. They went further ahead when J. H. Ashton picked up a pass from R. R. Ashton and hit a neat goal, but from the throw-in Captain de Pret got away and scored a very good goal. All four of the brothers had a hand in their next goal, the final shot being made by J. H. Ashton. Play continued to be fast in the third chukker, and, after J. H. Ashton had increased Australia's lead, Captain Morrison scored with a long drive. G. G. Ashton missed by inches from a difficult angle, but P. S. K. Ashton hit through with a neat near side shot from the hit out. England took up the running again at once, and just before the bell Major Harrison got a goal back, the score at half-way being 6—4 in favour of Australia.

England drew level in the fourth chukker, first Captain Morrison and then Colonel Wise putting on a goal, but before the end of the period R. R. Ashton had put Australia in front again with a fine cross-shot. A run by Colonel Wise early in the fifth chukker ended in Captain de Pret scoring from the former's centre, and then Captain Morrison gave England the lead following a run by Captain de Pret. Off went the Australians from the throw-in, and P. S. K. Ashton equalized with a great goal. England had the better of the play for the rest of the chukker, and Major Harrison and Colonel Wise scored goals which gave them a lead of two when the last chukker was begun. The Australians were not finished by any means, and J. H. Ashton hit a splendid goal after a clever dribbling run, during which he was hampered by Captain Morrison. Play was hard and fast right up to the end, but neither side could score again, and one was left with the feeling that the Ashtons were, at any rate, unlucky to be beaten.

The teams were:—

ENGLAND.—Captain J. de Pret, No. 1; Captain H. G. Morrison, No. 2; Colonel P. K. Wise, No. 3; and Major J. F. Harrison, back.

AUSTRALIA.—P. S. K. Ashton, No. 1; G. G. Ashton, No. 2; J. H. Ashton, No. 3; and R. R. Ashton, back.

Another tie in the Tyro Challenge Cup tournament, for which there were 16 entries, was played afterwards, the Rebels (received 2½) beating the Grasshoppers by 8½ goals to four, after hitting the first two goals and leading at half-time by 5½ to 2. The tie between the Bluejackets and the Flamingoes fell through, the Bluejackets scratching.

YACHTING

THE CLYDE FORTNIGHT

Splendid sailing conditions again favoured the Royal Northern Yacht Club yesterday when they carried through the second and concluding portion of their regatta at Rothesay. The breeze varied from westerly to north-westerly and held all day, with the result that the big yachts covered their course at a fast pace, the little bit more of windward work they had to do accounting for the slightly longer time compared with Saturday.

With the departure of Shamrock V. for Gosport the starters in the class were reduced to Lulworth, White Heather and Cambria, and at different stages each of them looked the likely winner. White Heather was showing the way at the start, and kept in the first place till passed by Lulworth on the journey by the wind from Towmont End to the Home Mark to finish the first round. Cambria was then far astern, but a favouring slant off the Ascog shore took her into the second place in the sailing and well within her allowance on the corrected time. The second round saw Lulworth fighting hard to wipe out Cambria's allowance, and in the end she succeeded, and won by 57sec.

In a fresh north-westerly breeze the three big racers reached out of Rothesay Bay shortly before the start at 10.30 a.m., at Craigmore. White Heather had her jib-header over a full mainsail, but Lulworth sported her jackyarder and Cambria had a full mainsail. When they came near the line baby jib-topsails were broken out on White Heather and Cambria, but Lulworth had her No. 2 jib-topsail aloft.

The course was as on Saturday, with marks at Wemyss Bay, Kerry Lamont and Towmont End and on the two rounds, making 39 miles, Lulworth had to concede 1min. 18sec. to White Heather and 5min. 32sec. to Cambria. Reaching through the line on the port White Heather was well placed at the windward end with Cambria in the middle and Lulworth down to leeward. The breeze was blowing hard down Loch Striven and the racers romped along with lee sails awash in the case of the smaller boats, but after clearing Toward the wind was softer though still fairly good. Spinnakers were out to port for a spell near the mark and then all three gybed round the Wemyss Bay flagboat, White Heather 50 sec. in front of Cambria, which was, in turn, 20sec. ahead of Lulworth. As they passed Skelmorlie Bank Lulworth drew ahead of Cambria wide to weather, and they fetched the Kerry Lamont Mark without further change of order, though Lulworth was closing on White Heather. She changed to baby jibtopsail when under the Cumbrae Land. There was another gybe at the Down Firth Mark, and, as they rounded, White Heather at 11hrs. 54min. 31sec., Lulworth was 28sec. astern, and Cambria was nearly 2min. behind White Heather.

Spinnakers were on port for the run across the channel to Towmont End and at the mark Lulworth was only 6sec. behind White Heather and Cambria was 2min. 16sec. behind her. White Heather shot her head into the wind to get the sheets in and then stood up channel on the port tack on the last leg of the round. Lulworth took a wider turn at the mark, which put her well down to leeward of the leader but also gave her a big advantage when the wind, which was more westerly down channel, headed them off about half-way between the marks. Cambria was the first to put about, followed by White Heather and then Lulworth, which on the first board easily crossed White Heather and for the first time took the lead. With the heading of the breeze Cambria was thrown a long way astern but, working in on the Ascog shore while the others were tacking in mid-channel, she had a freeing slant off the Bute Land and at Bogany went through wide to weather of White Heather. The times for the round were:—

	H.	M.	S.		H.	M.	S.
Lulworth ..	12	59	16	White Heather ..	1	2	38
Cambria ..	1	1	11

Booms were squared away to starboard and spinnakers run up for the down wind scud in a fine breeze for the Wemyss Bay Mark. On this stretch Lulworth increased her lead and when they gybed at the flagboat she was 2¾min. in front of Cambria, while White Heather was fully a minute and a half astern. Lulworth kept steadily drawing out her lead and was nearly 4min. ahead of Cambria at Kerry Lamont and 5min. at Towmont End. On the last leg of the course, again a windward turn, Lulworth increased her lead and got home far enough ahead to finish first. Things might have been different if Cambria had been able to fetch the mark as she tried to do on the port tack, the extra weathering board putting her out. The official times for the finish were:—

	H.	M.	S.		H.	M.	S.
Lulworth (winner)	3	4	11	White Heather ..	3	12	29
Cambria (2nd) ..	3	10	40

In the handicap class Coila again won and saved her time from Rose by 2min. 40sec., while Rose beat Verve for the second place by 2min. 42sec. The finish was:—

	H.	M.	S.		H.	M.	S.
Coila (winner)	3	58	47	Verve ..	3	50	23
Rose (2nd) ..	3	54	20

Sulaire, Caryl, and Falcon had the flags in the 8-Metre Class.

Elvira saved her time from Thamar in the handicap ran for under 15-tonners, Thamar taking the second place, and in the first section of the 6-Metre Class Coral, Susette, Saga, and Finvola won the prizes, while Gairney beat Ingomar in the second section of the class. Sanda, Fidra, and Westra gained the prizes in the Scottish Islands Class. Out of eight starters only three finished in the Two Old-Rating Handicap, the first prize going to Morar II. Maia won in the Pleiads.

SHAMROCK V.

Shamrock V. is due at Portsmouth to-morrow, where she will be dry-docked and prepared for her voyage to America. This will be made under a jurymast's mizzen rig. She is to leave for America between July 16 and July 20.

FENCING

EPEE CHAMPIONSHIP

The two remaining pools in the first round of the Epée Championship were fought last evening in the gardens of Lincoln's Inn, when some curious results were arrived at.

From each pool six fencers qualified for two semi-final pools of 12 fencers each, which will be fought on Thursday next. Twelve of these places had already been won on Friday last, and the last 12 were filled from yesterday's results. Epée fencing is always a chancy business, and a short spell of bad judgment or ill-luck may ruin the prospects of the best swordsman, but few people can have imagined that L. V. Fildes, the holder of the title, would fail to survive his first-round pool this year. The unexpected happened, however. Fildes started well enough in Pool III., and at the end of the sixth round had won four assaults and lost two only, but the verdict went against him in each of his last three fights, and by a single place he failed to gain promotion. J. C. Ellis made a splendid start in this pool, winning five assaults in succession, but he lost three of the last four and could not do better than tie for first place with C. L. de Beaumont and J. Hodgson. De Beaumont's performance was the very antithesis of Fildes, for he lost three of his first five assaults and then won four in succession. The last three places for promotion were gained by J. B. Armstrong, C. R. Hammersley, and C. T. Wellington, each of whom suffered four defeats, and those who failed to qualify for the semi-final pools were L. V. Fildes, five defeats; T. E. Jones and A. Mayer, six each; and F. C. O. Speyer, seven.

Pool IV. was even more closely fought than Pool III. One competitor, the ex-champion, the Hon. I. D. Campbell-Gray, stood out from the others, and headed the pool with two defeats only in nine assaults. He lost to A. J. Duncombe-Anderson and C. J. Ellis, both of whom had to be content with the barren honour of having defeated the best fencer in the pool, for neither qualified for promotion. L. A. Mowlam and W. Rippon came next to Campbell-Gray, each with two defeats, and there was a terrific struggle for the last three places entailing promotion. Five fencers, F. E. Charlton, B. Berliand, D. Dexter, C. J. Ellis, and F. E. Lloyd tied for fourth place with five defeats each, and at a late hour a supplementary pool of five was fought to determine the barrage. At the end of the 10 fights his pool entailed, two things only were settled. Lloyd, who won all his fights, gained fourth place in the pool and C. J. Ellis, who lost all his fights, was eliminated. A second barrage between the three others resulted in Dexter gaining the fifth place and Berliand the sixth, while Charlton, Ellis, Duncombe-Anderson, and G. H. Smith failed to gain promotion.

CRICKET

VARYING FORTUNES

(FROM OUR CRICKET CORRESPONDENT)

There was a disappointing attendance of the general public at Lord's yesterday and the Members' Enclosure was sparsely populated before luncheon. This was a pity because the play was quite first-class, although there were no grounds for the charge frequently brought against first-class cricket. Many people allege as their reason for not going to watch it that nothing ever happens while they are there. In fact Cambridge, after varying fortunes, scored 288 and Oxford lost three wickets for 68 before stumps were pulled up.

None could complain of the absence of the dramatic yesterday. The time-table will show that something was happening at regular and short intervals throughout the day. Cambridge went in at 11.30, and made 139 runs for the loss of Killick's wicket before luncheon. In the earlier part of the afternoon Peebles and Hill-Wood secured the advantage which had hitherto belonged to Cambridge. Between them they altered the legend on the scoring-board from 139 for no wicket to 163 for four. When something under 30 more runs had been made two more wickets fell in quick succession. After that we had a specimen of those sturdy and courageous stands at a critical moment which are the more admired when one of the batsmen responsible for it is captain of the side. Morgan most certainly did play a "captain's innings." He defended stubbornly to stop an impending collapse, and when his supply of trustworthy partners was exhausted he died gloriously, caught at mid-on, in an attempt to hit a straight ball into the Grand Stand. By tea-time the score was 279 for eight.

If any should be disposed to think that the play cannot have been of the highest quality if so many runs were made in the time at such high cost he may be assured that his guess at truth is wrong. The pace of the scoring was due to the fact that none of the batsmen, except at intervals Kemp-Welch, used the dead bat in defence after the manner of professional batsmen opening the innings in a county match. On the contrary, the bat was put up against the ball good and hard, even when the prime object of the stroke was to keep it away from the stumps. Wickets fell in numbers satisfactory to Oxford because the bowlers, especially Peebles, could and did produce the extra-good ball to beat the batsmen. The fly in the ointment was a certain amount of slovenliness in the Oxford fielding. The Cambridge men had evidently made up their minds that they could run two for a stroke to deep third man, and seldom had to sprint for their second. Garland-Wells was conspicuously guiltless in the field, and Kingsley at slip never touched the ball.

When Oxford went in to bat startling things continued to happen. Crawley ran himself out, oh! so stupidly, before a run had been scored. It cannot be affirmed that there was the note of class about the work in the field which helped him to his suicide. He played a ball to backward point, who did not pick it up quite cleanly. Crawley omitted to obey W. G. Grace's maxim, "Never run for a misfield unless there is a run and a half." He called, and his partner rightly sent him back. But though he had only a few yards to go he could not recover his ground. Pataudi played a ball into his wicket shortly afterwards, and Kingsley hit a full pitch into mid-on's hand with a stroke intended to land the ball in the Tavern. It will be seen that the Oxford batsmen, in contradistinction from those of Cambridge, have contributed largely to their own downfall. But of nearly everybody who went in, it may be said that, whether he succeeded or failed, he played with a stylishness which was quite charming.

CAMBRIDGE'S GOOD START

Killick and Kemp-Welch gave Cambridge a very good start against Hill-Wood and Bradshaw, both of whom are quick bowlers without being quite fast. One noticed that Kingsley put a man at silly mid-off and selected his best batsman for the position. Presumably his tactical objective was to induce one of the other batsmen to slash at the wrong ball and get caught behind the wicket in the attempt to disable the best of the opposing batsmen. They declined to fall into the trap. Nevertheless, Killick did play strokes at balls swinging away from him on the off-side in a manner which caused the ring of slips to raise optimistic hands in readiness. But he either missed the ball completely or played it away for runs with strokes that must have felt very pleasant. Anything over-pitched he drove through the covers with power and precision. Kemp-Welch was less aggressive, and was content to wait for opportunities to score on the leg side.

As soon as the shine was off the ball Peebles was put on vice Bradshaw at the Pavilion end. It is never quite easy to detect what he is up to, but so far as could be seen from a position behind him he did not, during his first spell of bowling, make the ball break from leg, but relied on the googley and the on-coming ball with an occasional fast one which as often as not was cut profitably by the recipient of it. Garland-Wells and Melville both had a turn at the Nursery end before luncheon. Melville failed to strike form and was expensive, but Garland-Wells was surely less innocent than he looks. His changes of pace are well disguised and he seems to know what he is doing and why. He made Kemp-Welch cut over his faster ball, but he turned it too much to give Mayhew any real chance of catching him. There was the usual cheer when the hundred went up; but it would have been louder if the crowd had realized that a hundred for none had not been recorded in the University match since the War. The first wicket did not fall until just before luncheon. Then Peebles suddenly uncapped a tremendous leg-break. Killick obviously thought it would, if anything, go the other way. He made no stroke at it and saw it go right across to hit the top of his off-stump. If not altogether master of his fate all the time he had been in Killick had played a capital innings, making his strokes, especially on the off-side, with marked power and dexterity.

A SUDDEN COLLAPSE

It was probably a very good thing for Oxford that Radcliffe did not stay very long. He played extremely well while he was there, and saw the ball accurately from the very start. At once he came, One, Two, Three down the pitch to drive Peebles past mid-off for 4, and, playing with a leisurely and free backlift of his bat, he timed all his strokes accurately. But he overbalanced in hitting at a leg ball, and, falling across his wicket, was bowled round his legs. At the same total Grant was clean bowled, and at the other end Kemp-Welch was caught at the wicket. Hill-Wood deserved this success for his persistency in bowling the dangerous ball running away from the off-stump. Carris spent an uncomfortable quarter of an hour at the crease before he missed a yorker which was partly of his own manufacture, and Human, who had been playing like a glorified schoolboy—the phrase is intended to be complimentary to his enterprise and grace if not to his discretion—was nicely caught at third slip after giving a chance there which A. P. F. Chapman would have held, falling with a thud to make it.

Cambridge now were doing none too well with six men out for 192. But Morgan and Brown put on 66 most valuable runs. Morgan, being a left-hander, kept opposite to Peebles as much as possible and offered the dead bat to his bowling until a ball came which he could punch to the boundary on the leg side. Brown looked much less safe. Like Human he declined to leave anything alone on the off-side, and he avoided disaster until he had caught and passed his captain. Kingsley did not call for the new ball until the score had passed 220. Peebles was bowling too well to be relieved prematurely. But when he had been on for an hour and a half it was necessary to give him a rest. Bradshaw, who took his place, was expensive. New ball or old ball, one pitched beyond the dead length outside the off stump was a half-volley to Human, who made three delightful off-drives in one over. The sophisticated players do not deal thus with the new ball swinging away. Peebles had to come back to the Pavilion end. At once he beat Brown with a rather amazing googly, and in the same over one of his numerous appeals for l.-b.-w. was answered against Hazlerigg. Morgan was caught at mid-on off a miss-hit, and Rought-Rought narrowly failed in a gallant effort to bring up the 300.

Mention has already been made of Oxford's disastrous start. While the fatal accidents were happening Moore showed admirable nerve and first-rate ability.

GLOUCESTERSHIRE IN A GOOD POSITION

At the close of play in the match between Gloucestershire and Hampshire at Gloucester yesterday the home county, with four wickets in hand in their second innings, were 328 runs on.

Hampshire did so badly against the bowling of Goddard and Parker that by 4 o'clock they were all out for 231, but Gloucestershire did not enforce the follow-on. There may be the possibility of the wicket crumbling on the third day. At two periods during their innings Hampshire appeared likely to make a more creditable reply, but Arnold and Pothecary received little help from the rest of the side. This pair continued their stand and, by enterprising cricket, took the score to 97 before Pothecary was bowled. Arnold completed his 50 in two hours. He received a little help from Mead, but Goddard bowled so well that three wickets fell quickly. After the interval Lord Tennyson was out to a good catch by Dacre at long-on, and with six men out Hampshire still required 50 to avoid the follow-on.

With the object of getting as many runs as possible during the last two hours' play, Lyon opened the innings with Sinfield, but he was bowled at 21. Sinfield played his usual cautious game, but the other Gloucestershire batsmen went for the runs. Naturally, Kennedy and Newman had some easy successes, and had they had better support in the field they would have done even better than in fact they did. Hammond showed signs of coming into form again though he was missed twice.

HIGH SCORING AT BATH

At the close of play in the match between Somerset and Northamptonshire at Bath yesterday Somerset, with three men out for 234, were 223 runs behind the visiting county.

Northamptonshire were able to declare yesterday with eight men out for 457. They were indebted mainly to Bakewell, who obtained 204 out of 378 made while he was at the wickets. He gave an admirable display, and hit 30 4's. During his long stay he offered only two chances—when he had made 152 and 196. On Saturday Northamptonshire had scored 377 for the loss of six wickets, and a further 80 runs were added yesterday morning before Jupp declared the innings closed. J. C. White, who bore the brunt of the attack during Somerset's long time in the field, kept a good length and took five wickets for 159 runs.

Northway began the Somerset innings with Young, and he concentrated so much on defence that the professional made 47 of the 69 scored in rather more than an hour for the wicket. Then Young was out to a catch at square-leg. Northway, who took an hour to make his first five runs, took 40 minutes longer to add 23 before he was leg-before-wicket to Jupp at 88. With Considine and Frank Lee together, runs continued to come slowly against good-length bowling by Thomas and Clark, but after the tea interval, which was taken with the score at 118 for two, there came some of the brightest batting of the day.

AUSTRALIANS KEPT IN THE FIELD

NOTTINGHAMSHIRE SECURE THE LEAD

Nottinghamshire played well up to their reputation as champion county by gaining a lead of 91 runs over the Australians at Trent Bridge yesterday. They occupied the wicket all day and raised their overnight score of 21 for no wicket to 387 for nine, the highest total yet made by any of the county elevens against the Australians.

On Saturday a crowd almost of Test Match proportions had watched the Australians bat without two such outstanding personalities as Woodfull and Bradman. Yesterday no more than seven or eight thousand people watched them in the field without Grimmett and Oldfield. Behind the wickets the Australians were served well enough by Walker, but the absence of Grimmett on a Trent Bridge pitch made all the difference to the bowling. Nottinghamshire, after all, were the champion county last season, and their successes were not entirely due to Larwood, Voce and Barratt, and the two Staples, strong team of bowlers though they were, and still are.

With two days in front of them, and 275 runs still required to draw level with the Australian score, George Gunn and Whysall were content to resume their first wicket partnership on purely defensive lines. This was very dull to watch, but in effect it showed up almost every limitation in the Australian attack, when deprived of the influence of Grimmett's slows. An hour of unshakeable resistance also served to give Hurwood, one of the least known, or at any rate least used, Australian bowlers a chance to show what he could do with his medium-paced swingers. These probably would have been most deadly if he had been handed the new ball at the start of the innings, and when the 200 went up after about three and three-quarter hours cricket. As it was, Hurwood had to rest content with the limited, though important, success of taking the first three wickets that fell for a total of 223. He also could fairly claim to have sent down most of the few balls that ever seriously troubled any of the batsmen.

Gunn's largely passive resistance ended at 64, when Wall held a catch in the slips off Hurwood's bowling. Whysall then carried on the policy of safety first while assisting his new partner, Walker, to put on 106 runs for the second wicket. Whysall's splendid shoulders make him on occasion one of the finest drivers in the country. His turning strokes also are made in the style of a really first-class batsman. Perhaps it was because he concentrated upon these in preference to forward play that he appeared much less attractive to the spectator than did Walker, whose beautifully easy and neat 53 runs were made by strokes all round the wicket. Then, at length, after numerous changes of bowling, not one of which ever promised very much, Walker was fairly beaten with a good-length ball that turned in just sufficiently to hit the off stump.

Hurwood very nearly bowled the veteran Payton with his next ball, but the latter having escaped the disaster, helped Whysall to add another 53 runs at an appreciably swifter rate than either of the two preceding partnerships. It was about this time that one saw Whysall at his very best, his driving through the covers being beautifully timed and placed. Whysall had just reached his hundredth run, his third successive century—two having been made in the match against Hampshire—when he lost Payton, who got his leg in front of a ball from Wall that kept rather low, and beat him. Whysall then quickly added 20 to his own score and was bowled in hitting out almost recklessly at last at a ball from Hurwood. Whysall's had been a splendid innings, and the fifth hundred obtained against the Australians.

Not even the loss of Whysall prevented Nottinghamshire from making the Australian bowling look very ineffective. A. Staples and Lilley carried the score to within two of their opponents' total before Lilley was bowled by Hornibrook for a very useful 24. At this point, however, there was a sudden change in favour of the fielding side, though the manner of its beginning was distinctly lucky. A. Staples was batting very well indeed when he was run out. S. D. Rhodes had made a stroke towards deep mid-off and Staples had left his crease to back up. Jackson returned the ball quickly but wide of the stumps, and it was sheer luck that made Hornibrook throw out a half-hearted hand that diverted the ball on to the wicket. This was at 296, the Australians' total, and at the same score the seventh wicket, that of Barratt, fell, to the great disappointment of the crowd, who were expecting some big hits and more than a commanding lead on the first innings.

Larwood certainly came in to show how the bowling really could be played and scored from. Rhodes and S. J. Staples followed excellently in his tracks, but for all that, when the ninth wicket fell almost on the stroke of half-past six, Nottinghamshire had to some extent missed a great chance to place the Australians in a really hazardous position.

ESSEX BEAT GLAMORGAN

Essex gained a splendid victory over Glamorgan yesterday at Colchester, winning by 178 runs. In the course of the two days' play 40 wickets fell for 550 runs.

Gaining a first innings lead of 97, Essex gave a moderate display in their second innings and were all out for 148. Glamorgan required to make 246 runs to win, but on a crumbling pitch they fared badly against the fast bowling of Nichols and were dismissed for 67. In Essex's second innings Ryan bowled so well that he took eight wickets for 53 runs, and during one period he dismissed six batsmen for 24 runs. For the match Nichols had the remarkable analysis of ten wickets for 52 runs. During the game Pope was awarded his county cap.

YORKSHIRE IN DIFFICULTIES

BATTING FAILURES

Although Surrey had scored 438 runs at luncheon on the second day, the Yorkshire batting in Robinson's benefit match at Sheffield broke down so badly yesterday that it is possible that Surrey may force a win to-day. Yorkshire had to follow on 232 runs behind, and Surrey's chances of victory were very much improved when the 10 minutes left for the follow-on was enough to get Sutcliffe's most valuable wicket. With nine wickets in hand Yorkshire are 230 behind.

The fact that Surrey had over 300 runs on the board and still had half their wickets in hand did not have the effect it should have done on their batting yesterday morning. All through Saturday the batsmen had shown a curious reluctance to recognize the half-volley when it came along, and yesterday morning there was almost the same reluctance to take all the advantage that the pitch and, at times, the bowling gave them. P. G. H. Fender was out to a ball which grazed the leg bail, and Peach never really settled down to that devastating innings that he can play, which brings to nothing both the most immaculate length and the most careful placing of the field. Gregory, not for the first time this season, showed what an immensely improved batsman he is, but his innings would have been even more admirable if he had been trying to save his side from defeat instead of trying violently to drive home a decided advantage. At luncheon 132 runs had been added in two hours, and Fender was able to declare the innings closed with the comfortable knowledge that his side could not lose the match.

Surrey began their bowling after luncheon with M. J. C. Allom and Gover, and Holmes and Sutcliffe had rather more to cope with in the first few overs than had Hobbs and Sandham at the beginning of the Surrey innings. Gover was making the ball both rise and break back into the batsman, and Holmes, with the total at four, was beaten by him both through the air and off the pitch. Sutcliffe and Mitchell added 85 runs in approximately as many minutes before Mitchell was out to one of the very many full pitches sent down by P. G. H. Fender. The full pitch, however, has often proved to be the ideal ball with which to keep down the runs, and the stroke Mitchell made was about the first serious attempt to take full advantage of what is, in theory at any rate, a loose ball. He did not quite time the stroke, and Sandham, fielding wide at long-on, ran back and had the ball virtually in his hands from the moment it left the bat. Leyland seemed unduly suspicious of some most innocent bowling and at 104 he played over a ball of Shepherd's that beat him in its flight. Five runs later A. T. Barber, trying to score a boundary to square-leg off a ball of Fender's that deserved it, played the stroke in the wrong way and was bowled. To the vocal disappointment of the crowd, Robinson was run out a few minutes later in trying for a third run that was never there, and at teatime Yorkshire, with five wickets down for 125 runs, were in very real danger of following on.

Shortly after the tea interval Rhodes was leg-before-wicket to Allom, but Sutcliffe remained, and proceeded to gather runs both quickly and surely. Before then he had been the shocked and passive spectator of a series of inexplicable disasters, but now he took active measures to substitute a recovery for a collapse. He scored nine runs, all in the leg side, in one over of Gover's, and he continued to deal very severely with any ball that could be played off his legs. Once again, however, a technically bad ball got a wicket when Sutcliffe hit a short one of Fender's straight to Ducat at long leg, and the crowd was left to wonder how much the fall of wickets was due to the cunning of the bowling and how much to the feebleness of the batting. Dennis made a few brisk strokes, but the innings was all over soon after 6 o'clock for the disappointing total of 206.

THE FOLKESTONE FESTIVAL

A KEEN FINISH IN PROSPECT

There was another large crowd at Folkestone yesterday to see the match between Kent and Sussex. Considerable progress was made, and Sussex will start to-day with 212 runs to make in order to win, and they have eight wickets still to fall. As the wicket is showing signs of wear Sussex may find the task beyond them.

When Sussex went in yesterday morning they were 237 behind with two wickets down, but such disasters befell them that four more wickets went down in half an hour for eight runs. Cornford was caught at the wicket at 64, and in the next over J. Parks was leg-before-wicket to Freeman. Langridge was soon tempted to nibble at one of Wright's swingers, and provided Ames with the fourth of his six victims. A. H. H. Gilligan was never comfortable with Freeman, and caused little trouble, but H. Parks brightened things up a little until he pulled a full pitch on to his wicket in Ashdown's first over. Cook, meanwhile, was batting very stubbornly and seemed good for any number of runs if he could find anyone to stay with him. Wickets, however, continued to fall so fast that when Hammond, the last man, came in 18 runs were still needed to avoid the follow-on. Hammond had a narrow escape from being caught by Chapman before he had scored, but after that the necessary runs were obtained, and G. B. Legge was relieved of making what might well have been an awkward decision. Freeman again got his usual six wickets, and Wright was swinging them a good deal with the aid of the wind, but the Sussex batting, with the exception of Cook, was weak considering the good state of the wicket.

Kent went in again just after luncheon with a lead of 138, but they had the misfortune to find Tate in one of his most destructive moods and they never really recovered from a bad start. Hardinge overbalanced in playing forward to him with the total at 12 and was cleverly stumped. Ashdown was well and truly bowled by his slow ball at 23. Woolley began well enough with an off-drive to the boundary off Wensley and another off Tate, but when he had made 22 Tate completely beat him and missed the stumps. This escape availed Woolley nothing for he returned the next ball to the bowler and was well caught. After Chapman had skied a ball to Wensley in J. Parks's first over there came the only stand of the innings, between Ames and Todd. Todd did little more than keep up his end, but Ames played an excellent innings of 62 which included 11 4's. He was batting for an hour and 10 minutes when he was bowled, and half the side were out for 137. The remaining batsmen in their efforts to score quickly fell one after the other to the slow left-hand bowling of Langridge. Shortly after 5 o'clock the innings closed for 163, and Sussex were left with 302 runs to make for victory.

Bowley and J. Parks opened steadily and scored a run a minute until Freeman came on at the south end in place of Ashdown and had Bowley caught by Legge at deep mid-off for 12 with the total still at 21. Parks was bowled by Wright with a ball that hit the off-stump and displaced the bail without knocking it to the ground. After that Cook and H. Parks stayed together in a bright partnership until the close of play. During the day 20 wickets fell for 352.

WORCESTERSHIRE FOLLOW ON

Worcestershire had to follow on in their match with Derbyshire at Chesterfield yesterday, and at the close of play, with eight wickets in hand, they were 98 runs behind.

Derbyshire declared at their Saturday night total, and the opening Worcestershire batsmen played well for an hour, scoring 78 before Wright was bowled. In spite of an injury received during Worthington's first over, when a ball struck him on the finger and he was forced to retire to have his hand bandaged, Wright hit well all round the wicket and drove Mitchell for 6. Mitchell made the ball break considerably from leg, and had both Nichol and Gibbons stumped in reaching forward. Slater also required careful watching, and he soon bowled Walters. J. Fox played a sound, defensive game and reached his 50. Quaife was troubled by Mitchell, and eventually was caught at the wicket off Worthington, while Fox was dismissed by a good catch by Jackson. With Santall and Brook disposed of, Root abandoned all idea of defence, and, hitting at everything, was last out at 211.

Following on 223 behind, Worcestershire started well again. Wright on-drove Slater for 6, but, in attempting to treat Mitchell in the same way, was caught on the boundary. Nichol played delightful cricket, and, although losing J. Fox, completed his 50 before the close. Nichol reached his 1,000 runs for the season, being the first Worcestershire batsman to do so.

ARMY v. R.A.F.

INTERESTING SITUATION AT THE OVAL

The Royal Air Force, who had made only 118 in their first innings against the Army at the Oval on Saturday, did much better yesterday, scoring 336 in reply to the Army's 302. The Army, with 153 to make to win, lost two wickets for 17 runs before stumps were drawn for the day at 6.30. Play will be begun to-day at 11.30 a.m.

The Army, who had made 290 for nine wickets on Saturday, continued batting yesterday morning, when L. Williams, with 98 not out, was joined by Captain F. E. Hugonin, the pair raising the total to 302 before Williams was bowled by Squadron-Leader C. B. Cooke for an excellent 107.

The Royal Air Force began their second innings shortly after midday, requiring 184 to avoid defeat by an innings, and made a disastrous start, as Flying-Officer E. C. Huddleston was out without a run having been scored and Squadron-Leader R. S. Sugden put his legs before a straight ball from Captain J. E. S. Walford when the score was only 19. Wing-Commander C. H. B. Blount was then joined by Flight-Lieutenant A. J. Holmes and the pair put on 59 before the third wicket fell, Blount, in particular, making some hard drives. Luncheon was taken with the score 89 for three wickets, Wing-Commander Blount being not out with 51 and Sergeant Jennings with 0.

Runs continued to come at a good rate after the interval, Wing-Commander Blount hitting well all round the wicket, while his partner was content to keep his end up. The score was raised to 126 before Sergeant Jennings was bowled by Captain Arnold for a patient and useful 9. Flying-Officer N. M. Jerram, who came in next, took some time to settle down, but Blount continued to treat the bowling with disrespect, and Captain Walford gave way to Captain M. B. Burrows, who kept a good length, but was unable to keep down the runs. Soon after 3.30 Wing-Commander Blount had the double satisfaction of hitting a 4, which made his individual score 100 and his side's total 184, so that the Royal Air Force avoided defeat by an innings.

Both Jerram and Baker batted steadily after the interval, raising the score to 234 before the former was well caught in the slips by Captain Burrows for a careful 35, which included four 4's. Squadron-Leader R. E. G. Fulljames was bowled by Dynes in the same over, and shortly afterwards Baker was smartly stumped by Captain Williams, Dynes again being the successful bowler. Baker had made some clever drives and cuts in his 43, in which he hit six 4's. Flight-Lieutenant V. Croome scored a lively 20, and Flight-Lieutenant C. D. Adams and Squadron-Leader C. B. Cooke put on 59 for the last wicket, the former being not out for a bright 46, which included three 6's and two 4's. The innings ended at 6 p.m., leaving the Army with 153 to make to win.

Parliament

COMMONS AND THE NAVY

QUESTIONS TO PRIME MINISTER

THE FINANCE BILL

HOUSE OF COMMONS

MONDAY, JULY 7

The SPEAKER took the Chair at a quarter to 3 o'clock.

NAVAL TREATY

THE CRUISER TONNAGE

COMMANDER SOUTHBY (Epsom, U.) asked the Prime Minister whether the 91,000-ton cruiser tonnage limit was fixed before the Naval Conference met in London; and, if so, by whom was it fixed and where.

Mr. MAC DONALD, Prime Minister (Seaham).—At the time of the preliminary negotiations which took place in August and September last with the United States of America, the question of cruiser replacement was considered by the Admiralty, and a figure of 91,000 tons was put forward for the new tonnage to be completed by the end of 1936. This figure was employed in the ensuing conversations which had for their object the removal of the earlier difficulties in regard to cruiser limitation. I have frequently explained that these preliminary conversations were for the purpose only of clearing the ground prior to the London Naval Conference. The conclusion of a fixed agreement, independently of other interested Powers, was then neither attempted nor desired. The figure of 91,000 tons was finally fixed during the Conference itself, when, after negotiation with the United States of America and Japan, it was found that it met our replacement requirements within the terms of the Treaty.

COMMANDER SOUTHBY asked whether the House was to understand that that figure was decided upon in the preliminary conversations without it having been discussed with the Japanese Government. Mr. MACDONALD said it was not decided upon in the preliminary negotiations at all. It was used as a figure for the purpose of considering upon what basis they might come to a Treaty when the London Naval Conference began. COMMANDER SOUTHBY asked whether the House was to understand that the right hon. gentleman did not agree with the very definite statement of the Lord President of the Council on this subject. No answer was given.

IMPERIAL CONFERENCE AND THE NAVY

COMMANDER SOUTHBY asked the Prime Minister whether it was the intention of the Government to review the whole Empire naval building programme during the forthcoming Imperial Conference, including the question of revision of the tonnage limitations as laid down in the London Naval Treaty.

Mr. MAC DONALD.—The forthcoming Imperial Conference may well afford a convenient opportunity for a discussion of naval building programmes in the light of the London Naval Treaty, but it is not possible to specify any particular aspects of the Treaty which it may be thought desirable to consider in the course of any such discussion.

COMMANDER SOUTHBY asked whether the Prime Minister would consider the placing on the agenda for the Conference the definite question of discussing the Treaty limitations of tonnage when the Treaty lapsed in 1935. Mr. MACDONALD said that point could be raised by any Dominion which was interested in the subject. The Government had had full negotiations and communications with them on the subject during and after the Conference. COMMANDER SOUTHBY asked whether the Prime Minister would take steps to initiate a discussion on this subject and not leave it to the Dominions. No answer was given.

NEW ZEALAND AND CONFERENCE

CAPTAIN CROOKSHANK (Gainsborough, U.) asked the Prime Minister if he would state on what grounds the Government declined to receive a representative nominated by New Zealand at the recent Naval Conference, and whether there had been any other occasions, and, if so, what, when the Government in London had adopted a similar attitude with regard to nominated representatives of any Dominion Government.

Mr. MAC DONALD.—The hon. and gallant member would appear to be under a misapprehension. There never was, nor could there have been, any question of the Government here declining to receive a representative who had been nominated by New Zealand to the London Naval Conference. The last part of the question does not arise.

CAPTAIN CROOKSHANK asked if the Prime Minister meant to say that Lord Jellicoe's statement in another place was incorrect. Mr. MACDONALD.—No; I do not. CAPTAIN CROOKSHANK.—Then what does the right hon. gentleman mean?

Mr. MARJORIBANKS (Eastbourne, U.) asked the Prime Minister whether any of the Dominions asked for a separate representation and advice at the London Naval Conference; and, if so, what answer was given.

Mr. MAC DONALD.—All the Dominions were invited to be separately represented at the London Naval Conference and were informed that it was contemplated that the technical experts should be present at the Conference to assist the delegates in an advisory capacity. A similar communication as to technical experts was made to the foreign Governments. All the Dominions were represented by separate delegates, and the delegates were accompanied by such expert advisers as the respective Governments thought desirable.

Mr. MARJORIBANKS.—Did the New Zealand Government ask Lord Jellicoe to represent them at the Conference? (Ministerial cries of "Order.")

The SPEAKER.—That is supplementary to a previous question.

EARL WINTERTON (Horsham and Worthing, U.).—May I ask whether the right of the Dominions to choose their representatives was free and unhampered, so far as his Majesty's Government was concerned?

Mr. MAC DONALD.—Absolutely. Representations regarding the conduct of the Conference, and the relations of expert advisers to the full delegates were made in common to the Governments of the Dominions and to foreign Governments, and the concurrence was general.

NAVAL TREATY AND LEGISLATION

REAR-ADMIRAL BEAMISH (Lewes, U.) asked the Prime Minister if he would state the scope of any legislation that would be necessary in consequence of the terms of the Naval Treaty; and if, and when, it was the intention of the Government to introduce such legislation.

Mr. MAC DONALD.—The London Naval Treaty of 1930, like the Treaty of Washington of 1922, prescribes certain restrictions as to the character of certain vessels of war which may be constructed within the jurisdiction of the High Contracting Parties. In order to be made effective, these restrictions require statutory authority, such as was given in 1922 by the Treaties of Washington Act. It will take the form of an amendment of the Treaties of Washington Act and it is proposed also to take this opportunity to repeal Section 4 of that Act in which power was given to implement provisions of the Washington (Root) Treaty which never came into force and which in the light of the proceedings at the London Naval Conference may now be regarded as superseded altogether. The provisions to be repealed involved in particular jurisdiction over persons violating the Treaty in question. In the absence of ratification by all the High Contracting Parties such jurisdiction could not, of course, be exercised by our Courts in conformity with international law, and it is desirable, to avoid all possibility of disputes arising at a subsequent date, to repeal the statutory provision for such jurisdiction. I cannot at present state precisely the date for the introduction of this legislation, but as I announced recently it is hoped to pass the Bill through all its stages before the end of the Session.

REAR-ADMIRAL BEAMISH asked whether legislation came before or after ratification of the Treaty? Mr. MACDONALD.—It has been the custom that legislation of this kind should be passed before ratification, but I am not sure that it is anything more than custom. LIEUTENANT-COMMANDER KENWORTHY (Hull Central, Lab.) asked whether there would be a new clause in the Treaty taking the place of the former Root Convention, including new rules as to submarine warfare? Mr. MACDONALD.—I am afraid I cannot answer that question at the present moment. But there will be a provision in the Treaty annulling the legislation following the Washington Treaty which provided for the observance of the Root Clause.

COMMANDER SOUTHBY.—Will the right hon. gentleman consider deferring legislation until the meeting of the Imperial Conference?

Mr. MAC DONALD.—I do not think that is necessary. The Governments of the Dominions have agreed to the Treaty.

RUSSIAN TIMBER

COMPULSORY LABOUR

Mr. HENDERSON, Foreign Secretary (Burnley), replying to Mr. MARJORIBANKS (Eastbourne, U.), said:—Article 9 of the Constitution of Soviet Russia imposes the duty of labour on all its citizens, but compulsory unpaid labour of whatever nature is illegal. Forced labour may be imposed by judicial and administrative organs as a punishment for crime or misdemeanour, and, in addition, labour may be mobilized for special national emergencies (e.g., earthquakes, floods, &c.).

As regards the timber industry, provincial communities are empowered by a decree of February 13 last to employ compulsory labour at special rates of pay where the fulfilment of a production programme calls for such action.

Mr. MARJORIBANKS asked whether Mr. Henderson was aware that an official organ of the Soviet Government described a certain contract as akin to slavery for Soviet citizens, and whether he would take steps to prevent the fruits of that labour coming into this country and displacing British labour. Mr. HENDERSON.—That is an entirely different question. SIR K. WOOD.—Will the right hon. gentleman consult the American Ambassador as to the steps which the United States has taken in this matter? No answer was given.

CALTON GAOL SITE

Mr. MATHERS (Edinburgh, W., Lab.) asked the First Commissioner of Works if he would state the present position with regard to the erection of Government buildings upon the Calton Gaol site, Edinburgh; and whether agreement had been reached with the Corporation of Edinburgh as to the design of the buildings.

Mr. LANSBURY, First Commissioner of Works (Bow and Bromley).—As the result of a conference held at Edinburgh recently with representatives of the City Corporation, the Town Planning Committee, and the National Library Trustees, agreement was reached as regards the erection of the Sheriff Court-house on the Calton Gaol site subject to a reference to the Scottish Fine Art Commission on the siting of the building. The question of the erection of a departmental building on that site is still under consideration. The answer to the latter part of the question is in the negative.

BOTANIC GARDENS

Mr. LANSBURY, asked by LIEUT.-COL. MOORE (Ayr Burghs, U.) if he could state the proposals of his Department in regard to the future of the Botanic Gardens when the Crown lease fell in during 1932, said:—It is the intention of the Government that the ground shall be devoted to some purpose for the benefit of the public, but no decision has yet been arrived at as to the precise use to which it can be put.

REGENT'S PARK GATES

Mr. LANSBURY, asked by LIEUT.-COL. MOORE if he would state when it was proposed to replace the iron gates leading into Regent's Park which were removed during the War, said:—It is not proposed to replace the gates, as no useful purpose would be served by doing so; they would, in fact, be a hindrance to traffic. Asked by LIEUT.-COL. MOORE what he had done with the gates, Mr. LANSBURY said he left them where his predecessor in office had them placed. Where that was he would inquire and let the hon. member know.

UNEMPLOYMENT INSURANCE FUND

MAJOR ELLIOT (Glasgow, Kelvingrove, U.) asked the Prime Minister whether it was intended to take any of the stages of the proposed Bill to extend the borrowing powers of the Unemployment Insurance Fund this week; and whether he could state if it was the intention of the Government to propose that all the stages of that Bill be taken upon the floor of the House.

Mr. MAC DONALD.—This Bill will be introduced as soon as the necessary money resolution has been approved by the House. The money resolution will be taken as soon as possible, having regard to the claims of other urgent business, but not this week. Due notice of the Government's intention will be given in answer to the usual inquiries as to business made from time to time. It is proposed to take all stages of the Bill upon the floor of this House.

SOLICITORS CONVICTED OF FRAUD

SIR J. FERGUSON (Twickenham, U.) asked the Attorney-General if he had now been informed that the Law Society, conjointly with the provincial law societies, were initiating legislation designed to protect the public against losses by solicitors convicted of fraud in the criminal Courts, and whether he had received a draft of the proposed Bill.

SIR W. JOWITT, Attorney-General (Preston), said he had received a draft of the Bill which the Law Society at a meeting held on June 20 resolved to submit to the provincial law societies. He understood that the general principles of the Bill were approved on Friday last, and that it was the intention of the Law Society to proceed with it.

Mr. A. SOMERVILLE (Windsor, U.).—When is it proposed to introduce that Bill? SIR W. JOWITT.—There is obviously no time in the immediate future. Mr. A. SOMERVILLE.—Will it receive Government support.

No reply was given.

COMMUNISTS AND YOUNG RECRUITS

SIR K. WOOD (Woolwich, W., U.) asked the Attorney-General whether any proceedings had been taken against the publishers and printers of the pamphlets inciting soldiers to mutiny and recently distributed to young recruits at Brecon, and in respect of which two persons were convicted at the recent Brecon Assize, and respectively sentenced to 12 and eight months' imprisonment; whether any proceedings had been taken against the publishers and printers of certain pamphlets inciting soldiers to mutiny and recently widely circulated throughout the Northern, Eastern, and Western Commands and distributed at Chatham, Aldershot, Yorkshire, Newcastle, Edinburgh, and Wellington Barracks.

SIR W. JOWITT.—The only pamphlet which has been brought to my notice containing incitements to mutiny circulated to soldiers was contained in an envelope marked "Lee's tip for the Derby," and I presume it is to this pamphlet that my right hon. friend refers. This pamphlet was of such a serious nature that it was my manifest duty to take proceedings against any person who could be shown to have been concerned in the printing, publication, or distribution. (Unionist cheers.) In two cases only, Brecon and Aldershot, have we succeeded in discovering the distributors. In the other cases mentioned, the pamphlet was left in proximity to the barracks, but no distributor was discovered. We have not succeeded in obtaining evidence as to the persons concerned in the printing and publication. As I have already said in reply to the right hon. gentleman, if I could obtain such information I should certainly prosecute. (Cheers.)

SIR L. WORTHINGTON-EVANS (St. George's, U.).—May I ask whether the particular pamphlet to which the Attorney-General has referred had not got either an imprint or a statement on it showing that it was published by the Communist Party? SIR W. JOWITT.—No. It had no imprint on it at all. We have no clue whatever as to the publishers or the printers.

FINANCE BILL

MARRIED PERSONS' INCOME-TAX

The House went into Committee on the Finance Bill, Mr. DUNNICO, Deputy Chairman of Committees (Consett), in the Chair, and resumed the consideration of new clauses.

Mr. G. LOCKER-LAMPSON (Handsworth, U.) moved the following clause:—

If either husband or wife who are living together claims to be separately assessed for the purpose of income-tax (which expression includes surtax) neither of them shall be liable to pay a larger sum in respect of income-tax than they would be liable to pay if they were each unmarried.

He described the present practice as a great injustice and a ridiculous anomaly. If a man and a woman were living together unmarried they were treated separately for purposes of income-tax; if they were married they had to pay on their joint income at a higher rate.

Mr. W. GRAHAM, President of the Board of Trade (Edinburgh, Central), said that there were certain features in the case presented by Mr. Locker-Lampson which were attractive. It seemed to be a logical development of the principle of the Married Women's Property Act and kindred legislation that there should be a separation of the incomes of husband and wife, and that, if they so elected, the tax should be separately imposed. But when one inquired what was meant in practice by the clause the anomalies and injustices, not to mention the loss to the Revenue, were found to be most startling. At present there was an allowance from the husband's assessment for his wife. That was the way in which marriage was recognized under the law as it stood. If it were proposed to segregate or separate the incomes and to carry that to its extreme conclusion in taxation, it must be clearly an alternative to the existing marriage allowance. If an option were granted it would be valuable to a certain section of families, but it would be very damaging to the majority. Very soon after this change had been introduced, and the option was exercised, the incomes would be redistributed where they could be between husband and wife for the express purpose of reducing the aggregate amount of tax now paid in that household. At the start the cost would be at least £8,000,000 to the Exchequer, but as the taxpayer redistributed the income, in a very short time that cost would bound up to as much as £35,000,000. Therefore on revenue grounds alone the proposal was utterly impossible. The clause would also probably lead to widespread evasion. They had already recognized marriage in the present allowances for assessment, which cost the Exchequer £17,000,000.

LIEUT.-COM. KENWORTHY (Hull Central, Lab.) moved a new clause repealing the duty on vegetable turpentine and white spirit.

Mr. SNOWDEN said that he was not prepared to rebut any of the arguments against this tax, which was one that he would never have proposed unless all other available sources of revenue had been completely exhausted. The cost of repealing the tax on turpentine would be about £100,000 a year, and on white spirit about £250,000. That was not a very large sum but it was a sum of considerable importance to him when searching for a possible sixpence still left in the pockets of the taxpayer. It would be difficult to repeal these two taxes without leading to a claim for exemption from tax of petrol for non-road use. He regretted that he could not see his way this year to make this modest remission of taxation, but his decision was in no way based on approval of the tax. It might interest the House to know that if he accepted all the proposals in the various new clauses on the amendment paper the total cost to the Revenue would be £237,000,000. (Laughter.)

Mr. WHITE (Birkenhead, E., L.) said that turpentine ought never to have been brought within the scope of this tax. The experience of the past two years had shown that it was not possible to pass this tax on to the consumer.

Mr. D. G. SOMERVILLE (Willesden, E., U.) urged the Chancellor of the Exchequer to withdraw this tax, which he said would help the production of houses for the working classes.

After further debate, in the course of which Mr. HOFFMAN (Sheffield, Central, Lab.), REAR-ADMIRAL BEAMISH (Lewes, U.), and other members appealed to the Chancellor of the Exchequer to remit the tax in the interests of industry, the amendment was withdrawn.

WASTING ASSETS

SIR B. PETO (Barnstaple, U.) moved a new clause, the object of which was to allow deductions of income-tax in respect of inherently wasting assets. He said that part of the report of the Royal Commission on Income Tax in 1920 dealt with this subject, but effect had never been given to that part of the report. Subject to the limitation that their life fell short of 35 years, it was recommended that an allowance should be given in respect of all inherently wasting material assets which had been created by the expenditure of capital. The recommendations wanted not restricting but extending. Under present conditions we were running a serious risk of practically inviting foreign companies which had registered offices in England to change their registration. The effect of the increase in income-tax rate without an allowance such as he advocated had a deleterious effect on these companies.

SIR H. BETTERTON (Nottingham, Rushcliffe, U.) supported the clause. He said that the hope of industry lay in rationalization, the most important side of which was the bringing up to date of the machinery on which an industry depended for its production. It was to the interest, not merely of industry but of the Treasury, that everything possible should be done to encourage that process. The cost of modernization, whether of machinery, ships, or other things, must come out of accumulated reserves, and if those reserves were taxed then, to that extent, the very process which every one desired to see carried out would be discouraged.

Mr. GRAHAM said it was desirable that there should be the greatest possible speed in the replacement of the wealth-producing machines of this country, and that adequate provision should be made for wasting assets, depreciation, or obsolescence. The Royal Commission on Income Tax in 1920 considered the matter, and suggested that any plan worked out under a clause of this sort should be confined to assets with a lifetime of 35 years or less. While the Royal Commission were unable to recommend an allowance from income-tax on wasting assets at large, they thought it should be possible to work out a plan having regard to the period by which the life of the asset fell short of the 35 years. Progress had been made by the Government in this matter during the past year. There had been consultations with the Federation of British Industries and the Association of Chambers of Commerce in order to find a basis on the recommendations of the Royal Commission. Unfortunately, that had not been achieved, because those industrial and commercial interests had opposed the time limit of 35 years and other proposals. They had made counter-proposals which undoubtedly would make a large inroad on the residue in existing conditions. No agreement had yet been reached, and the difficulties were undeniably considerable. All along the Government had recognized the importance of this subject, and, without committing the Chancellor of the Exchequer to a precise proposal, he, Mr. Graham, hoped that the conversations would continue and that together they would do everything possible to work out a programme which would be considered in a future Budget. Beyond that he was not able to go.

The new clause was, by leave, withdrawn.

THE SILK DUTIES

SIR G. RENTOUL (Lowestoft, U.) moved the following new clause:—

Where any article of apparel made wholly or partly of silk is imported, the article, instead of being charged with duty in accordance with the provisions of Part I. of the Second Schedule to the Finance Act, 1925, may, at the option of the importer, be charged with a duty calculated on the whole weight of the article at a rate equal to twice the rate of the duty chargeable under the said Part I. in respect of the class of silk contained in the article.

For the purposes of this subsection—

(i.) the expression "silk" includes artificial silk;

(ii.) where silk of several classes is contained in the article, the article shall be chargeable with duty as if all the silk so contained were silk of that one of those classes in respect of which the highest rate of duty is payable under the said Part I.;

(iii.) in determining the class to which any silk belongs regard shall be had to the stage of manufacture in which the silk appears in the article.

He said he moved the clause to call attention to a serious anomaly and hardship which undoubtedly existed at present, and which tended to create a feeling of injustice among traders. The position in regard to the silk duties was that in 1926 a differentiation was made as to the amount of duty payable by the trader and the private individual. Any private person who went abroad and bought certain articles containing silk and brought them back into this country was only required to pay duty on the weight of silk contained in those articles, which, in many instances, amounted to a very small sum. But the trader who went abroad or the business man who sent his buyer to France to purchase silk articles was required to pay the duty on the ad valorem value, which might be 20, 30, or 100 times as much as the private person had to pay. He knew of no parallel for such a differentiation, which was undoubtedly detrimental to British trade.

At this stage Mr. McGOVERN (Glasgow, Shettleston, Lab.) called attention to the fact that 40 members were not present. There was a good deal of amusement at this, and some cries of "New member!" The necessary quorum was quickly forthcoming, and the business proceeded.

Mr. PETHICK-LAWRENCE, Financial Secretary to the Treasury (Leicester, W.), said that it would cause great difficulty administratively to go back to the 1925 system, and would also cost the Revenue from £300,000 to £400,000 a year.

Mr. HOFFMAN (Sheffield, Central, Lab.) said that as a result of the differentiation of duty many women who used to buy their dresses in London now bought them in Paris and Berlin.

The amendment was by leave withdrawn.

PETROL FOR LIFEBOATS

MR. SNOWDEN'S CONCESSION

REAR-ADMIRAL BEAMISH (Lewes, U.) moved a new clause freeing from duty petrol used by the Royal National Lifeboat Institution in connexion with the operation of lifeboats or lifeboat tractors. He said that the sum of money involved was not large. Last year the institution only paid about £500 or £600, but that sum would go a long way in carrying on the lifeboat service. There had been a steady growth in the number of motor-lifeboats used round our coasts. Last year over £100,000 was spent in building new motor-lifeboats, and at the present time about 80 motor-lifeboats were stationed round our 5,000 miles of coastline. He thought that the cost to the Exchequer of this concession was very unlikely ever to exceed £1,000 a year.

Mr. PETHICK-LAWRENCE said that the Chancellor of the Exchequer viewed very sympathetically the proposal to extend the exemption from tax at present enjoyed by motor fishing vessels to motor-lifeboats. To that extent he would accept the proposals of the hon. and gallant member, but he could not extend the exemption to lifeboat tractors, as they were land machines, and if they were included it would start a new principle which might give rise to a number of other demands for concessions. If the hon. and gallant member would withdraw his new clause the Chancellor of the Exchequer would bring forward a clause on the Report stage carrying out the concession he had indicated. The concession could not be made retrospective.

REAR-ADMIRAL BEAMISH withdrew his motion, after expressing a hope that the Chancellor of the Exchequer would reconsider the question and grant the full concession which had been asked for.

BRIG.-GEN. CLIFTON BROWN (Newbury, U.) moved a new clause to provide that land used only for a plantation or a wood should be valued for taxation as if it were in its natural and unimproved state.

The clause was negatived after debate.

Mr. A. M. SAMUEL (Farnham, U.) moved a new clause to provide that where an insurance policy was included among the assets of an estate liable for death duty the policy should be assessed for duty separately and at half the percentage rate of duty applicable to the remainder of the estate. He contended that the heavy death duties were seriously discouraging life insurance.

SIR B. PETO supported the clause.

TORQUAY TRACTION BILL

The debate was interrupted at 7.30 for the consideration of the Torquay and Paignton Traction Bill, a certified Bill which has passed through all its stages in the Lords. Mr. M'KINLAY (Glasgow, Partick, Lab.) moved, and Mr. G. OLIVER (Ilkeston, Lab.) seconded, that the Bill be considered this day three months on the ground principally that it deprived the ratepayers of Torquay of the option to purchase the tramway undertaking in 1935. Mr. LAMBERT (South Molton, L.) and Mr. C. WILLIAMS (Torquay, U.) urged the House to give a third reading to the Bill, and thus enable improvements to the tramway undertaking to be carried out, which would provide a good deal of employment.

Mr. MORRISON, Minister of Transport (Hackney, S.), said that certification of a private Bill in no way indicated the approval or otherwise of the Government. It merely implied that it came within the category of Bills which would provide a certain amount of employment. It was unfortunate that this Bill had been allowed to go through its second reading without opposition, but as it was it had gone through the Committee on Unopposed Bills and opposition at that stage was unusual. The Government could not undertake to advise the House on the matter, and hon. members must vote in accordance with their individual views on the matter.

The motion for the rejection of the Bill was carried by 222 votes to 109—majority, 113.

FINANCE BILL

The House again went into Committee on the Finance Bill, and resumed the consideration of Mr. A. M. Samuel's new clause for the reduction of death duty upon life insurance policies.

Mr. PETHICK-LAWRENCE said that Mr. Samuel's contention was that unless the amendment were accepted the Government were not paying sufficient attention to the question of life insurance. But taking out a life policy was not the only method of saving and leaving one's heirs in a position to face the future. He did not see why they should penalize the man who saved by putting money into his business or by building up the capital of the nation by direct investments compared with the man who saved by means of life insurance. He could not accept the amendment.

Mr. A. M. SAMUEL said the speech of the Financial Secretary had made him gasp. He was concerned mostly with life insurance policies used as a form of saving for the purpose of finding liquid cash at death. Such provision had recently enabled him as an executor to avoid selling off stock in trade and perhaps part of the building used in the business. Life insurance was a great supporter of the national finance.

ARRANGEMENT AS TO PROGRESS

Mr. CHURCHILL moved to report progress in order to ask Mr. Snowden his intention as to the further proceedings in Committee.

Mr. SNOWDEN said that he thought there was no reason why the remaining time until 12 o'clock should not be quite sufficient to get to Major Nathan's amendment regarding relief to company reserves. As to when they might expect to finish the Committee stage of the Bill, he hoped that, working with as much harmony as possible, they would get to the end by about 7.30 on Wednesday evening, leaving time for the Lords' amendments to the Coal Bill.

Mr. CHURCHILL said that the Opposition would do their best to facilitate these arrangements, and the motion to report progress was withdrawn.

Mr. SNOWDEN accepted, and the Committee agreed to, an amendment to provide for relief from transfer stamp duty in case of transfer of property as between associated companies.

An amendment moved by Mr. ROMERIL (St. Pancras, S.E., Lab.) was also agreed to providing for exemption from income-tax of superannuation funds having for their sole purpose the provision of annuities "for persons employed in the trade or undertaking either on retirement at a specified age, or on becoming incapacitated at some earlier age, or for the widows, children, or dependents of persons who are or have been so employed on the death of those persons."

Another new clause, moved by Mr. MATTERS (Kennington, Lab.), relating to the computation of amount of copyright royalties taxed by deduction through an agent in cases where the owner of the copyright resided outside the United Kingdom, was also accepted by the Chancellor of the Exchequer and agreed to.

EMPIRE-GROWN SUGAR

SIR A. POWNALL (Lewisham, E., U.) moved a new clause to increase the existing preferential reduction of Custom duties on sugar produced in the British Empire. He said that, as the Commission with which Lord Olivier was associated had shown, the West Indies needed further assistance to enable them to tide over the world-wide over-production of sugar from which they were suffering. It meant that the preference, which was now approximately ¼d., would be ½d. per pound on sugar grown in the Empire. There would be a loss to the British Treasury, but something had to be done, and they thought that this was the best means of helping the islands.

MAJOR DAVIES (Yeovil, U.), in supporting the clause, said that the question involved here was not one merely of economics; it was more a question of moral responsibility.

Mr. ORMSBY-GORE (Stafford, U.) said the Government had just issued a White Paper in regard to British dependencies in East Africa in which they declared that the responsibility and trusteeship for the negro people of those dependencies could not be separated from that House and the Imperial Government. Unless the British Government was prepared to do more for the British negro population dependent upon the sugar industries in the West Indies until sugar prices were more in consonance with the cost of production, they would not be carrying out the trusteeship which they had proclaimed. The cheapest way in which the Chancellor of the Exchequer could fulfil the responsibilities of the Imperial Government was the proposal before the Committee. It would increase the rate of preference given by Great Britain to the West Indies and Mauritius to the rate given by Canada. The cost, he understood, would be about £700,000. If the proposal were rejected, and if the industry was allowed to be extinguished and a dole or relief work had to be provided, he did not believe the Chancellor of the Exchequer would get out of the difficulty under at least £1,000,000 a year.

Mr. TINNE (Liverpool, Wavertree, U.) said that undoubtedly we ought to have an Imperial supply of sugar under British control. If the industry in the West Indies was destroyed the Dutch and American producers, who were not philanthropists, would squeeze this country once it was in their hands.

Mr. SNOWDEN said that there was no difference of opinion in any part of the House in deploring and sympathizing with the condition of those engaged in the sugar industry in every part of the world. The increase in world production of sugar, resulting in an abnormal fall in price, had for the time being reduced the sugar-producing countries to a most deplorable state. He did not deny that this country had responsibilities in the matter; the question was by what means, and how far, we could meet those obligations and give assistance to those people. He was sure it was the desire of all parties to help the industry so far as possible; but it must be said that there were, at any rate, some parts of the Colonies concerned where the efficiency of the sugar industry left much to be desired. Whole islands were given up entirely to the sugar industry. That was unfortunate, and it was a state of things that could not be remedied at once; but the experience of recurring crises ought to show the desirability of trying to have other industries. It had been said that the proposed increase of 1s. a hundredweight in the preference would cost £700,000; but that was a woful underestimate. The cost, including the increased preference to British-made beet sugar [UNIONIST MEMBERS.—"Why?"] would be at least £1,500,000. The increase of 1s. a hundredweight would do nothing, with present world prices, to put the West Indian sugar industry in a better position; and for the reasons which he had given—the cost of the preference and its ineffectiveness—he could not accept the motion. The Government had already made arrangements for the banks to give credits for next year's crops, and the Dominion Office was in communication with the governors to ascertain what was likely to be needed if distress should arise on a large scale. If assistance were needed for such a state of things as that the Government were prepared to give it.

Mr. AMERY (Birmingham, Sparkbrook, U.) said the reply of the Chancellor of the Exchequer was profoundly unsatisfactory. The Government's proposal to share some fraction of the loss which the banks would incur if they advanced some money to a sinking industry was useless. Their other proposal was to make inquiries as to what possible doles might be wanted later on when the policy of the Government had reduced the Colonies to a state of pauperism. The sum of £700,000 would be perfectly sufficient to meet the situation, and it was open to consideration whether British beet sugar, which enjoyed a measure of subsidy far greater than the preference to the West Indian sugar, should necessarily be given an addition to the present bounty. Even if the cost were greater than the figure named, it would be far better to keep people at work than to keep them in idleness. Mr. Snowden said there ought to be other industries in those Colonies. He might as well have said that the people of Great Britain should stop their manufacturing industries and grow fruit. Alternative industries were not possible and the Colonies ought to be helped to do what they could do in their present emergency.

SIR H. CROFT (Bournemouth, U.) asked the Committee to consider whether the policy of the Chancellor of the Exchequer was not one more nail in the coffin of British industry.

The clause was negatived by 246 votes to 141.

Mr. WOMERSLEY (Grimsby, U.) moved a new clause providing for relief from duty of hydro-carbon oil used as a raw material or in the process of manufacture.

Mr. SNOWDEN resisted the new clause, which was negatived.

Mr. WISE (Leicester, E., Lab.) moved a new clause to enable estate duty to be paid in the form of land or other forms of real property. He said that the only solution of the problem of land ownership in this country was as rapidly as possible to transfer land from private to public ownership.

Mr. SNOWDEN said the clause raised a very big question, and in any case the proposal could not be carried out by the proposed method. If land were accepted for estate duty the Treasury would have to sell the land. He would, however, promise that within the next 12 months he would look further into the question as to whether anything could be done to facilitate the public acquisition of land at a more rapid rate.

The proposed clause was negatived.

A new clause, moved by COMMANDER SOUTHBY, to exempt playing fields from increase of assessment under Schedule A was resisted by Mr. PETHICK-LAWRENCE and negatived by 215 votes to 116—majority, 99.

SIR H. NIELD (Ealing, U.) moved a new clause to provide that applications by spouses for separate assessment for income-tax or surtax should have effect until revoked.

Mr. SNOWDEN accepted the clause, which was read a second time and added to the Bill.

The British North America Bill was read a second time.

INTER-PARLIAMENTARY UNION

27 NATIONS SENDING DELEGATIONS

For the conference of the Inter-Parliamentary Union, which is to be held in London from July 16 to July 22, delegations are coming from 27 nations, including Great Britain and counting the Dominions and Colonies, apart from Canada and the Irish Free State, who are already members of the Union. The delegations vary from one member up to about 50, and the approximate numbers so far advised are 500 delegates, with 175 members of their families accompanying them. The lists of names are not yet complete, but among the delegations will be:—

BELGIUM.—Comte Carton de Wiart, former Prime Minister, President of Belgian Group; M. Poncelet, Vice-President of the Chamber of Representatives; three ex-Ministers.

BULGARIA.—M. Mediaroff, ex-Minister.

IRELAND.—Professor M. Tierney, Chairman of the Irish Group.

LITHUANIA.—M. Paul Kalnins, President of the Saeima; M. Paulucks, Vice-President of the Saeima.

NORWAY.—M. J. W. Mellbye, ex-Minister.

On account of the critical Parliamentary situation in Germany it is feared that only a small portion of the original delegation will be able to get away to London. A contingent of 25 delegates is coming from the United States and about 25 from the several Dominions.

OPPOSITION FOR MR. CHURCHILL AT EPPING

A meeting held in Epping Market Place last night, at which there were about 300 people present, passed a resolution approving of the prospective candidature of Lieutenant-Colonel Neil Stewart-Richardson at the next General Election, in opposition to Mr. Churchill. The meeting was convened by a recently formed organization, described as the Epping Empire Party Association, working in conjunction with the United Empire Party. Pamphlets of the United Empire Party were distributed at the meeting. In his speech LIEUTENANT-COLONEL STEWART-RICHARDSON said he was a lifelong Conservative, who believed in the policy advocated by Lord Beaverbrook and Lord Rothermere, and if elected he would support the immediate imposition of import duties on all goods produced or manufactured in countries outside the British Empire. The new prospective candidate will open his campaign next week at a meeting at Woodford, the largest polling district in the Epping Division, where Mr. Churchill had his headquarters in 1924 and last year.

THE BANKERS' DECLARATION

At a meeting of the Executive Committee of the Empire Industries' Association, held at the House of Commons yesterday, the following resolution was unanimously adopted:—

"The Executive Committee of the Empire Industries' Association cordially welcome the bankers' manifesto in support of the policy for which their association has consistently stood since it was formed five years ago, and calls for a united effort to give effect at the earliest possible date to a full policy of safeguarding and Imperial economic unity as the vital method of solving the economic problems of this and other Empire countries."

ARMY TRAINING

THE 5TH DIVISION AND "SIGNALS"

MORE RECRUITS WANTED

(FROM A MILITARY CORRESPONDENT)

CATTERICK CAMP, JULY 7

Now that the 50th Territorial Division has left Catterick I have had time to see something of the Regular troops. They include a large proportion of the 5th Division of the Expeditionary Force (Major-General W. St. G. Kirke), which was quartered in Ireland before the War, and the headquarters of the Royal Signals (Brigadier C. H. Prickett), which was recently formed as a separate branch of the Army to meet a need that was disclosed by experience of warfare under modern conditions.

The Catterick training area, which is now available for the use both of Regulars and of Territorials, is shown on the attached map, with the very desirable extension which is now proposed. The present area covers about 14,000 acres of varied ground, from which an abnormally large proportion must be deducted on account of the policy—economical in capital expenditure, but very expensive in subsequent upkeep—of adapting widely scattered War-time huts covering an area which was occupied by about 40,000 troops in the War to accommodate about a quarter of that number, instead of building regular barracks like those at Aldershot and at Tidworth. This policy entails the expensive upkeep of many miles of roads. Judging by their appearance in this exceptionally dry season I should say that some of them will be impassable next winter, and in some cases there is an urgent need for footpaths for the safety of children in these days of motor traffic.

No time has been lost by the 5th Division troops in continuing their training since the departure of the Territorials. Very happy relations have been established with the Royal Air Force, who take part in all Army competitions and cooperate in the training. The Wath Gill camp, on the eastern edge of Stainton Moor, is already occupied by a concentration of machine-gunners of the 5th Inniskilling Dragoons (the 5th Divisional Cavalry) and those of the 14th Infantry Brigade, whose place will be taken by those of the 15th Infantry Brigade from York until the beginning of August, when the 55th West Lancashire Territorial Division (Major-General H. W. Higginson) will arrive here from the Western Command. The machine-gunners of the 13th Brigade will begin their machine-gun concentration on August 18, directly after that division leaves. The troops of the 5th Division will thenceforward settle down to carry out the training programme explained in The Times of June 9. Priority is being given by the Regulars to the needs of the Territorial Army, and this is naturally interfering to some extent with their own training, which is also curtailed by the weakness of the units. Recruiting for the Regular Army appears to be unsatisfactory and battalions of infantry to be much below their establishment. In spite of this lack of men I have been much struck by the work that has been done to keep the roads tidy and to improve the general appearance of the camp. Judging by results, all leisure time must be spent by the troops in gardening, to which zest has been added by preparation for a flower show, at which Princess Mary, Countess of Harewood, will present the prizes, on July 22.

SIGNAL CORPS' HOME

At the Signal Training Centre I found the training classes in full swing. This is the permanent home—somewhat like Woolwich for the Artillery, Chatham for the Engineers, and Aldershot for the R.A.S.C.—of the Royal Signals. Recruits join the Service here, and young officers come here for instruction when they leave Woolwich, finding a good and economical mess (I asked specially about the mess bills) and a healthy country life for those with instincts for sport, which Signal Corps pay (obtainable when duly qualified) helps them to enjoy. A three-months' mechanical transport course at Aldershot completes their training for a career of great interest, with exceptional opportunities of meeting other arms, of knowing all that is going on during combined exercises, and so of studying their profession. A few are selected for study at Cambridge. Foreign service is arranged in fixed five-year tours. Besides the School of Signals and the Recruit Depôt, the Signal Training Centre contains a training battalion in which all ranks serve before they are drafted elsewhere. There are large classes at the School for regimental officers and other ranks of all arms of the Service, for wireless telegraphy specialists, and for instructors for the Territorial Army. The total numbers vary between 1,500 and 2,000, and the officers' mess sometimes contains as many as 120 officers of all branches of the Army.

When I have been watching combined training during the past few years I have been much struck by the smart turn-out and high standard of intelligence in members of the "Royal Signals," and it has been interesting to visit their main centre of instruction. The problem of intercommunication between widely dispersed units of new and different arms of the Service in the field is increasing in complication and in importance, so it is difficult to exaggerate the special need for facilities for training being given also to the Signal personnel of the Territorial Army. I understand that the question of reserves on mobilization for the Signals of the Territorials is likely to become a difficult one to solve now that so many girls are replacing men in Post Office telegraphs.

QUARTERS NEEDED

I feel that, before I leave Catterick, it is essential to mention certain urgent needs to provide for essential requirements, in order to make the camp more habitable by Regular troops. The lack of proper attention to the welfare of the soldier increases the difficulty of the recruiting problem, already serious. First and foremost I place the need for more married accommodation for all ranks. There is a great lack of houses for married officers. For the wives and families of other ranks on the married establishment there is a serious demand for more quarters. I understand that the War Office is making provision for these needs. Those not married "on the strength" suffer great hardship, accommodation for them being either non-existent, or only obtainable at exorbitant prices. As much as 15s. a week is charged them for a single room, compared with about 5s. a week for whole cottages in rural districts in other parts of the country. Quarters are also needed for the numbers of civilians that must inevitably be employed on works connected with the camp and on the roads. Further facilities for recreation form another essential. Extra grounds will doubtless be furnished in course of time. Some are being constructed (one of them involving the excavation of 23,590 cubic yards of clay), but even when these have been completed there will still be a need for indoor accommodation, especially for a large covered hall in which competitions can be held. The Army Sports Control Board has helped to the limit of its abilities. Local regimental funds are low owing to the heavy cost of altering the pitch of band instruments, especially in an area where distances are great and band engagements are difficult to obtain. For the officer who hunts and shoots Catterick, thanks to the friendly attitude of the hunts and of local residents, should be a popular station. For those less well off there is no golf course within a distance that can be covered at reasonable expense.

In spite of all difficulties—some of them avoidable if more capital had been expended on buildings to save subsequent upkeep—strenuous work is being done by the troops to improve their surroundings. Catterick is already an asset to the countryside, taking an increasing part in local life. The camp contains the largest concentration of troops in the country. It has been called the Aldershot of the North, but for the soldier, especially in winter, it must for a long time be an Aldershot without some of its amenities.

THE KING OF SPAIN

VISITS TO CAMBERLEY AND SANDHURST

(FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT)

CAMBERLEY, JULY 7

The King of Spain to-day paid visits to the Staff College, Camberley, and the Royal Military College, Sandhurst.

His Majesty first went to the Staff College, where he was received by the Commandant, Major-General C. W. Gwynne, and was conducted over the institution. Members of the staff were introduced to him. King Alfonso had luncheon at the college with the Commandant and officers.

After luncheon he motored to the Royal Military College, where a ceremonial parade of the gentlemen cadets was arranged in his honour. Major the Hon. Bertram Foljambe received his Majesty and showed King Alfonso points of interest, including the tablet which commemorates the residence there of his father (Alfonso XII.).

The King of Spain, accompanied by Major Foljambe, afterwards motored on to the college itself, and in the King's walk leading to the parade ground was received by the Commandant, Major-General E. H. Girdwood, and the Assistant Commandant, Colonel E. D. H. Tollemache, with whom he walked to the saluting point immediately in front of which the battalion of gentlemen cadets was drawn up in line under the command of Captain E. E. J. Moore, Adjutant of the College. The King's Colour and the Regimental Colour were carried, and the Champion Company—No. 5—which was the extreme right of the line, having with them the King George V. Banner. Having been received with a Royal salute, King Alfonso, who wore the service dress of a Field-Marshal of the British Army, inspected the cadets and later they marched past his Majesty, who took the salute. Subsequently he visited the Memorial Chapel, which commemorates over 4,000 former Sandhurst cadets who fell in the Great War, and then proceeded to inspect the new buildings.

NAVAL, MILITARY, AND AIR FORCE

NEW CRUISERS

The new cruiser DORSETSHIRE, built at Portsmouth, and which commissioned for trials on June 24, is to be completed at the end of September. Orders are issued for her to commission at Portsmouth with a Devonport crew for service in the Second Cruiser Squadron, relieving H.M.S. FROBISHER. Captain I. W. Gibson, O.B.E., M.V.O., late Director of the Naval Air Division, has been appointed to the DORSETSHIRE. The FROBISHER, on relief, will be placed in reserve at standard notice, at the end of the Atlantic Fleet summer leave period, early in September. The port at which the vessel will reduce is still under consideration.

The completion of the DORSETSHIRE will leave only one cruiser actually under construction for the Royal Navy. This is the EXETER, of the 1927 programme. The 1928 programme (SURREY and NORTHUMBERLAND) was cancelled entirely last year, and the 1929 programme was reduced to one ship (the LEANDER), the keel of which is not yet laid. The EXETER is due to be finished in June, 1931.

COMMAND OF THE WARSPITE

To-day Captain C. A. Scott takes command of the WARSPITE, at present in dock at Portsmouth. The WARSPITE was relieved in May as flagship of the Commander-in-Chief in the Mediterranean by the QUEEN ELIZABETH, and is in future to belong to the Atlantic Fleet. Captain A. H. Walker, O.B.E., has commanded her since January, 1929. He is next on the list to Captain Scott, both officers having been promoted in June, 1920. Captain Scott has recently been studying at the Tactical Course, Portsmouth.

The drifter FUMAROLE is ordered to be attached to the WARSPITE. The drifter CLOUD, on the reduction of the FURIOUS to special complement on July 1, has been placed in the Atlantic Fleet reserve of drifters in place of the FUMAROLE.

RETURN OF THE SUFFOLK

The programme for the return home of the SUFFOLK, Captain G. S. Arbuthnot, D.S.O., from the China Station, shows that she is due at Singapore to-morrow, and will leave again on Thursday for a four-days' special visit to Penang from the 11th to 15th. Her subsequent programme is:—Colombo, June 19-22; Aden, June 29; Suez, July 3-4; Port Said, July 4; Malta, July 7-11; Gibraltar, July 14-15; Portsmouth, July 19. The SUFFOLK is to refit and recommission, and is expected to be ready to leave again for the Far East on October 5, arriving at Hong-kong on November 21.

U.S. MIDSHIPMEN'S CRUISE

The United States Naval Academy Practice Squadron is due to leave Kiel to-morrow for Oslo, Norway, where it will stay from July 11 to 14. It will then go to the Firth of Forth and anchor off Leith, to enable those on board to visit Edinburgh and other places in Great Britain. The squadron is to stay at Leith from the 16th to the 28th. It is commanded by Rear-Admiral Harris Laning, and includes the ARKANSAS (flagship), FLORIDA, and UTAH. Nearly 1,000 midshipmen are on board from the Academy at Annapolis. A third class is not making the cruise, as its members were required for aviation instruction. According to the latest available figures, there are 2,008 midshipmen training at the U.S. Naval Academy, whereas the total of cadets and midshipmen in the Royal Navy amounts to 1,064.

RELIEVED DESTROYERS SCRAPPED

Concurrently with the completion of the new flotilla built under the 1927 Estimates, consisting of the leader CODRINGTON and eight destroyers of the "A" class, and with the return home of the leader KEPPEL and eight destroyers of the "W" class to reduce to reserve, the Admiralty have ordered a similar number of older units to be scrapped. This is necessary if the total tonnage is to be kept within the quota allowed under the London Naval Treaty. The vessels selected for disposal are the flotilla leader SAUMAREZ, hitherto in reserve at Devonport and attached to the engineering college at Keyham, and the destroyers TEAZER, TILBURY, SPLENDID, SHARK, SPARROWHAWK, SIMOOM, SEABEAR, and TACTICIAN. The TEAZER belongs to the Thornycroft "R" class, and the rest to the Admiralty "S" class. All were completed in 1917-18. The TEAZER, TILBURY, and SPLENDID are in service as emergency destroyers at Chatham, Portsmouth, and Gibraltar respectively. Their places will be taken by the SCOUT, SALADIN, and SHAMROCK, from the Maintenance Reserve at Rosyth. The other five destroyers have been for some time in this Reserve at Rosyth.

DEVONPORT TORPEDO SCHOOL

H.M.S. VULCAN, as soon as possible after relief by the TITANIA, lately serving in China, in the early autumn, is to be moved to Devonport to form part of the DEFIANCE, torpedo training establishment. This at present consists of the DEFIANCE, late second-rate wooden ship-of-the-line, launched at Pembroke in 1861, and of the SPARTAN, CLEOPATRA, and INCONSTANT. The TITANIA was built as a merchant ship, and purchased for naval service in 1915, since when she has been used as a parent ship for submarines.

H.M.S. RESOLUTION

Foreign service leave is now being given to the crew of the battleship RESOLUTION, Captain the Hon. Barry Bingham, V.C., O.B.E., which returned to Devonport on June 25 for refit. The port watch proceeded on leave on July 1, and the starboard watch will go on foreign service leave on the return of the former. The RESOLUTION is due to pay off, her crew having joined on December 30, 1927, but no date for recommissioning is yet announced. The ship is to return to the Mediterranean after refit.

GUIDE TO COMMISSIONS

The Army Council has issued a concise and handy "General Guide to a Commission in His Majesty's Land Forces (Regular and Territorial Army and Supplementary Reserve)." This pamphlet, which can be obtained direct from H.M. Stationery Office, or through any bookseller (price 1s. net), gives an outline of the functions and organization of each branch of the land forces. It contains also in each case a summary of the information about conditions of service, qualifications, pay, and methods of appointment which a prospective applicant for a commission or his parents require to know. An attractive addition to the booklet is a series of photographs illustrating the training and recreation of the Army of to-day.

AIR FORCE ALLOWANCES

When a grant is made from the Air Ministry Entertainment Fund towards the expenses incurred in entertaining foreign visitors the officer who is detailed to act as conducting officer, and who is necessarily entertained with the mission, is not entitled to subsistence allowance if his absence does not exceed 10 hours. If the period of absence exceeds 10 hours but does not extend over a night the officer will be eligible only for the difference between the higher and lower rates of daily subsistence allowance, i.e., 4s., states a new Air Ministry Order. When absence for a night or a longer period is involved reference is to be made to the Ministry, so that a suitable rate of subsistence allowance may be fixed.

Publication of a new weekly journal, the Canadian Defence Gazette, has just been begun by the Naval and Military Publishing Company, 7, Wellington-street West, Toronto. It contains regimental and other news concerning the defence forces throughout the Dominion.

CARS OF TO-DAY

THE CADILLAC

(BY OUR MOTORING CORRESPONDENT)

The 8-cylinder Cadillac with a Vanden Plas seven-seater saloon de ville body with sliding roof is a thoroughly luxurious car with up-to-date and smart lines.

The design of the Belgian coachwork is well carried out and the body is completely fitted. There are four large ventilators in the scuttle, two in the top and one in each side. There is a pocket on each front door and also an arm-rest, while a central pull-down rest is also supplied here. The front seats are fixed, but the two rearmost ones, which will take three persons with the double central arm-rest pushed back, can be adjusted and the movement alters the angle of the squabs. There is an arm-roll either side with a flap cupboard in each, and recessed in the sides above are companions of proper size having roller shutter doors with locks—neat and practical fittings. Behind the front seats there is a single sheet glass partition with a winding handle, on either side of which are convenient shelves. Below, in a cupboard, is a folding table, and on each side an occasional seat which gives real comfort, as proper support is afforded to the back; there are arm-rests, and plenty of knee and toe room. These concealed seats when erected do not cramp the passengers behind.

Half the roof, from over the middle of the rear seat up to the partition, can be slid forward after undoing one large handscrew. There is safety glass throughout the car and four big side windows, the foremost glasses of which can be wound right down and the others halfway. Above the top of each window there is a glass louvre. A good view is obtained from any of the seats and the one-piece screen in front can be opened sufficiently. The car, supplied for test by Messrs. Lendrum and Hartman, had a dictaphone, and a folding grid at the back, though there were no protecting bars for the back panel. Tools are sensibly arranged in side drawers under the front seats and there is locker space by the valances. A spare disk wheel with 31in. by 6.75in. tire was carried in a well in each front wing. Wire wheels can be had for a slight extra cost, and the standard tires are 33in. by 7in. There is good entrance to the car from either side, front and back. The chassis cost £835, and this saloon de ville £1,555. The wheelbase is 11ft. 8in., and track and ground clearance 4ft. 9in. and just under 9in.

The eight cylinders are arranged in two blocks at 90deg., and the side valves and tappets are within the V. The carburettor and exhaust-heated mixing chamber fill up the centre of the V, but when these parts have been lifted out the tappets can be adjusted. They are oiled by mist. The bore and stroke are 85.72 and 125.41 mm., which make the capacity 5,786c.c. The nominal horse-power is 36.4, but 95 is said to be given off at 2,900 r.p.m. The crankshaft runs in three bearings, and there is a single camshaft. The sparking plugs are in the heads; both these parts can be easily got at for removal. For tidiness, there are metal covers over the two sets of plugs and also over the carburettor mixing chamber. The cylinder blocks are separate from the crankcase. In the front of the V there are the vertically driven make-and-break and distributor. These electrical parts might be insulated from the heat of the exhaust manifold. The coil is above and held to the V headstays of the radiator. An inlet and exhaust manifold is held on the inner side to each block, and the exhausts are joined towards the front of the engine on the nearside where the exhaust pipe is taken down and below a shield.

The carburettor is fed from an autovac tank with a glass bowl filter below it and a constant supply is helped by a pump at the back of the engine. The reservoir at the rear of the chassis holds 21 gallons and has a good-sized filler, but no gauze, towards the offside. There is a six-bladed fan, the bearings of which are oiled from the engine and the belt can be adjusted vertically. The film and honeycomb radiator is in a shell and there are thermostatic shutters and a thermometer on the instrument board. Timing is by chain without means of adjustment, but a second chain, which drives the forwardly placed water pump and the generator behind on the offside, can be tensioned. The pump is of good size and has an adjustable gland, while there should be sufficient clearance for repacking. Drainage of the radiator itself is awkward, but there is a screw tap, which can be got at, to empty a good part of the system and the pump-case. The oil filler is little more than a tube and has no gauze. There is a circular oil filter on the dash, the relief valve is to hand, and the drain plug is in the side of the base. The oil is forced throughout the engine. A convenient inspection lamp is in the dash under the bonnet; this can be pulled out on its flexible wire when desired.

The steering box contains worm and sector, and the anchorage of the front end of the offside forward spring is spring loaded for damping shocks. Eight-cylinder engine, dry plate clutch, and special three-speed centrally controlled gearbox form a unit which is held at three points. The distance between the engine casing and the front bearing might be less, but there is a handy grease valve for the lubrication. The electric light connexions at the bottom of the steering column are rather tucked away. The clutch spigot has a ball bearing which is automatically lubricated. The clutch and brake pedals are held to the frame, are more or less independent of the clutch housing, and work with roller bearings. The travel of the clutch pedal can be altered. The speed lever works flexibly, but has no stop for reverse. The synchro-mesh second and top gears, by means of dogs and clutches, simplify gear-changing and conduce to quietness. The device allows the respective parts to be engaged with their speeds approximated, and thus avoid wide variations which are the causes of difficulty in ordinary gear-changing. The box has a level plug in the nearside, but it might well have a top filler. The propeller-shaft is enclosed in a torque tube, and the universal joint in front is automatically oiled. There is no central bearing for the shaft. The back axle, which has a banjo case, spiral bevel drive, and straight stays, is three-quarter floating. A level plug has to suffice for oil replenishment.

There are four-wheel brakes, and the central hand lever operates an extra shoe in each back drum. Rods are used for the rear brakes and cables for the front. The front brake mechanism might be more simple, and regulation all round, which is made individually, could be more convenient. I like the brake-shafts being carried in roller bearings; the drums which enclose the shoes are of good size. There are anti-distortion rings. The front brake operating spindles have anchorage to the frame. The springs fore and aft are half-elliptical and have gaiters; they have a little camber, but work with double-acting hydraulic shock absorbers. There are no stops at the back of the front springs, but large movement cannot take place.

I give the greatest speeds without undue noise on first, second, and top at about 30, 45, and 70 miles an hour. The forward gear ratios are 4.7, 8.5, and 14.1 to 1. The test rates were not out of the way, but the car is, of course, large and fairly heavy. There were three persons on board. The roads were dry, and on the outward journey there was a slight head wind. Fifty-eight miles an hour was reached on the stretch, the new Dashwood Hill was taken at 30 and 53 on top, and, with a standing start on the highest gear, the old rough-surfaced hill was climbed at 20 at the crest. This Cadillac is a most pleasing car to drive, as all the controls work well and in conformity with a car of large power. A yellow sun visor saves considerable eye fatigue. The engine is very smooth and flexible enough to do all its normal work on top, while with the gearbox clutches early changes down and late changes up can be made without sound and with simple movements provided the motions are taken slowly. The gear lever is handy and allows the driver to get to his seat from either side. The engine kept cool and was quiet. The clutch took up the drive as it should, though the pedal and that of the brakes stand out rather far. The hand brakes were efficient, though the lever might be a little easier to reach and work. The pedal brakes, except for a slight tendency to pull to the offside, were good both forwards and backwards, being strong without needless force and well graded. The suspension enables the car to travel smoothly, and a driver gets a comfortable feeling of stability. The steering lock is very fair for the size of car. I found the action light yet quite free of shake. The body was most comfortable everywhere.

"Cars of To-day"—the seventh annual edition—containing 94 complete reviews, and a new and enlarged edition of "The Art of Driving" are published by The Times Publishing Company, Printing House-square, E.C.4, at 2s. and 1s. 3d. respectively, or can be had from booksellers, newsagents, or bookstalls.

The Postmaster-General states that the loss to the Post Office due to free redirection of letters and postcards is roughly estimated at £125,000 a year.

The Estate Market

COMPTON PARK

HEATH BROW

The characteristic of Wren's work has been defined by Mr. J. Alfred Gotch (Past-President of the Royal Institute of British Architects) in "The Growth of the English House" (B. T. Batsford, Ltd.) as "splendid common-sense"; and of Grinling Gibbons the same incomparable critic says that his work "asserted its independence, grew high in relief, assumed naturalistic forms, and challenged admiration on its own account by its lifelike modelling and wonderful execution.

The extract is from a historical and architectural summary, prepared by Messrs. George Trollope and Sons, of the Wiltshire seat, Compton Park, a house of the school of Wren and Gibbons. The castellated stone house, whence Colonel Penruddocke set forth in 1655 to head a Royalist movement which cost him his life, remained in the possession of his family. To the work of the best artists and craftsmen of that period was later added a perfect example of the architectural genius of Robert Adam, the drawing room. In one respect the house embodies a modern feature, that is, it is of two floors only, ground and upper.

The estate of 1,330 acres, eight miles west of Salisbury, will be sold at the Mart on July 23, by Messrs. George Trollope and Sons and Messrs. Rawlence and Squarey. The woods carry a large stock of game, although no rearing has been done for some years. Three golf courses are within easy reach, and so are meets of four or five packs of hounds. Trout up to 4½lb. can be caught in the Nadder, which bounds the estate for three miles.

August 8 is the date of the auction of Rood Ashton by Messrs. Knight, Frank and Rutley and Messrs. Simmons and Sons, at Trowbridge. The park contains a lake of seven acres. The sale will include the mansion, park, and dairy farms, 380 acres in all.

Messrs. Knight, Frank and Rutley and Mr. Warrington Bennett are to offer the remaining portions of Thickthorn, Kenilworth, 130 acres, including "Kenilworth Lodge" and "The Woodlands," and Thickthorn stud farm.

This afternoon, at their Brompton-road Mart, Messrs. Harrods, Limited, will sell Rudloe Park, 45 acres, near Chippenham; an Isle of Wight freehold of six acres at Niton Undercliff; Surrey properties at Bookham, with Messrs. Enticknap and Enticknap, and Ditton Hill, with Messrs. Ellis and Sons, and in Chipstead; a Newbury house and nine acres, with Messrs. Dreweatt, Watson and Barton; and a long lease in Thurloe-square. An Amersham house has been sold before the auction.

Heath Brow, an old-fashioned house at Hampstead Heath, for a time the residence of Sir Hall Caine, will be sold in the autumn by Messrs. Prickett and Ellis (Highgate and Chancery-lane). It is 430ft. above sea level, close to Spaniard's-road and the flagstaff.

Nearly an acre on Lynsters Farm, Chalfont St. Peter, is about to be sold by St. Thomas's Hospital for £150, failing any higher offer.

Shadwell's "Bury Fair" is quoted in the particulars of Norfolk House, which is for sale on July 22 by Messrs. Hampton and Sons at St. James's-square, by order of the Duke of Norfolk. The site of 28,840 square feet has 107ft. of frontage to St. James's-square and 70ft. to Charles-street. Some of the bedrooms are 24ft. by 18ft., the ball-room is 21ft. wide and twice as long, and the salon 65ft. by 21ft. Old Norfolk House, part of the freehold for sale, birthplace of George III., has a site of 3,420 square feet, and it is at the end of the garden as approached from St. James's-square.

FRANCE AND ITALY

RELATIONS WITH THE LEAGUE

TO THE EDITOR OF THE TIMES

Sir,—According to your Paris message this morning, my "proposal" that the Council of the League of Nations "should be invited to intervene in the Franco-Italian dispute" has not been "very well received" in France. However deplorable this may be, it leaves the merits of my suggestion unaffected.

I did not "propose" that the League Council should be invited to intervene. I suggested that, in view of the notoriously strained relations between France and Italy, and of the danger that some new incident might strain them still more, members of the League who are not so directly interested as Great Britain is in Mediterranean affairs should watch the situation vigilantly so as to be ready to take action under Article 11 of the League Covenant in case of need. Any acute danger of armed conflict between two members of the League would undoubtedly be brought, sooner or later—and perhaps too late—to the notice of the League Council. But, without forethought and accurate information, the Council might not be requested to act at the most opportune moment.

One of the objects of Article 11 is to remind members of the League that international disputes in which they may be engaged will be brought before the League Council, and that it may be better for them to have a good case for presentation to the Council than to possess armies and navies strong enough to enforce their real or supposed rights on the battlefield. The purpose of the League is to replace the arbitrament of force by the arbitrament of right; and an appeal to the League Council is a means of bringing the moral judgment of the world to bear upon any international quarrel.

These simple truths seem to have been overlooked in Italy and in France. An eminent French publicist, who has been so good as to address to me an "Open Letter" on this subject, argues that though Frenchmen are "good internationalists" they may not welcome international interference in their private differences with other countries.

His argument misses two points. The first is that whenever the affairs of nations are in danger of leading to conflict they cease to be private and become matters of public interest to the whole League. In a degree not yet sufficiently defined they become also matters of public interest to all the signatories of the Kellogg Pact. The second point is that the League Covenant is an integral part of the Versailles Treaty. Article 11 of that Treaty, which is also Article 11 of the League Covenant, is no less binding than are the Articles dealing with Reparations, or Articles 42 and 43, which provide for the permanent demilitarization of the Rhineland. To deny, even by implication, the validity of any clause of the Peace Treaty is to deny the validity of the rest.

The only way for France and Italy to avoid "international interference" in their affairs is for them so to manage those affairs as not to run the risk of disturbing "international peace or the good understanding between nations upon which peace depends," lest some member of the League exercise "the friendly right" which Article 11 bestows upon it to bring to the attention of the Assembly or the Council "any circumstance whatever" that may be inimical to peace.

I am, Sir, yours obediently,
WICKHAM STEED.

THE POLAR EXHIBITION

TO THE EDITOR OF THE TIMES

Sir,—The appreciative notice in your issue of July 3 on the subject of the British Polar Exhibition is very encouraging. May we add to it by pointing out to all the very great interests—historic, scientific, sentimental, and picturesque—that may be seen and, indeed, the inspiring nature of the whole exhibition? The inner room with its personal treasures of many expeditions—Robert Scott's letter to Mrs. Wilson, the relics of various expeditions, Dr. Wilson's very beautiful water-colours on the screen in the main hall—all these are worth close inspection. The progress in the fishing industry and in the scientific preparation of both instruments and food are of great interest.

It is greatly to be hoped that boys in particular will be encouraged to go, for there is much to inspire a spirit of adventure and unselfishness. Those who would follow the course of Mr. Watkins's expedition to Greenland will gain a better understanding by studying the conditions of life as shown in this exhibition. The history of both Arctic and Antarctic endeavour is complete.

Yours faithfully,
W. E. GOODENOUGH.

THE OLDER CLERGY

TO THE EDITOR OF THE TIMES

Sir,—In your issue of the 5th inst. you published a letter signed "Rector" in which he complained that an older incumbent could not get a pension under the Clergy Pensions (Older Incumbents) Measure, 1930, unless he is "finished off" by a Medical Board. In other words, your correspondent complains that such a clergyman must work until physical or mental disability makes it utterly impossible for him to do so. This is not the case. The wording of the Measure on this particular point is:—

> "An older incumbent must assign as the ground of his desire to retire . . . that he is incapacitated from the due performance of his duties either by permanent mental or bodily infirmity or by old age."

The Pensions Authority, in deciding to accept the plea of old age, will take all the circumstances into consideration, and there can be no doubt that many incumbents will enter into the enjoyment of a pension by reason of old age, though they may not be in serious ill-health, as has happened in the past with regard to the non-contributing grants of £75 a year, granted formerly by the Ecclesiastical Commissioners and, after the Clergy Pensions Measure, 1926, came into force by the Pensions Authority.

Yours faithfully,
CECIL LITCHFIELD, Secretary.

THE 69TH AT QUATRE BRAS

HISTORY OF THE COLOUR

TO THE EDITOR OF THE TIMES

Sir,—The Society for Army Historical Research is holding its first dinner at the Armoury House of the H.A.C., with H.R.H. the Duke of Connaught in the chair, on July 14. For exhibition on this occasion it may interest some of your readers to know that the Editor of the Society's Journal, Colonel J. H. Leslie, late R.A., has obtained the loan of the King's Colour of the old 69th (South Lincolnshire) Regiment—2nd Battalion, disbanded after the War—which was captured by French cavalry at the battle of Quatre Bras, two days before Waterloo. The Colour will also be on exhibition at the Armoury House on the previous Saturday, July 12, when the H.A.C. are holding their annual military sports.

The circumstances connected with the flag are interesting. Believing that a cavalry charge was imminent, the Brigadier had sent orders to the 69th to form square and prepare to receive cavalry. This movement was in progress when the Prince of Orange, the commander of the Division, rode up and asked what the movement was and, saying that there was no likelihood of a cavalry attack, he ordered the regiment to get back into line. While this was in progress a strong body of French Cuirassiers burst out of a wood on the flank, and, partly hidden by the lie of the ground and the standing corn, rode the regiment down, inflicting heavy loss. One of the French troopers captured the King's Colour and rode away with it. The circumstances of its capture are referred to in several of the Waterloo letters collected and published by Colonel Siborne, and it is evident that no sort of blame could attach to the regiment.

In 1909 Captain Jeffcock, late 6th (Inniskilling) Dragoons, happened to visit the well-known Château d'Azay le Rideau, on the Loire, which the French Government have made into a museum, and in the porter's lodge saw two flags which he was told were for sale. Recognizing one of them as a British flag, he bought it for 600 francs. It turned out on investigation to be the King's Colour captured from the 69th at Quatre Bras. The porter stated that he had received the flags from the curator of the museum in discharge of a debt, and the curator was a member of the family of General Donzelot, who had commanded the French cavalry in question, and retained the Colour in his possession. Captain Jeffcock brought the Colour back to England, and at his death, in 1927, it passed into the possession of his only son, Mr. W. P. Jeffcock.

The Colour was taken to-day to Buckingham Palace for inspection by his Majesty the King, who evinced great interest in its history and its recovery.

Yours faithfully,
DENBIGH.

INDIAN FISCAL POLICY

TO THE EDITOR OF THE TIMES

Sir,—On page 357 of Volume I. of the Report of the Indian Statutory Commission, commonly known as the Simon Commission, it is stated in reference to the recommendations of the Indian Fiscal Commission that

> There was a minute of dissent by five of the Indian members, who, while not disagreeing with the main conclusions of the majority, emphasized the necessity of unqualified protection as the best policy in the interests of the country.

As president of the Indian Fiscal Commission, I hope you will permit me to state the facts and so to remove any misapprehension which may be caused in the public mind here in regard to the views of this minority consisting of five out of the 11 members of the Commission. In the dissenting minute we say:—

> "We are unanimous in recommending that a policy of protection should be adopted. Our disagreement arises from the fact that the policy of protection recommended by our colleagues is qualified by the words 'to be applied with discrimination along the lines of the Report.' We do not know of any other country in the world, including the British Dominions, which has so qualified the policy of protection. While it is perfectly relevant for the Commission to indicate the lines on which protection may be worked in the initial stages, the recommendation of the policy should be clear and unequivocal. While our colleagues recommend 'a policy of protection to be applied with discrimination along the lines of the Report,' our recommendation is that a 'policy of protection' should be adopted in the best interests of India. . . .
>
> "While we agree that the policy of protection should be applied with discrimination, we do not think that any qualifications or limitations should be made a condition precedent to its adoption. . . . We do not subscribe to the condition that such discrimination should be 'along the lines of the Report.' The conditions laid down in Chapter VII. appear to us to be stringent and will entail considerable delay in giving effect to the policy which we have unanimously recommended, and will not produce adequate results. We share the concern shown in the Report for the interests of the consumers and we agree that the policy should be applied in such a manner as to reduce the burden on the consumer to the minimum necessary for the purpose of carrying out the object in view. . . . In all protectionist countries the Government and the legislature, as representing the people, regulate the application of the policy of protection in a manner most suitable to local conditions and circumstances, and there appears to us no reason why the discretion of the Government of India and the Indian Legislature should be fettered in any way."

Yours faithfully,
IBRAHIM RAHIMTOOLA.

CASUAL LABOUR

TO THE EDITOR OF THE TIMES

Sir,—In considering the out-of-work problem is there not one economic factor directly bearing on unemployment which no political party can tackle, namely, the minimum wage of the casual labourer? This wage is stabilized by the "dole" with its automatic increase in accordance with the size of the family.

The question then arises: Is it better for a man to work for a little or be idle on a little? For no man will work for a few shillings more than what he will get doing nothing. Owing to the dole certain independent occupations, such as hawking, &c., are dying out. In agriculture also, in the hill districts the small farmer is disappearing as he finds he cannot make as much as he can get by selling his labour in the towns and industrial districts, coupled with the drawing on the dole when out of work. Moreover, it is obvious that one plot of land cannot always produce as much as another, and that employment on poor land must cease at a wage fixed for better soil.

Now in the agricultural districts the superfluous labour was formerly taken over by the "one man" employer, such as the doctor, the parson, and many folk with small incomes. This employment has quite disappeared; the balance of income at the disposal of these people will not suffice to pay the minimum wage. So also the owners of small estates, who liked everything near their homes to be well attended to (their grounds and gardens made beautiful), have reduced their employees by more than half, not from want of will to employ, but because the amount of money at their disposal also would not pay for more. Similar instances might be quoted ad infinitum, all pointing to the same dominating factor. Would a gradual diminution of the "dole" eventually effect a remedy or are we hopelessly pauperized? It is easy and pleasant to urge the raising of wages all round! But who, who dare suggest that they be lower'd!

Very faithfully yours,
CECIL H. HAIG.

TO CAMBRIDGE BY MADINGLEY

PRESERVING A BEAUTIFUL APPROACH

TO THE EDITOR OF THE TIMES

Sir,—May we, on behalf of the Cambridge Preservation Society, make an earnest appeal to old Cambridge men and all others interested in the beauty of rural England?

Our society has bought a large area of land, threatened with unregulated building development, on and below Madingley Hill, in the hope of safeguarding the most beautiful approach to Cambridge. We have spent in all some £23,000, and hitherto have received only between £10,000 and £11,000 in subscriptions and donations. If the land is to be held safely in perpetuity, and if other necessary and urgent work is to be done before it is too late, the remaining debt of about £15,000 must be paid off.

We regard the amenities of Cambridge as a most valuable part of the educational influence of the place. We ask to be entrusted with funds enough to enable us to discharge our liabilities and meet our other needs. We see that Oxford has raised over £38,000 for a similar cause. contributions may be sent to the secretaries of the society, at Cambridgeshire House, Hills-road, or to the treasurer of the society at Barclays Bank, Cambridge.

THE DISPUTE IN MALTA

TO THE EDITOR OF THE TIMES

Sir,—Professor de Zulueta in his letter of July 3 declines to answer my questions and takes up new ground. He no longer attempts to justify clerical dictation in the Maltese election, and falls back on grave accusations against the British Government. He says, first, "We are denying to the Maltese the right of self-government in a matter that does not touch Imperial interests"; and, secondly, the Government "asked for an inquiry, the verdict has gone against us, and we will have none of it."

A study of the Blue Book will show that the Professor's accusations (imputing to the Government tyranny and bad faith) are without foundation in fact. The action of the Government (to quote their own words) has been dictated by the desire to secure "to the electorate of the Colony complete freedom to exercise their political judgment." If Maltese opinion is so definite and settled (as the Professor infers), why was it not left to express itself freely in the polling booth? Why was it necessary to "direct" these people with threats of eternal damnation? In circumstances such as these what room is there for the "self-government" of which the Professor talks? Are self-government and priest-government synonymous terms?

I regret that I had not hitherto appreciated the finer shades of excommunication. I confess that I did not understand that the ecclesiastical levers controlling the resources of the grace of God could be manipulated with such delicate precision. It is undisputed that the Maltese elector who decided to vote for the Strickland party or the Labour party was to be deemed guilty of mortal sin, he was to be cut off from the sacraments, and any relenting priest who administered these religious consolations would, according to the Maltese Bishops, "draw down the wrath of the Divine Judge." There is not much room for exaggeration here!

The second accusation against the British Government is one of bad faith. I crave leave to answer this odious charge which, if believed, can only debase our reputation in Malta and throughout the world. On March 1, 1929, our Envoy asked the Cardinal Secretary of State for an inquiry to be made. The terms of his request are most important:—

> His Majesty's Government . . . have decided that present conditions in Malta seem to be such as would justify an independent investigation by the Holy See, and I, therefore, have the honour to request your Eminence to consider whether an Apostolic Visitor could not be sent to the island in order to investigate the whole question of the relations of the ecclesiastical authorities in Malta to the political Government, having regard to the importance of avoiding friction in the future as a consequence of the intervention of Maltese priests in politics. It is understood, and your Eminence has emphasized this, that the Holy See wishes to discourage political agitation by priests. The disregard of this rule, and the intense participation of Maltese priests in local politics, it is considered, lie at the root of the present trouble. . . .

The inquiry took place, and Mgr. Robinson, the Delegate Apostolic, returned to Rome on May 29, 1929, with the draft of a definite Concordat, which he himself had generally approved for the settlement of outstanding differences.

From that time onward the British Government pressed for the completion of the Concordat having regard to the urgency of settlement before the elections of 1930. That request has never been complied with. The main ground for the failure to effect the promised settlement was the attempt of the Vatican to impose the belated condition that Lord Strickland, the Prime Minister of a British Colony, should be somehow eliminated. In his note of March 14, 1930, to Mr. Henderson, the British Envoy reported that the Cardinal Secretary said "that he could tell me quite frankly that no negotiations for a Concordat were possible as long as Lord Strickland was in power. The Pope had said so quite definitely." Negotiations for the Concordat were made impracticable because the Vatican sought at the eleventh hour to impose a condition which no British Government with any regard for self-respect or constitutional rights could have accepted. Will Professor de Zulueta answer this question plainly:—Was the Government, in repudiating this condition, right or wrong?

Seeing, therefore, that Professor de Zulueta's accusations against the British Government are baseless, I suggest that for the sake of the good name of this country, as well as his own reputation as a scholar, he should withdraw them. Surely he himself will recognize the urgency of this, having regard to the existing conditions in Malta.

I am, Sir, your obedient servant,
ISAAC FOOT.

TREASURER'S HOUSE, YORK

TO THE EDITOR OF THE TIMES

Sir,—Your Correspondent in his report of the gift of the Treasurer's House at York to the nation does not say, what I believe to be a fact, that Archbishop Holgate sold the house to find funds for the endowment of Archbishop Holgate's Grammar School in Ogleforth (within the city walls). The school is now in Lord Mayor's Walk, beyond the moat. The Archbishop also founded grammar schools at Malton and Hemsworth. My authority for making this statement is that Mr. Frank Green, on purchasing the house, invited me to go through the deeds with him at the Treasurer's House. If memory serves me, the original school was founded in 1558, and the removal to Lord Mayor's Walk took place in 1858.

I am yours truly.

LETTERS OF D. H. LAWRENCE

TO THE EDITOR OF THE TIMES

Sir,—I shall be most grateful if you will give publicity to the following communication, addressed to all those who may have any letters from the late D. H. Lawrence in their possession. The administrators of Mr. Lawrence's estate have asked me to collect his letters, and arrangements have been made for having them copied and filed. May I therefore ask all those of Lawrence's correspondents to whom I have not already written personally to send their letters to Mrs. Hilton, 44, Mecklenburgh-square, London, W.C.1? The originals will be copied and returned as soon as possible. If it should be decided to publish any of the letters (the copyright in which vests exclusively in the estate) correspondents will be informed which of their letters or parts of letters have been selected.

I am, Sir, yours, &c.,
ALDOUS HUXLEY.

La Gorguette, Sanary (Var), France.

DAMAGE TO THE ROADS

I was motoring last week on the main road from Norwich to London and I noticed between Norwich and Thetford that the road softened by the heat had had deep ruts cut in it by some heavy vehicle. It seemed so monstrous that a very fine main road should be ruined in this way that I determined, if I could overtake the vehicle, to report it to the Ministry of Transport. After following the ruts for some five miles I did overtake it, and found to my surprise that it was unloading shingle beside the road for use on road repairs. I presume the road fund will gladly allocate money to the local authorities to repair the main road which they themselves are destroying.—Mr. E. W. B. GILL, Merton College, Oxford.

THE BANKERS' RESOLUTION

Although in my 70th year, the bankers' resolution adopted at the meeting held at Hambro's Bank on Wednesday last, by lifting the question out of party politics, leads me to believe that I shall live to see complete free trade within the British Empire, to be followed without delay by free trade between the British Empire and the United States of America. Moreover, this accomplished, who can doubt that it will result in the realization of Cobden's great vision of "an ultimate extension of the area of free trade throughout the world," to the everlasting advantage of all?—Mr. C. FREEMAN MURRAY, original Secretary, British Empire League, London.

PIONEERS OF WIRELESS

In your article on Empire Broadcasting on July 4 you say:—"It was in England that the young genius Marconi, well over a quarter of a century ago, found opportunities and official support for his early experiments." Is no credit due to that eminent naval officer, and pioneer of practical wireless, the late Admiral of the Fleet Sir Henry Jackson? Jackson was the first in England to put Hertzian waves into practical use for wireless. The use of wireless as a means of communication first suggested itself to Jackson in 1891 (Marconi was then a lad of about 17 years of age) and in 1895 he introduced it into the Navy. The genius of Marconi is beyond dispute, but Marconi himself would probably admit that when he first visited England, about 1896, Jackson had nothing to learn from him in regard to practical wireless.—VICE-ADMIRAL J. E. T. HARPER, Ilam, Hawkhurst, Kent.

PROFESSOR TONKS

May I supplement your delightful photograph of Professor Tonks by a snapshot of his talent? If one chapter of his public service is closed with honour, another can now be opened. His great decoration of the founders of University College is the finest example of noble decorative art as yet produced in this country. A painter who has such an accomplishment to his credit can be entrusted to give his country a revival of defunct glories. But there must be no eleemosynary sharing out of work considered merely as a financial bit of cake. However many panels are assigned, they must all be designed and signed by him, with such assistants as he may require. Let him have his Lassalle-Bordes, his de Planet, his Andrieu, his Léger, his Delestre, and his de Valerne. But he must be the Delacroix. Who will be the Thiers I cannot tell!—Mr. RICHARD SICKERT, A.R.A.

A ROAD BRIDGE OVER THE FORTH?

The letter of Mr. G. F. Saunders is completely fallacious. This is not a matter of the mileage between London and Aberdeen such as he quotes, but it concerns the mileage between the great and beautiful city of Edinburgh and its environs, e.g., St. Andrews. There is most urgent need for such a bridge. Every man, woman, and child in Fife is calling out for it—except the usual obstructionists. The distance by road via Stirling to St. Andrews is 86 miles, whereas by bridge it would be 49. To have a flourishing county like Fife and a city like Edinburgh cut off from each other by road is discreditable to Britain. I admit that the expenditure of £6,000,000 is preposterous. There is no need to have a kind of Forth Bridge, hundreds of feet above the water. It might be a pontoon bridge, open at certain hours to let ships pass, e.g., the Galata Bridge at Stamboul. Mr. Saunders might see how they do things at Stamboul and elsewhere before writing such a letter. The bridge should not cost £1,000,000.—LIEUTENANT-COLONEL HENRY ALFORD, Pall Mall, S.W.1.

CHANGE FOR A FIVE-POUND NOTE

Mr. H. Frith Allbrook has overlooked the fact that the £5, £1, and 10s. notes are promissory notes payable to bearer, for which coin can be demanded only at the Bank of England. When other banks change them for customers it is an act of courtesy, not from obligation. Bank of England notes are bills of exchange, and read, "I promise to pay Bearer on Demand." The words "on Demand" make them instantly payable on presentation to bearer and deprive them of the three days of grace which usually attach to bills. Being payable to "bearer" no endorsement is necessary, neither can the Bank of England insist on it as a condition of payment. This could only be done if they were payable to "Bearer or Order," which they are not. To sign, stamp, or mark these notes has been made illegal, and though the Bank of England asks the person presenting the note to endorse it, the request can be refused and payment insisted on without it. Failure by the Bank to do this would be a default which, if pursued, might carry with it serious consequences.—Mr. R. J. ALLEN, 1, Stanley-gardens, Cricklewood, N.W.2.

PREACHING IN ST. PAUL'S

As Liddon, who is still held in high honour as a teacher by many, is not now able to reply to his critics, perhaps you would allow him to repeat a passage from one of his sermons delivered in St. Paul's in 1876 (Vol. II., "Easter in St. Paul's"). It was in that year that Archbishop Benson, when visiting St. Paul's, found "his reasoning very persuasive" (Life I. 403):—

> It is indeed sometimes mistakenly supposed that a Christian knows no mental peace, but the peace of mental stagnation; and that in order to be what is oddly called a thinker, a man must needs be a sceptic. It is, of course, true that a Christian is not for ever re-opening questions which he believes to have been settled on the authority of God Himself. And it may therefore be conceded that a sceptic considers a larger number of questions to be really debatable than does a Christian. But this is the only admission that need be made. To believe is not to condemn thought to inertness and stagnation; a man does not do less work at mathematics because he starts with holding the axioms to be beyond discussion. On the contrary, a fixed creed, like that of the Christian, imparts to life and nature such varied interest, that, as experience shows, it fertilizes thought; the human intelligence has on the whole been cultivated most largely among the Christian nations.

—Mr. HENRY T. WROTH, Crawley, Sussex.

SCHOOLBOYS' CRICKET

In a cricket match on July 5, between the Oxford Boys (nearly all of whom are under 14 years), and the St. Edward's School, under 15, on the school ground, all previous batting records in the 10 years' history of the Oxford Scheme went by the board. The school batted first and scored 303 (Paton 112, Cooke 109). The Oxford Boys replied with 144. The game started at 2.15 and finished at 6.15. As the tea interval lasted 20 minutes, no fewer than 467 runs were compiled in 3 hours and 40 minutes. Hence the average rate of scoring was more than two runs a minute. In the course of the game, 80 hits reached the boundary.—Mr. J. R. F. TURNER, Hon. Secretary, Oxford Boys' Cricket Scheme, 199, Iffley-road, Oxford.

SUMMER TIME-TABLES

Is there any power on earth that could persuade the railway and transport companies that it would add to the convenience of the travelling public if their new time-tables were on sale a clear week before their services change instead of about a week after the change has taken place?—M. W. ROGERS, The Manor Cottage, Goldsithney, Marazion, Cornwall.

PUBLIC SCHOOLS AT HENLEY

May I suggest that the Henley Regatta authorities be asked to revise the entry qualifications for the Ladies' Challenge Plate? As matters now stand, year after year we have the unedifying spectacle of crews of courageous young schoolboys rowing their hearts out against eights of university men. Surely it is high time that this unequal, if not unsporting, state of affairs was brought to an end, and the Ladies' Challenge Plate be reserved for competition only among public schools, especially as the Americans are now sending over a school crew. As an Old Radleian myself, I speak feelingly on this subject, and no doubt members of other rowing schools will voice a similar opinion.—Mr. T. D'ARCY-NASSAU, 16, Thurlow-road, Hampstead, N.W.3.

INDEPENDENCE DAY

Might I point out an interesting, apparently little-known, coincidence connected with the Declaration of Independence? When the fiftieth anniversary of Independence Day came round in 1826, there were only two survivors of the delegates who had signed the Declaration on July 4, 1776. Both had in their later days been President of the United States, and both died on that day, July 4, 1826. The one was John Adams, born 1735, second President, who died in Massachusetts. The other was Thomas Jefferson, born 1746, third President, who died in Virginia. The President of that year (1826) was John Quincy Adams, son of John Adams.—Mr. H. BORNS, 5, Sutton Court-road, Chiswick, W.4.

Sartorial Refrigeration

The other morning—when it was about 70 in the shade, 100 in the sun and approximately 21 near anyone who had work to do—we had a sudden rush of visitors to our Tropical Department.

They were not going abroad. They were merely going to work. They had remembered a place in London where sensible hot weather clothes could be obtained—immediately. In a very short time they went on their way rejoicing—wearing well-fitting, cool and comfortable tropical weight suits.

This refrigerating service which our Tropical Department offers is available at Regent Street daily from 9 to 6.30. Saturdays, 9 to 1.

BISLEY MEETING

LIVERPOOL RIFLES' SUCCESS

MORE TERRITORIAL ENTRIES

(FROM OUR SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT)

N.R.A. CAMP, JULY 7

Only one of to-day's matches, the competition for Queen Mary's prize, ranks high. The others, on short and long ranges, are accounted shooting-in practices. The long range events were the Whitehead Memorial Cup, at 900 and 1,000 yards, and the Eandco, at 1,100 yards, both of which are included in the match rifle aggregate. The minor Service rifle events were the Southern Railway, the Kinnaird, and the B.S.A.

Had they been postponed until to-morrow, the Queen Mary might have been completed to-day. The value of the minor matches as shooting-in practices is almost negligible. Most of the competitors had already shot-in—the Regular Services last week and the Territorial shots in two competitions held last night. Queen Mary marksmen would have been better pleased had their match been finished to-day, for to-morrow they have to "shoot blind" in the most difficult practice of the four—the shoot up the range, for which no sighting shots are allowed. There is a pretty general but, I am afraid, hopeless, wish that the N.R.A. will amend the rule and allow "sighters" to-morrow morning.

The Territorial Army R.A., as I have mentioned before, has on its programme eight concurrent matches and two independent shoots. Those two competitions were shot last evening, and the results, published this morning, denote a widening interest in shooting among Territorial battalions. That evidence was found first in the entries for the independent matches, the Rifleman and the Hamilton-Leigh. In the latter event they have risen from 28 teams last year to 39, and in the former from 161 individuals to 240. An entirely new deliberate sweepstakes competition has attracted 329 competitors. The success in the team shoot of a battalion of the West Lancashire Division, which has no opportunities for practice at Bisley, offers further evidence of spreading interest.

The team match was won by the 6th King's Regiment, who still prefer their old title, Liverpool Rifles. That they should have won a snap-shooting match in which the Artists and the London Scottish had entered four teams each, and in which they beat the H.A.C., winners of the principal prize at the recent London District Rifle Meeting, should encourage battalions of the 56th and 47th (London) Divisions to enter the L.D.R.A. competitions in the future with more of hope and confidence.

The individual match was won by Lieutenant C. Burton-Brown, who is still a "young soldier," in spite of the fact that he won his first T.A. championship in 1928 and before that had shot for his school and then for Cambridge University. Another young soldier prominent in that match—he finished fifth—was Lance-Corporal J. Willans, son of the King's Medallist of 1928, who for the first time beat his father at Bisley.

Conditions on the Century range to-day, especially in the earlier hours, were distinctly unfavourable. The light altered frequently, sometimes between sighting and counting shots, and the wind was quite as variable but much more deceptive.

SOUTHERN RAILWAY.—S.R.a. : seven shots at 200 yds. : h.p.s., 35 points. Won last year by C.-S.-M. J. Willans, 4th R. W. Kent Rgt., with 34. Entries, 501 ; last year, 520.—1, Capt. R. MARKSMAN'S PRIZES STOLEN

While Mr. Norman Arkill, the well-known rifle shot, was at Bisley on Saturday, thieves broke into his house at Dorking and took almost all the cups, medals, and other prizes he had won during the past 30 years. The value of the missing property is about £150. The thieves, Mr. Arkill stated yesterday, overlooked two of the biggest cups. They packed up a quantity of plate, but did not take it away.

ATTACK ON TAXICAB DRIVER

THE "CAT" FOR ROBBERY WITH VIOLENCE

At the Sussex Assizes yesterday, MR. JUSTICE AVORY passed sentence of 18 months' imprisonment, with hard labour, and 20 strokes of the "cat," upon JOHN JONES, 23, alias EDWARDS, a joiner, who pleaded "Guilty" to robbery with violence from Alfred Henry Mears, a London taxicab driver, at Lower Beding, on the night of August 17 last year.

Mr. E. H. COHEN said Mears was hired at Maida Vale by two men to drive them to Totehill, Horsham, the residence of Sir William Ewart Greaves. They arrived there at 11 p.m. and went into the grounds, where they were seen by Mr. Douglas Greaves, brother of Sir William, but he refused to have any conversation with them. They returned to the taxi and told Mears to drive them back to London.

Between Horsham and Crawley the cab was stopped by the men, one of whom went to the front where Mears was sitting, hit him on the head with a life-preserver, and robbed him of 38s. Mears was then put into the cab, which the men drove to Kennington Oval, where they left it.

MR. JUSTICE AVORY asked counsel if he was able to give any explanation of the visit to the house at Horsham, which seemed to be mysterious.

Mr. COHEN said that the prisoner had been charged at Uttoxeter, in Staffordshire, by Mr. Douglas Greaves, who was a schoolmaster, with demanding money by menaces. On that occasion he presented a revolver. When the case came before the magistrates the charge was dropped and Jones was convicted of having a revolver without a licence. It was in connexion with that matter that he went down to Horsham. He said he wanted to see Mr. Greaves alone about the affair of last April, the date of the occurrence, but Mr. Greaves refused to see him.

TEST AERODROME AT RADLETT

OPENING BY PRINCE GEORGE

RADLETT (HERTS), JULY 7

Prince George, opening the new Handley Page test aerodrome near here to-day, said he could imagine that the time was not far off when only heavy goods would travel by land, and passengers, either in private aeroplanes or public air liners, would travel by air. This ceremony formed part of the celebrations of the firm's twenty-first birthday and was marked by the exhibition for the first time of a new Handley Page night bomber which differs radically from anything previously produced in this class.

Prince George arrived at the aerodrome in a Wapiti belonging to the 21st Squadron and was escorted by a flight of Siskin fighters, also from Northolt. The opening ceremony took place in the large hangar, where the fuselage of one of the great 40-seater air liners, which are being built for Imperial Airways, stood alongside one of the earliest products of the firm, a very light monoplane, with its decaying wing fabric held together by means of thread. His Royal Highness afterwards spent three hours at the aerodrome examining the various types of aeroplanes and watching them in the air.

Mr. S. R. WORLEY, chairman of the company, presided at the opening. Mr. F. HANDLEY PAGE, managing director, briefly surveyed the history of the firm, in inviting Prince George to declare the aerodrome open.

PRINCE GEORGE'S FORECAST

PRINCE GEORGE said it was particularly encouraging that the firm of Handley Page should be celebrating its twenty-first birthday by acquiring that new aerodrome. It was a sign that aviation was continuing its rapid advance and that the construction of aircraft was taking its place among the country's most important industries. Ever since the company was formed in 1909 it had especially directed its attention to two branches of development —air safety and the evolution of the large-size aircraft— and the progress made in these two branches was largely due to the successful results it had obtained. That aerodrome was another of the many indications that the passenger traffic of the future would go by air. Already the pressure upon ground space in this country, chiefly caused by building operations and road construction, was becoming excessive. He could well imagine that the time was not far off when only heavy goods would travel by land and, whether by private aeroplane or public air liner, passengers would travel by air. Every new aerodrome brought that time closer. Radlett might one day become an important terminus for aircraft coming down from the North. The popularity of air travel now depended more on the aerodrome than on the aircraft. With London and other great cities well served with aerodromes, it would be possible for the motor-car to be devoted primarily to terminal communications and the train to the transport of heavy goods. For journeys of more than 50 or 60 miles passengers would go by the most direct and the quickest route, and that was by air. (Cheers.)

The new night bomber, which was on show for the first time, is still on the Air Ministry's secret list. From an external examination, however, its main features may be discovered. It departs from previous practice in two important particulars. Its fuselage, unusually slim, is suspended close under the upper wing, the centre section of which forms part of it ; and the bombs are carried in 10 compartments in the centre section of the lower wing and are automatically released by the opening of spring doors fitted under every compartment. This ingenious arrangement has allowed the proportions of the high fuselage to be much reduced with a consequent reduction of resistance. The twin-engines are also fitted beneath the upper wing and the very low under-carriage with two hooded wheels appears to have its shock-absorbers and supports carried up to the engine units and the upper wing.

One effect of the new design is to give the machine-gunner amidships a clear view in all directions except down below the wings, for his gun-mounting is above the upper wing. Apparently, attack from below would be met by the second gunner from his firing position in the lower part of the fuselage. The machine, like all Handley Page types, has the monoplane tail, though there is a twin rudder, and its lines are more graceful and suggestive of high speed than those of any earlier night bomber. In flight, unloaded, it was easily managed, and its speed seemed very high for such a type.

The Clive troop-carrier, of the type now in use in India, and the Hinaidi night bomber were also demonstrated.

The new aerodrome is 1,400 yards long and 700 yards wide. On one side of it runs Watling Street, and on the other the main L.M.S. railway line.

LORD MAYOR TRELOAR CRIPPLES' HOSPITAL

FOUNDER'S DAY

ALTON, JULY 7

To-day was Founder's Day at the Lord Mayor Treloar Cripples' Hospital and College, and a large gathering included the Lord Mayor of London and the Lady Mayoress.

LORD BURNHAM, one of the trustees, presiding at a meeting in the recreation room, said that the institution continued successfully as ever to alleviate the suffering of crippled children. There was a great responsibility on the trustees, for the new buildings had cost £100,000, but half of this had been raised, thanks to the lead given by the City of London last year and the coming-of-age celebrations at the Mansion House, and they faced the future with confidence. Lord Burnham paid a high tribute to the medical superintendent, Sir Henry Gauvain, and announced a donation of £105 from Mr. William Mosenthal, of London.

Replying to an address of welcome, the LORD MAYOR said he was sorry Sir George Newman, Chief Medical Officer to the Ministry of Health, was unable to be present, but Sir George had told him that the best work of its kind was being done at Alton, and that that was due to the perfect system of nursing in force. Sir Henry Gauvain had sought the utmost of Nature's curative powers.

The Lord Ampthill prize of £5 was presented to a cripple named William David Jones. The prize owes its origin to the fact that Lord Ampthill, when laying the foundation-stone of the new buildings last October, was so struck with the craftsmanship of a suit-case presented to him that he founded the prize to encourage the boys being trained in the college. The Lord Mayor was presented with a suit-case made by a cripple named Edgar Ernest Sheppard, and the Lady Mayoress was presented with a flower basket made by a cripple in the children's ward.

TRAFFIC AT LUDGATE CIRCUS

INSTALLATION OF LIGHT SIGNALS

The Commissioner of Police for the City of London announces that traffic control by light signals at Ludgate-circus will be brought into operation next Saturday, at 8 a.m.

There will be four sets of double signals—one set each at the Circus end of Fleet-street, Farringdon-street, Ludgate-hill, and New Bridge-street, and they will be under the control of a constable stationed on a stand at the south end of Farringdon-street. Three colours will be displayed vertically at each signal—red at the top, "stop" ; yellow in the middle, "caution" ; green at the bottom, "proceed." The yellow is intended to indicate to drivers of vehicles that a change is about to be made from red to green, or green to red. Filtration to the left during the time that a signal is at "stop" or "caution" will not, at this stage, be permitted, but it is intended to make a trial in this direction at an early date.

Warning notices will be placed on the main approaches to the Circus indicating that there are "signals ahead." If this experiment proves successful, a suitable kiosk will be erected to house the constable in control.

A Ministry of Health inquiry will be held next Thursday upon Wandsworth Borough Council's application for sanction to raise a loan of £59,815 to erect public baths in Manor-street, Clapham.

THE LAMBETH CONFERENCE

OPENING SESSION

THE CHRISTIAN DOCTRINE OF GOD

The Seventh Decennial Meeting of the Lambeth Conference of Bishops of the Anglican Communion opened yesterday morning in the library of Lambeth Palace. Although no report of the Conference as a whole will be published till after August 9, it has been decided to issue each day a brief statement at the close of the afternoon session. Last evening the following official statement was issued from Lambeth Palace :—

The opening session of the Conference was held in the Library of Lambeth Palace at 11 a.m., after prayers in Lambeth Parish Church. With hardly an exception the 310 Bishops who had expressed their intention of attending were present. The Archbishop of Canterbury, President of the Conference, opened the proceedings with an address of welcome. It was then agreed that the hours of the full sessions should be daily from 11 a.m. to 1.30 p.m., and from 2.30 to 5 p.m. A number of petitions and messages were received.

The Conference then proceeded to discuss the first subject, viz. :—The Christian Doctrine of God (a) in relation to modern thought; (b) in relation to non-Christian religions and ideals; (c) as determining the character of Christian worship; (d) to be realized throughout the Church by teaching and study. The following Archbishops and Bishops spoke :—The Archbishops of Armagh, York, and Melbourne, the Bishops of Tennessee, Oxford, Kobe (Japan) Colombo, Liverpool, Madras, Goulburn (New South Wales), Norwich, Washington, London, Christ Church (New Zealand), Lincoln, Pretoria, Southwark, Ottawa, New Guinea, and Bishop Linton (Bishop in Persia). It was resolved at the end of the discussion that a committee be appointed to consider the subject, and report to the full Conference.

The Conference adjourned at 5 p.m. and reassembles to-day at 11 a.m. It is announced that St. Faith's Chapel in Westminster Abbey will be open for prayer for the Lambeth Conference daily during the hours when the Conference is sitting.

THE AGENDA

GROWTH OF THE CONFERENCE

The Lambeth Conference owes its existence to the genius of the late Dr. Lewis, Bishop of Ontario, afterwards Primate of Canada, who brought the matter before Archbishop Longley. The first conference was held in 1867, when there were 76 Bishops present out of a possible attendance of 144, and it has been held at periods varying from nine to 12 years ever since. The growth of the Anglican Episcopate is illustrated by the fact that the attendance this year is over four times as large as that at the first conference. Out of a possible attendance of 400 some 310 Bishops are attending at Lambeth this week.

All the Metropolitans will be present at this meeting of the Conference with the exception of the Archbishop of Nova Scotia, Dr. Worrell, and the Archbishop of Rupertsland, Dr. Matheson. There will be 12 Bishops from India, 15 from South Africa, 24 from Canada, nine from the West Indies, 22 from Australia, six from New Zealand, six from Japan, nine from China, and 64 from the United States. On this occasion, for the first time, a native Chinese Bishop (the Right Rev. P. L. Tsen) will be present. There will also be present a Japanese Bishop, the Bishop in Tokyo (Dr. Matsui), an Indian Bishop, the Bishop of Dornakal (Dr. Azariah), and an African Bishop (Dr. Howells, Assistant Bishop on the Niger).

The steady increase in membership is also due, however, to something more than the growth of the episcopate, and represents a growing sense of confidence in the Conference and its usefulness to the Church at large. Many English Bishops, including the Archbishop of York, refused to attend the first Conference, and the Dean of Westminster would not allow any service in connexion with the Conference to be held in Westminster Abbey. In 1867 the Conference lasted only three days and broke up in confusion. The second Conference, in 1878, called forth little opposition, and lasted a month, as all the Conferences since have done, with an increasing appreciation of their value and importance.

The Lambeth Conference is not, of course, a legislative body, nor yet a Church council to define doctrine, but a body which expresses its judgment on a variety of subjects, which judgment may or may not be adopted by the Churches concerned.

SIX SECTIONS

The main subject of this Conference is "The Faith and Witness of the Church in this Generation," and this will be considered under six different sections :—

1. The Christian Doctrine of God: (a) In relation to modern thought. (b) In relation to non-Christian religions and ideals. (c) As determining the character of Christian worship. (d) To be realized throughout the Church by teaching and study.

2. The Life and Witness of the Christian Community, individual and corporate, in the fulfilment of the Divine purpose—with special reference to questions of (a) Marriage, (b) Sex, (c) Race, (d) Education and Governments, (e) Peace and War.

3. The Unity of the Church: (a) Reports of results of the Lambeth Appeal, 1920. World Conference on Faith and Order. (b) Schemes and proposals of Union. (c) Relations of the Anglican Communion with particular Churches.

In connexion with this subject the Bishop of Chichester (Dr. Bell) has drawn up a report for the Conference giving the replies to the Lambeth Appeal from all parts of the world. This report states the decision taken not only with regard to the Free Churches in England and the Church of Scotland, but also with regard to the Orthodox Church, the Roman Catholic Church (with a reference to the Malines conversations), the Old Catholics, the Church of Sweden, and other Communions. It is also under this head that the proposals for Church Union in South India will be considered ; the General Council of the Church of India, Burma, and Ceylon, having asked the Lambeth Conference to give their counsel on the proposals before the General Council, gave its final decision upon them.

4. The Anglican Communion : (a) Its ideals and future. (b) Its organization and authority, (1) Central, (2) National and Provincial, (3) Missionary Dioceses, under the jurisdiction of the Archbishop of Canterbury, (Questions of Church Order with regard to Forms of Worship and Rules of Marriage).

5. The Ministry : (a) Supply of men for Holy Orders, and the Church's duty to provide for it. (b) The training of clergy before and after Ordination. (c) Supplementary Ministries, (1) Deaconesses, (2) Voluntary Clergy. Reports: Women's Work, resolution 54, Lambeth Conference, 1920; Committees, resolution 57, Lambeth Conference, 1908.

6. Youth and its Vocation.

The Conference will receive several special delegations, who will confer on Christian unity with the appropriate committee to be set up by the Conference. Among these delegations will be the Patriarch of Alexandria and others representing the Orthodox Church, together with Archbishop Kenninck of Utrecht (Old Catholics), the Bishop of Lund (the Church of Sweden), and prominent leaders of the Church of Scotland and of the English Free Churches.

The Bishop of Chichester (Dr. Bell) will act as Episcopal Secretary and the Rev. Mervyn G. Haigh, Principal Chaplain to the Archbishop of Canterbury, as Assistant Secretary to the Conference. They will have the help of Miss H. Bowden Smith in the Conference office.

LOSSES AT MONTE CARLO

ERNEST GEORGE MITCHELSON, 41, an accountant, of Goldhawk-road, Shepherd's Bush, was bound over by Mr. Graham Campbell at Bow-street Police Court yesterday on a charge of stealing £345 from the Globe Publishing Company, Strand, by whom he had been employed since 1923. It was stated that Mitchelson went to Monte Carlo and played at the gaming tables in the hope of regaining the amount of his deficiency. Instead he lost all the money he took with him, and was arrested at Newhaven on his return to this country.

N.U.R. CONFERENCE

ORGANIZATION OF ROAD TRANSPORT MEN

WEST HARTLEPOOL, JULY 7

The annual conference of the National Union of Railwaymen began its sittings here to-day.

MR. C. GORE, Kentish Town, president, in his address, said the outstanding feature of the year was the restoration of the 2½ per cent. cut in their wages which was a great boon to the lower-paid grades, who had felt keenly the sacrifice they had been called upon to make. There was, however, a black spot in connexion with the restoration, the short working time of the railway shopmen. While one could not charge the companies with a violation of the restoration agreement, it was felt that the attitude of some of the companies in seeking to recoup themselves at the expense of the shopmen was both mean and unwarrantable. He trusted that the organization of all railway workers would be such that in future a repetition of the recent reduction in wages would be an impossibility.

The managerial side were taking full advantage of the present trade "slump" as an excuse for de-grading posts and displacing staff under the guise of economy. The practice would not be resented so deeply if it operated all round, but while economy was preached and practised to a stage when it became almost ridiculous in its application to the working grades, the positions of the higher salaried officers were being definitely entrenched by substantial advances in their salaries. He would emphasize in the most definite manner that the conditions under which railway workers, or employees in any other industry, were employed under a capitalist system would only be determined by the strength of disciplined organization and the capabilities of the elected negotiators.

During the year development had taken place in railway road transport which had necessitated vigilance in following up the ramifications of the various railway companies in the extension of that section of the railway industry. This vigilance was necessary to their policy to secure complete organization of all workers employed on or in connexion with any railway in the United Kingdom or the Irish Free State. During this process they had found that men employed by companies absorbed, or partly absorbed, had been unorganized and working under the worst possible conditions. Not to have tackled such a position would have created a menace to the employees on the rail side of their industry.

Unfortunately their action had been displeasing to another union, who, in addition to failing to come to an amicable arrangement, had charged them with poaching. This charge was puerile, having regard to the state of organization of the road transport workers who had been taken over by the railway companies. He deplored any difference of opinion between trade unions, always being anxious not only for closer working, but ultimately for one union for all transport workers, whether employed on rail, road, sea, or air. That must necessarily be a slow process; but as a national union they could not be expected to vary their constitution at the whim of any other organization, although they were prepared to consider amalgamation with other transport unions which agreed with their policy of co-ordination and nationalization of transport.

Following their conference of last year, their political general secretary (Mr. J. H. Thomas) applied for, and was given, leave of absence during the present Government's term of office. Mr. Thomas was not so fortunate with the colossal task which the Prime Minister allocated to him, but having regard to all the obstacles, both political and industrial, he was convinced that Mr. Thomas did his best, and they all wished him success in his new post. The Labour Government had been in office over 12 months, and having regard to all the circumstances, primarily not being in power, and the obstructive tactics of their opponents, they were to be congratulated on their achievements. He asked them to give a little more thought to the difficulties that were confronting the Government, and play their part so that at the next General Election they would return a Labour Government with power. Having done that they would be more entitled to criticise.

Eighty delegates are present, representing more than 320,000 members of the union. Alderman G. E. Hope, Mayor of West Hartlepool, and Councillor F. Carr, Mayor of Hartlepool, welcomed the conference, which went into committee after the president's address. Mr. J. H. Thomas, M.P., will attend a dinner to delegates on Friday.

AUTHOR OF "INGOLDSBY LEGENDS"

PROPOSED CANTERBURY MEMORIAL

It is proposed to place a memorial to Richard Barham, the author of the "Ingoldsby Legends" and "the wittiest of English poets," in Canterbury, which was his birthplace.

Though Canterbury was the place of his birth (in 1788), he had very large associations with London; he was educated in St. Paul's School, and became a minor canon of the Cathedral. From 1842 to 1845 he held, in addition to his Cathedral appointments, the rectory of St. Augustine's with St. Faith's, Watling-street. The Mayor of Canterbury is organizing the memorial fund.

Captain Owen Williams, M.C., manager of Lloyds Bank at Aberystwyth, was found dead on Saturday at the foot of a high cliff at Solva, Pembrokeshire, where he was on holiday. An open verdict was returned at the inquest.

SOUTHERN RAILWAY

ELECTRIFIED SYSTEM EXTENDED

The Gravesend and Windsor extensions of the Southern Railway electrified system were formally inaugurated yesterday. With the Wimbledon to West Croydon section, opened on Sunday, these mark the completion of a £600,000 scheme. The company now has 800 miles of electrified lines, upon which has been spent to date £12,750,000. It is the largest electric system in the world. Extensions still to be completed are from Coulsdon to Brighton and West Worthing—48 miles—at an estimated cost of £2,700,000.

Of the three extensions, that from Twickenham and Hounslow to Windsor is the longest and costliest. Its length is 27½ miles and the cost £367,000. The extension from Dartford to Gravesend is 14 miles in length and has cost £160,000, and that from Wimbledon to West Croydon eight miles and its cost £73,000.

Special trains were run yesterday to Gravesend and Windsor, and an official welcome to the visitors was extended by the respective Mayors. At Gravesend MR. GRAHAM L. SIMMONDS congratulated the Southern Railway Company on its courage and enterprise, spoke of the advantages which would follow from the electrification, and said that despite its somewhat gloomy name the town had ample facilities and amenities for a happy existence. At Windsor the Mayor, LIEUTENANT-COLONEL STEPHEN WRIGHT, said the extension marked a further definite improvement in dealing with the crowds of people who went to the Royal borough. He pointed out that on Bank Holidays and similar days the number of visitors was between 30,000 and 40,000.

Upon the return to London, luncheon was served in the board room at Waterloo Station. BRIGADIER-GENERAL EVERARD BARING, the chairman of the Southern Railway, presided. He said the opening of these extensions marked the completion of what they set out to do six or seven years ago. They could now electrify farther along to Brighton with a light heart—and with a very much lighter purse. He recalled the difficulties they had in agreeing on the type of electric system, and said eventually they did the common-sense thing and arranged that all the systems on the Southern Railway should be the same. It was a very far-reaching decision. It meant the scrapping of the million or million and a half pounds that had been spent on the electrification of the Brighton section by the overhead system of alternating current. But to-day all the branches of the Southern Railway, made up as they were of constituent companies, grouped together by the amalgamation scheme of 1921, were working on the same system, and could use their own stock from one end of the line to the other. They hoped the extensions would help to increase traffic. There was not much difficulty about getting traffic when suburban lines were electrified. The difficulty was to deal with it, but that they were quite equal to.

A vote of thanks to the company was moved by Mr. GRAHAM SIMMONDS, and seconded by SIR WILLIAM CARTER (Deputy Mayor of Windsor).

WILLINGDON BY-PASS ROAD

EASTBOURNE COUNCIL DECIDE TO SEEK MODIFICATION

EASTBOURNE, JULY 7

By a majority of one vote the Eastbourne Town Council to-day passed a resolution asking the East Sussex County Council to cooperate in such modification of the proposed by-pass road at Willingdon as would meet all reasonable objections and allay the fears of Willingdon people. This decision followed the reception by the council of a deputation of objectors led by the Rev. G. Handel Elvey, vicar of Willingdon, who presented a petition signed by 500 parishioners of Willingdon, and by the Anglican and Free Church ministers of Eastbourne.

The main objection to the scheme, towards which the Eastbourne Corporation have decided to contribute £28,000, is that the new road will pass within 60 yards of the chancel of Willingdon's 800-year-old church and will seriously affect the amenities of worship. Another cause of complaint is that the road will cut through the vicar's glebe land, which the schoolchildren have used as a playground from time immemorial. The scheme has already received the sanction of the Ministry of Health.

LOST MOTION

By CALLISTHENES

The forward motion of every great business such as this is the product of innumerable impulses.

The greatest impulse should come from its chief. Other powerful impulses come from the directors and managers and heads of departments. But these are only a small part of the total. The greater part of the motion is imparted by the daily and hourly efforts of all the thousands of men and women, and of youths, who make up the Organisation. As soon as one of these ceases to give the impulse, the speed of the vast machine slackens as definitely as that of the steam engine whose supply of fuel is checked.

The function of business leadership is to see that every member of the Organisation is adding something to its forward movement.

Every idea that is turned down before it has been given careful consideration represents so much lost motion to the machine. Every check upon enthusiasm, every undeserved reprimand, every piece of unnecessarily harsh discipline, every act of favouritism, represent lost motion.

We gather from descriptions of the merchant houses of the last century that it was the custom to say to the young enthusiast who ventured to propose an idea, "If I want any suggestions from you I will ask for them," or "You are here to do as you are told and not to think," or any other of the rather too well known sentences used to repress ambition and teach the young worker "to keep his place."

Like many other of the weaknesses of a by-gone time this one still lingers in concerns which are run on by-gone lines. But one of the most hopeful signs in modern business and industry is that this repression of young effort, this deliberate sacrifice of motion power, is now out of fashion. Every modern business encourages and nurtures every possible contribution to the central motion which every member is able to make. Enthusiasm is built up: ideas are rewarded.

The old notion that you could be unjust to a member of the organisation without diminishing the motion of the whole or even that injustice and harshness were inseparable from industrial progress—that notion has gone. Favouritism and unfairness are now recognised as inevitable causes of lost motion.

This business, which prides itself on being modern, is in nothing more modern than this, that every one of us here seeks to add as much as possible to the forward movement of the whole, that every one of us is watchful lest by word or deed, by fault or omission, he is a cause of lost motion.

LYRIC THEATRE, HAMMERSMITH

"THE IMPORTANCE OF BEING EARNEST"

BY OSCAR WILDE

John Worthing, J.P. (of the Manor House, Woolton, Hertfordshire)	JOHN GIELGUD
Algernon Moncrieff (his friend)	ANTHONY IRELAND
Rev. Canon Chasuble, D.D.	CHARLES STAITE
Lane (Manservant)	RICHARD CALDICOT
Merriman (Butler)	SCOTT RUSSELL
Lady Bracknell	MABEL TERRY-LEWIS
Hon. Gwendolen Fairfax	IRIS BAKER
Cecily Cardew	HEATHER ANGEL
Miss Prism (Governess)	JEAN CADELL

What little flaws there are in this superb comedy it would now be tedious to discuss. It is not perfect, and that is the worst that can be said of it. As Lady Windermere's Fan is stained with ancient melodrama, so is The Importance of Being Earnest coloured here and there, and particularly in the second act, with ancient farce; it stiffens for a moment, it ceases to be Wilde's own, it becomes a little strident and so a little dull. But such moments are few; the play is, in its own kind, almost flawless—consistently trivial to the last. The question that remains is of its performance.

How should it be performed? In costume, certainly; but should the costume be naturalistic of its period, or should it be "stylised" as it is at Hammersmith so that the stage and the dresses become a pretty Beardsleyesque dream in black and white and silver? In the first place Beardsley is a dangerous man to imitate; the stage is not capable of his spacing and cannot maintain the firmness and fluency of his line. In the second place, to fantasticate Wilde is to be in peril of burlesquing him, and to burlesque him is to apologize for him, and to apologize for a masterpiece is to be ridiculous. Pleasing to the eye though it often is, and very beautiful though some of the dresses certainly are, this artificial décor is more often at war with the play than in accord with it.

And how should Wilde be played? There is one simple answer, that he should be played as Miss Mabel Terry-Lewis plays Lady Bracknell. Her dry, incisive, unforced wit; her proud carriage; the exquisite precision of her emphasis; above all, her personal dignity that preserves a great lady in one who might have been a butt—these things make of her acting a standard by which other acting in this piece may be judged. Mr. John Gielgud conforms to it. His phrasing is quick; he maintains the tension of the dialogue; he discovers the music of this astonishing artificiality. Only in the second act does he falter, allowing the burden of farce to slacken the pace of comedy. Mr. Anthony Ireland and Miss Iris Baker give admirable performances, but they have not quite his ease, Mr. Ireland being sometimes too casual and Miss Baker—how shall we say it?—too consciously la-di-da. There is a gay, spirited performance by Miss Angel, but she, too, is driven into exaggerations by the will to be artificial and she has not the enunciation for Wilde's carved periods. Miss Prism is a good though ancient joke, and Miss Cadell makes the most of it, though the Beardsley obsession has had the confusing effect of making her look like Mr. Robey in all but eyebrows. The best of the acting is always to be seen where burlesque is most carefully avoided. Mr. Gielgud and Miss Terry-Lewis together are brilliant. They have what the others collectively lack—the rhythm of the play, for it is very like a piece of formal music; and they have the supreme grace of always allowing Wilde to speak for himself in his own voice and not in the voice of a modern imitator.

PLAYERS' THEATRE

"THE FASCINATING FOUNDLING"

BY GEORGE BERNARD SHAW

Horace Brabazon	GRENVILLE EVES
Mercer	T. G. SAVILLE
The Lord Chancellor	ROBERT G. NEWTON
Anastasia Vulliamy	JOAN BRIERLEY

Nothing in the triple bill at the Players' Theatre this week is more enjoyable than the farcical trifle which Mr. Shaw blushed to admit to his collected works—The Fascinating Foundling, "a disgrace to the author." Certainly there is only Mr. Shaw's rather immoderate love of horseplay to justify a beginning in which the Lord Chancellor's clerk and a ward of Court fight a broadsword combat with poker and tongs in his lordship's anteroom. But once the whacks and bangs so precious to Mr. Shaw in his irresponsible moments are over, everything that is said, even if it relates to such a shadowy topic as the Cat and Mouse Act, has the merit of making us laugh.

What more can be demanded of an extravaganza? The Lord Chancellor would be funnier if he looked more like a Lord Chancellor, but Miss Joan Brierley, as the aristocratic foundling, mocks herself very prettily, and Mr. T. G. Saville, as the clerk, neatly pricks his master's bubble-reputation.

The House With the Twisty Windows, a one-act play by Miss Mary Pakington, exhibits a group of demoralized English people imprisoned in the cellar of a house in Petrograd during the revolution. Most of these people are crudely overdrawn, but Mr. Fred O'Donovan, who has to hold them all entranced with a parable of hope in the shape of an Irish fairy story, speaks of leprechauns and their ways with so much authority and grace that he commands respect for the central situation of the play. His acting is the most finished that has yet been brought to the Players' Theatre, and Miss Leonara Corbett and Miss Eliner Waters, as if stimulated by his example, give two very happy studies of girlhood.

The Madonna of the Golden Hart is a somewhat laboured account by Mr. Robert Newton of the hard fate of a barmaid who essays to play providence to sailors. Miss Joan Harben is expected to suggest the spirituality that may underlie an apparently trivial character, and fails as much for want of material as for want of art, but the play gives Miss Evelyn Hope the opportunity of displaying the more flamboyant charms of the barmaid who takes life as it comes, and in this opportunity she revels like a good artist.

OPERA AT COVENT GARDEN

INTERNATIONAL SEASONS IN 1931 AND 1932

In view of the announcement that Covent Garden Opera House is to be sold, the Covent Garden Opera Syndicate state that they have the lease of the Opera House until February, 1933, and that it is their present intention to continue the International Seasons of Grand Opera both in 1931 and 1932.

The syndicate, it is added, have not abandoned hope of establishing Grand Opera in this country on a permanent basis, which was the ultimate object of the syndicate when it was formed nearly three years ago. During the past six months negotiations have also been on foot with the Imperial League of Opera, and a certain measure of agreement between Sir Thomas Beecham and the Covent Garden Opera Syndicate has been attained, with the object of co-operation in the future.

Mr. W. W. Adamson, chairman of Colwyn Bay Council, opened on Saturday a new park of 29 acres, which cost £20,000 to acquire and lay out. The council is also to buy 21 acres beside it from Sir John Emmott Barlow.

THE SALE ROOM

TENNYSON MANUSCRIPTS

An important series of autograph manuscripts by Alfred Lord Tennyson fetched high prices at Sotheby's yesterday. These manuscripts were sold by order of the tenant for life, Mr. C. B. L. Tennyson, and pursuant to the authority of the Court, and the copyright of all material whether published or unpublished is reserved. The sale catalogue contained a number of interesting facsimiles.

There were only 12 lots, but these totalled £4,975. The highest price, £1,750, was paid by Mr. Gabriel Wells for the autograph manuscript of "The Princess," 1847, 1,200 lines on about 60 pages octavo, an early draft covering the first five parts of the poem as published, but omitting the prologue, and with many variations. A similar manuscript of "The Devil and the Lady, and other very early poems," about 47 pages octavo, and including, in the translation of Claudian's "Rape of Proserpine" (unpublished), what is believed to be the only extant example of Tennyson's early experiments in the regular Popeian metre—£620 (Adams); the manuscript of a sonnet to W. C. Macready, one page octavo, first published in The Times, March 3, 1851—£30 (Maggs); the manuscript of "Vivien," one of the Idylls of the King, 1857, 6½ pages large octavo—£180 (G. Wells); the manuscript of "The Voyage," four pages large octavo, first published in "Idylls of the Hearth," 1864—£300 (Maggs); the manuscript of "Aylmer's Field," 1864, about 32 pages—£600 (G. Wells); the manuscript of passages from "Gareth," 1872, six pages—£175 (Maggs); the manuscript of "A Welcome to H.R.H. Marie Alexandrovna, Duchess of Edinburgh," 1874, 2¼ pages—£60 (Maggs); the manuscript of "The Voyage of Maeldune," 1880, on 11 pages—£190; the manuscript of an early poem on spring, 1½ page folio—£70 (both bought by Mr. C. J. Sawyer); the manuscript of The Falcon, 1879, 36 pages, some portions written in prose on one side of the paper and turned into verse on the other—£500; and the complete manuscript as sent to the printer of The Cup, 1881—£500 (both bought by Mr. Gabriel Wells).

MEDIEVAL SHRINES

Messrs. Sotheby are selling on July 17 two very important medieval enamelled shrines, the property of Major H. Chase Meredith. These shrines are traditionally associated with the Abbeys of Malmesbury and Croyland, and are probably the most important examples of their type still in private hands. Both are well known to students and have frequently been described in antiquarian publications. The one associated with Malmesbury is Limoges work of the late twelfth century, and is 11in. long by nearly 10in. high, and the elaborate decoration is minutely described in the sale catalogue, in which there are reproduced three views of the shrine itself. In the late eighteenth century it belonged to Thomas Astle, the famous antiquary, and it is said to have contained some relic of Maidulf, a Scottish monk, who, about A.D. 630 retired to a wood where Malmesbury now stands and founded the monastery there.

The second shrine is a little larger, and is Limoges work of the mid-thirteenth century. It was the property of Sir John Cotton in 1748, when it was described in the Philosophical Transactions of the Royal Society; he apparently obtained it from a Mr. Eayre, of St. Neots, who had found it in a house in that neighbourhood. Its association with Croyland Abbey is traced to the design on it as portraying the murder at the high altar of Croyland of Abbot Theodore by the Danes A.D. 870. An illustration in colours and three other views are given in the sale catalogue.

The sale at Messrs. Glendining's of the Cheylesmore war medals and decorations was incorrectly stated in The Times of yesterday as taking place to-morrow and two following days. The sale is fixed for Wednesday and two following days next week.

ART EXHIBITIONS

EARLY ENGLISH WATER-COLOURS

As punctually as welcome comes the annual exhibition of early English water-colours—the twenty-sixth of the series—at Walker's Galleries, 118, New Bond-street. In these exhibitions Mr. Augustus Walker, whose knowledge of the school, in its main current and backwaters alike, is extensive and peculiar, is serving much more than his personal interests, and nobody can visit the exhibitions without learning something that might have escaped him at our public galleries.

The present exhibition consists of nearly 200 drawings, including about a dozen by foreign artists. Though there are examples of Turner, Cotman, Alexander and J. R. Cozens, Gainsborough and De Wint, the great majority are by their less famous contemporaries, so that the general effect of the exhibition is to broaden appreciation. The Turners are mostly, if not all, of the kind which relate him to rather than distinguish him from the school as a whole, "The Colosseum at Rome" and "Cassiobury Park" being typical of the individual qualities that he added to his interpretation of J. R. Cozens. "View near Veletre" is perhaps the most poetical of the drawings by that artist—described by Constable as "all poetry"—and there are two "Coast Scenes," in sepia, by Alexander Cozens. In the case of Cotman an attempt has been made to sort out his actual workmanship from that of his sons, J. J. and Myles E.; possibly the decision, in some cases, has been over-sanguine, but "Ruined Priory," in colour, and "Carting in a Wood," in black and white chalk, look all right. The Girtins and the De Wint are not of great consequence, but there is a very beautiful Gainsborough chalk drawing of "Farm-cart under Trees."

When all is said, however, about these great men the special interest of the exhibition is in such discoveries as "Fishermen on the Beach"—as good as most Coxs—by W. R. Beverley; the Pre-Raphaelite "View of Portsmouth Harbour," by S. Howitt; the very delightful "Children Returning from Fishing," by H. Jutsum; and the nobly designed "View of Richmond Hill," by W. Pars. Included in the exhibition there is a collection of 25 drawings of local subjects by Captain Henry Pendarves Tremenheere, who died at Treeneere, Penzance, in 1841, rather like Farington in style, and full of interest to anybody familiar with the neighbourhood. Among the foreign drawings are two luminous "Shipping Scenes," by William Van de Velde the Younger.

At the same galleries there is an exhibition of stained glass and water-colour and pencil drawings, removed from the studio of the late Mr. Henry Holiday. As a designer of stained glass he had a great reputation, and the panels of "Four Boy Angels," "Angel," and, in particular "Piece of Grisaille," in a foliated design, help to explain it, but the real interest of the exhibition is in the set of original illustrations to "The Hunting of the Snark," lent by Mr. Harold Hartley. In their way, and allowing for the difference in subject, these drawings were as successful as Tenniel's for the "Alices," reproducing perfectly the dream-like reality of the original. Mr. Holiday's illustrations to Andersen's "Little Mermaid" have great charm, and there is an interesting series of pencil portraits of celebrities, including "General De Wet," "Joseph Biggar," and "John Dillon."

THE REDFERN GALLERY

Mr. George Bissill's water-colours at the Redfern Gallery, 27, Old Bond-street, are for the most part executed with great freedom and with splashing strokes of the brush, yet always with an eye to elegance. The colour is subdued but often very pretty. "Near the Coln at Winson" shows this elegance at its height. But in some of his water-colours Mr. Bissill feels the forms more exactly and searches for a deeper and less arbitrary rhythm. "Coln Rogers Church" and "Breadon on the Hill" may be very simple works, but here there is at least a hint of greater penetration. His oil paintings are more definitely mannered, but the bright yellows in "Spring Flowers in a Jug" have a certain weight and substance. His "Mining drawings" have that air of being connected with propaganda which so unfortunately tends to be associated with representations of the world's workers. Miss Edith Lawrence's water-colours at the same gallery are constructed apparently with a ruler; and the more or less abstract forms, the geometrical analogies of natural forms, are assembled with precision and forethought. The design of such a work as "The Bathing Place, Veltheuil" may be a little empty, but it is very definitely a design and compounded of solid forms. At other times Miss Lawrence's patterns are more linear and less successful. Abstract, or very nearly abstract, pictures are always very difficult in water-colour, where any great elaboration or ornamentation of surface, such as usually provides rest and recreation in abstract pictures in oils, is impossible. In only one picture does Miss Lawrence provide such decoration, in the chequered sails of "Fishing Boats, Veere." Miss Lorna Burgoyne's flower miniatures are executed with minute and most remarkable exactitude. They are genuinely and honestly descriptive, and therefore very agreeable.

Broadcasting

THE PROGRAMMES

OPENING OF INDIA HOUSE

The ceremony of the opening of India House by the King will be broadcast this morning at 12 o'clock from the National transmitter and other stations taking the National programme. His Majesty will be heard speaking in reply to an address which will be read and presented to him by the High Commissioner for India, Sir Atul Chatterjee. THE KING'S CUP AIR RACE

PROBABLE LIMITATION OF ENTRIES NEXT YEAR

Experiences in the King's Cup air race on Saturday have made it fairly certain that steps will be taken by the Royal Aero Club to limit the number of entries next year. Had the weather on Saturday not been perfect, there would have been serious danger of accident with so large a field, and since the finish several competitors have complained that they lost time in getting off from the control points because of the large number of machines taking off within a few seconds of each other.

In the earlier stages of the race, before the weather had fully declared itself, some anxiety was felt by officials of the club. Near Manchester and the Pennines in the morning there was some mist and cloud, and Sir Sefton Brancker, who flew over the course ahead of the competitors, at that time thought it might be necessary to advise delaying the start by an hour. The weather improved steadily and the race was flown without any mishap in the air, but it has been demonstrated to the satisfaction of the experts that a field of 88 is too big in a race in which at least half may be expected to be fighting for positions towards the finish.

The method by which limitation shall be secured is still a matter for discussion. The lower-powered machines have this year been excluded. Further restrictions as to types of machines would probably be unpopular, and the large entry this year of amateur pilots has turned attention to the possibility of excluding the professionals. This would mean that some machines owned by persons who would not wish to act as their own pilots could not be entered and would also remove from the race a number of R.A.F. officers who own light aeroplanes.

ITALY AND SECURITY

REPLY TO THE BRIAND NOTE

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT)

ROME, JULY 7

The Italian Government has now replied to the Memorandum of the French Government on the organization of a European Federal Union. While expressing general sympathy with the objects of furthering peace and the material and moral reconstruction of Europe, the reply criticises several points of detail and declares that a closer cooperation between the European nations can only be achieved by solving first and foremost the problem of the general reduction of armaments.

Disarmament, this essential principle which in the French Memorandum is not formulated either expressly or incidentally, constitutes, in the opinion of the Fascist Government, the fundamental starting point for any efficacious work of moral cohesion between the nations, for the complete solution of the general problem of security, and for giving any practical consistence and elementary raison d'être to any project whatsoever of a European Federal Union.

The Italian reply is divided into three main parts. The first part approves M. Briand's conception that such an organization should be based upon union and not upon unity, and that the absolute sovereignty and political independence of all the adherent States must be fully respected.

It also expresses the Italian conviction that any Federal Union of Europe must be brought into line with the activities of the League of Nations. Italy, however, dissents from the French proposal that membership, at any rate in the first instance, should be confined to member States of the League of Nations. The Fascist Government considers that such a Federal Union must comprise at least all those States the economic and political power of which is a determining factor in European life. Otherwise such a union would degenerate into a system of one or more large States coordinated with a group of minor States, and would thus result in Europe being divided into opposed groups and systems. For this reason Italy considers that the Soviet Republic of Russia and Turkey should also be invited to share in working out the proposed project at the forthcoming meeting to be held on the occasion of the next Assembly of the League.

The yet "more vast and complex" constitutional problem of the union is discussed in the second part of the Italian reply.

Modern civilization, it says, cannot be divided into water-tight compartments but has world-wide ramifications, and, says the Italian Government, this de facto solidarity is at the basis of the League of Nations. The League of Nations is only in its beginning, and if it is to fulfil its work it must "be protected against every danger that may weaken its efficiency or diminish its authority and prestige." The fear is expressed lest the proposed union might constitute a European continental group prejudicial to the organic world unity aimed at by the League. Furthermore, Italy criticizes the proposed constitutional structure of the union on the lines adopted for the League of Nations. This, it is said, would result in the same drawbacks as had been made manifest in the League. Italy therefore opposes the proposed constitution of an Assembly and Council and holds that all the adhering States, large and small alike, should each have a permanent representative on the Council, which should be the sole deliberative and executive organ of the European Federal Union.

Finally, in Part 3, the Italian reply criticizes the French attitude towards security. The French Memorandum seems to "seek to stabilize a rigid logical sequence between security, a European Federal Union, and a régime of economic solidarity. Of these elements the one would follow the other rigorously and in this order." The Fascist Government cannot accept this standpoint.

While, says the Note, it is evident that the problem of economic solidarity has essentially political premises, these premises must be those at the basis of the Covenant of the League, since the proposed European Federal Union is to be in harmony with the League. Now the Covenant represents an organic system based upon limitation of armaments, guarantees against aggression, and the peaceful settlement of international disputes, and itself coordinates these methods in a peace organization founded upon disarmament, arbitration, and security. On the harmonious development of this system depend the organization of peace, the proper working of the League, and hence also the fundamental conditions for any European union. Such a development at the present stage of Europe should, in the Italian view, be sought in the execution of those disarmament undertakings which, "so long as they remain not carried out, threaten that very system of security that has been constructed with such difficulty. The system of security, or at least a system of security, already exists, and is constituted by the Covenant of the League of Nations, by the Pact of Renunciation of War and by the Treaties of Locarno. This triple guarantee, if completed by an effective reduction of armaments, can constitute a juridical political and moral barrier against war, while it does not represent any efficient guarantee if it is laid open to a race of armaments." Security considered in an absolute sense brings about the idea of the necessity of armaments, which have always in turn given rise to suspicions, distrust, and the war spirit.

It will be seen that the Italian reply is largely a restatement of the main thesis upheld at the London Naval Conference and repeated by Signor Grandi in his subsequent speeches before the Chamber and the Senate.

NEW AIR SERVICE TO MADRID

NINE-HOUR JOURNEY

MADRID, JULY 7

To-day it was for the first time possible for an ordinary traveller to leave London at 9 a.m. and reach Madrid at 6 p.m. the same day by the new air service between Madrid and Paris which started on Saturday. The aeroplane leaves Madrid at 7.30 a.m., reaches Biarritz at 10.45, Bordeaux at 12.30 p.m., and Paris (Le Bourget) at 4.15 p.m., in time for the traveller to catch the Air Union liner at 4.45 p.m. for London, which arrives at Croydon at 7 p.m. On the return journey one starts from London at 9 a.m., reaches Paris at 11.15, Bordeaux at 3.15, Biarritz at 4.30 p.m., and Madrid at 6 p.m.

Prices compare with first-class train fares on express trains. The service is at present only once a week, leaving Madrid on Saturday and London on Monday.

SIX DEAD IN ALABAMA RACIAL FIGHT

NEW YORK, JULY 7

Two more negroes were killed yesterday by the sheriff's posse at Eutelle, Alabama, which since Friday night has been hunting several negroes who took part in a shooting affray on July 4. The number of deaths arising out of the affair is now six, two of the dead being whites, members of the posse, and the other four being negroes.

One person, killed yesterday, was encountered by the posse at a railway station. When ordered to put up his hands he drew a pistol and was shot dead. The other victim of the sheriff's men was a woman riding in a motor-car with her husband. The man was called upon to stop the car, but apparently he became panic-stricken and put on speed. Shots were fired after him, and when at last he did stop it was found that one of the shots had killed his wife.

Four negroes, for whom the posse has been hunting, are believed to have escaped from Alabama into Mississippi.

NORTH CHINA WAR

GOVERNMENT CLAIMS

SHANGHAI, JULY 7

It is officially reported that 10 divisions of the Nationalists have been engaged in operations against the Kuominchun [Feng Yu-hsiang's forces] in the Kaifeng area, during the past few days, and that the walls of the city are now being assaulted. It is also reported that the Kuominchun thrust from the West against the Peking-Hankow Railway, between Yencheng-hsien and Suchow, has been severely defeated, and that the Government forces are advancing from the last-named place towards Chengchow. Fighting favourable to the Government forces is reported from several points in Shantung.

Independent information is to the effect that in view of the military deadlock and its consequent political reactions, Chiang Kai-shek is making a strenuous effort to score a victory, but that the move against Kaifeng [capital of Honan] has made no serious progress.

CANTONESE ACTIVE

HONG-KONG, JULY 7

The Cantonese authorities claim that the enemy has been cleared from the whole of South Hunan, but a disquieting aspect of this success is the retreat of the Kwangsi and Ironside forces to Kwangsi, where the situation is again tending towards chaos owing to the political schism and the unrest which has been growing since Lui Woon-yim was assassinated. The position is further complicated by the entry into Kwangsi of Yunnanese troops, who are only nominally for Nanking.

Canton is again sending troops to Wuchow [on the West River in Kwangsi] for use in case of further strife and, in the meantime, has been obliged to strengthen the East River garrison owing to indications of unrest at Swatow.

RENEGADE COMMUNISTS

RELUCTANCE TO RETURN TO SOVIET RUSSIA

RIGA, JULY 7

Orjonikidze, chairman of the Central Control Commission, or disciplinary organ of the Communist Party, speaking at a congress in Moscow, said that the reluctance of Soviet citizens who had been allowed to go abroad to return to Moscow was causing anxiety and rendered necessary a revision of the rules for foreign service. Only the most loyal citizens, hardened by service during civil war, he contended, could henceforth be given posts abroad, because contact with the outside world caused the average man to forsake his loyalty to the Soviet Government; he could not resist the attractions offered by capitalist society and he remained abroad, refusing to return when required. This applied not only to non-Communist officials, but to a great number of trusted members of the Communist Party, who became contaminated during a lengthened stay outside the U.S.S.R.

Trading organizations abroad, Orjonikidze said, were particularly untrustworthy in this respect. During a recent purge 2,500 employees of trading offices abroad were tested and more than 1,000 were removed. In 1926, 1927, 1928, and 1929 the number of officials who refused to re-enter the U.S.S.R. was respectively 38, 26, 32, and 65, and in the first half of the present year 43 had refused to return to Soviet Russia. Among these deserters were veteran Communists, such as Millermalis, who had belonged to the party from 1906. Etwein was made director of a German-Russian forwarding company and was sent abroad in 1926. He refused a summons to return and founded his own chocolate factory at Hamburg. Tserer, a member of the party since 1918 and director of a cinema department, went abroad on business and refused to return. This meant that these Communists would perish if placed in a bourgeois atmosphere.

Orjonikidze considers that the organs of control are blameworthy for not recalling these men before it was too late. When Fin and Yarkoff left their posts in England, Lashevitch, chairman of the London branch of the Selskosoyuz [All Russian Union of Agricultural Cooperative Societies], sent them a letter thanking them for their conscientious services as director and secretary. Orjonikidze added that Lashevitch had since received the punishment he deserved for giving such a testimonial, which made it difficult for the party to act against ex-employees. Stepanoff, who also was an employee of the Soviet Cooperative Society in London, received similar consideration, although he refused to return to Moscow. Orjonikidze concluded that the "party must, therefore, resolutely introduce a system of sending abroad only comrades able to withstand the charms of the bourgeois order. The problem is difficult, but it must be solved."

THE COLONIAL OFFICE CONFERENCE

UNIFICATION OF SERVICES

At the seventh plenary session of the Colonial Office Conference, held yesterday, over which Dr. Shiels, Parliamentary Under-Secretary for the Colonies, presided, consideration was given to the draft report of the sub-committee, of which Sir Herbert Stanley, Governor of Ceylon, was chairman, for the organization of a Unified Colonial Agricultural Service.

The sub-committee included in its report a proposal stating that in the interests of agricultural development within the Empire and with the object of ensuring an adequate supply of well-qualified recruits unification of the Colonial agricultural services was desirable, and also that the unified services should be organized into classes. The report was considered at some length by the Conference, and it was decided to refer it back for further consideration.

The Conference also had before it a report of the sub-committee, the chairman of which is Sir William Gowers, Governor of Uganda, on a Unified Colonial Service, and in this connexion consideration was given to the recommendations of the Warren Fisher report. Agreement in principle was expressed by a majority of the representatives, and further consideration was deferred until Thursday.

THE AUSTRALIAN FLYERS

RANGOON, JULY 7

An official report from the Deputy Commissioner at Sandoway states that the airmen, Mr. Hook and Mr. Matthews, were seen on Thursday flying low and apparently in difficulties about 10 miles north of Taungup and heading for an impenetrable jungle infested by tigers and leopards, behind which is the very high peak of Arakan Yomas.

There appears to be no doubt that they crashed either in the jungle or on Yomas; in either case their chances of reaching civilization are not bright, as, among other things, communication with that isolated part of Burma during the torrential monsoon rains is extremely difficult, and journeys have usually to be made in boats.

The Government of Burma has telegraphed to the township officer of Taungup to organize a diligent search and report with the utmost dispatch.

THE FUTURE OF THE SAAR

NEGOTIATIONS SUSPENDED

PARIS, JULY 7

A semi-official Note announced to-day that in consequence of the wide divergence of views between the French and German delegations on the subject of the future régime of the Saar, it had been mutually agreed that the negotiations should be suspended. The Note added that the two Governments would use the interval to re-examine the position in the light of the inquiries made by the first and second sub-commissions. On this examination will depend the question whether the conversations can be resumed in October.

This interruption of the discussions, the purpose of which was to discover a bridge between the opposing claims of France and Germany, was not unexpected. The negotiations were known to have reached what was practically a deadlock some time ago. The evacuation of the Rhineland by the French troops further modified the situation, and the interests of a settlement were prejudiced by the recent disturbances in the Rhineland. It may be doubted, however, whether the conflicting claims ever brought the two parties near enough to bring within sight a solution acceptable to the German Government and the French industrial interests. Of late it had been frequently asserted on behalf of the French claims that the best Germany had to offer was so unsatisfactory that it would be well to let events take their course.

The crucial point on which the negotiations have broken down is the future of the mines, which before the War were State property belonging in part to Prussia and in part to Bavaria. But during the period since their cession to France not only has a very large development taken place, both in output of coal and in the manufacture of steel (the pre-War figures having been exceeded in both cases), but also there has been a very large investment of French capital, estimated at between £12,000,000 and £15,000,000. Vested interests have grown up, and the alliance between French ore and Saar coal has become an important economic factor for France. The association between the Saar on the one hand and Alsace-Lorraine on the other, of vital importance to both, has been maintained. All these interests would, of course, suffer if the Saar re-entered the German Customs Union.

At an early stage of the negotiations it seemed probable that an agreement might be reached on the basis of repurchase by Germany at a price spread over a long period during which the supply of coal was to be assured to France in exchange for a guaranteed supply of ore, the Saar district returning to the German Customs Union but the French claims being met by special duties, contingents, and a commercial treaty. It would appear, however, that no system could be devised adequate to meet the demands of local industrial interests, and the negotiations have therefore been suspended.

GERMAN BITTERNESS

A CYNICAL PRESS

BERLIN, JULY 7

The formal adjournment of the Saar negotiations and the continuation of the controversy over the anti-separatist disturbances in the Rhineland have brought Franco-German relations to a pitch of bitterness which had not been experienced for some time before the evacuation.

The Saar announcement did not come as a surprise, but it came sooner than was expected, and the wording of it has brought home the full gravity of the deadlock. As the Governments are to consider "whether a resumption of the negotiations in October would be worth while at all," the tendency here is to regard the word "adjournment" as a euphemism for "rupture." At any rate, the prospect of a resumption is felt, at the present juncture, to be slight.

Although the communiqué speaks of points on which serious differences of opinion persist, it is held here that there is only one point of fundamental importance, and that is the future of the Saar mines. It is contended that Germany has been prepared to offer so much "economic cooperation" in the form of a continuation of Customs arrangements, coal delivery agreements, and even participation in mines outside the Saar, that the French insistence on participation in the exploitation of the Saar mines can only be attributed to a desire to wreck the negotiations for political reasons.

Consequently the tempting picture of Franco-German cooperation in the Pan-European scheme drawn in the Matin by M. Sauerwein, in whose writings M. Briand's inspiration is often suspected, is regarded with wary eyes. When the Saar negotiations have just broken down after all that was said at The Hague, hints of French services to Germany in such matters as financial assistance and communications with East Prussia are received with ironical comment.

This evening M. de Margerie, the French Ambassador, paid a visit to the German Foreign Minister.

According to a semi-official statement issued late to-night, the French Ambassador, in discussing the Amnesty Agreements, mentioned the anti-Separatist excesses in the Rhineland. The German Minister for Foreign Affairs naturally condemned acts of violence, but pointed out that the extent of the disturbances was to be attributed psychologically to the revival of the passions engendered by the treasonable activities of the Separatists.

COST OF THE LEAGUE

INCREASE IN 1931 BUDGET

(FROM OUR LEAGUE CORRESPONDENT)

GENEVA, JULY 6

The annual report on the work of the League of Nations, which has been sent this week-end to all member States for study before the meeting of the Assembly in September, gives a Budget estimate for 1931 of 29,966,436 Swiss francs [about £1,195,000], as against 28,210,248 francs [about £1,125,000] for 1930. The increase of about £70,000 is mainly due to new credits required for the wireless station and a higher Budget for the Permanent Court of International Justice owing to a revision of the Statute of the Court.

The report, which consists of 115 pages, concludes with a list of treaties registered between May 19, 1929, and May 19, 1930. Three hundred and eight treaties were registered by member States and 34 communicated by the United States. Altogether 160 treaties, occupying 94 volumes of 450 pages, have been published by the League Secretariat.

THE BRITANNIC AT NEW YORK

NEW YORK, JULY 7

The new British motor-liner Britannic, the largest cabin liner in the world, arrived in New York to-day, having completed the crossing from Liverpool in seven days 13 hours, at an average speed of a trifle less than 16 knots.

Captain Summers said from the commander's point of view the ship handled well, and from the passenger's point of view there was "an illusion of fine weather all the way." The supreme feature of the vessel was its smooth comfort.

Sir Ronald Lindsay, the British Ambassador, came from Washington to witness the arrival of the ship. A reception, a celebration dinner, and a public inspection of the vessel have been arranged.

NEW SESSION OPENED AT SIMLA

REFORMS OFFICE VOTE

SIMLA, JULY 7

Thirty-three new members, including Mr. J. W. Bhore, Member of the Viceroy's Council for Industries and Labour, were sworn in when the Legislative Assembly opened its summer Session to-day. Of these, 22 are Indian members returned for constituencies from which the Congress and Nationalist Party representatives recently resigned. Maulvi Mohammed Yakub, the Deputy President, was in the chair. The election of a new President in succession to Mr. Patel will take place on Wednesday morning. Maulvi Yakub is opposed by Dr. Nand Lal, a Lahore Hindu lawyer, but his election is regarded as certain.

To-day's proceedings were mostly confined to formal official business, and the agenda, to which two days had been allotted, was disposed of in two hours. There has been some rivalry between Mr. M. R. Jayakar and Mr. M. A. Jinnah to get together the largest party of followers in order to secure the leadership of the non-official side of the House. Mr. Jayakar, who is a responsive co-operator, obtained the distinction with a party of 24 members, who include Sir C. P. Ramaswamy Iyer. The feature of the sitting was the welcome given by the non-official benches to Mr. H. G. Haig, Acting Home Member, when he rose to reply to the opposition on extreme political grounds to a supplementary vote for the newly instituted Reforms Office. Mr. Haig and his front-bench colleagues were pleasantly surprised by the warm demonstration, which was the more significant because of the bitter criticism to which Mr. Haig has lately been subjected by the Congress Press and also because he was recently reported to have been chosen to lead the Government of India delegations to the Round-Table Conference. The opposition to the grant suggested, he said, that those who made it belonged to a class which imagined that reform could be attained merely by inscribing a well-sounding formula. The Government's need for a Reforms Office arose from its recognition that the business was far more arduous.

The Vote was carried unanimously, members reserving their speeches on the constitutional question till after they have heard the Viceroy's address on Wednesday.

SITUATION LESS TENSE

OFFICIAL REVIEW

The Government of India's usual weekly appreciation of the situation—reviewing events up to July 5—was issued yesterday. In the course of it the Government says:—

NORTH-WEST FRONTIER PROVINCE: TRIBAL.—Alingar Fakir and other malcontents are trying to stir up trouble again among the Utman Khel, but those sections of the tribe which suffered from the recent air action have so far refused to give passage to the malcontents or assist them. Efforts, however, are still being made to raise a fresh lashkar to occupy the old position in Jindai Khwar, or to attack Government levy posts. The latest news from Malakand reports an outbreak of cholera in Arang and Bajaur. The Haji of Turangzai is still at his home in Lakarai, but is sending out messages to the tribes calling on them to renew the struggle with the Government.

At the usual Afridi jirga on June 27 a hostile party of Mullahs and young-bloods decided that a fresh lashkar should be raised against the Government on July 2. Warning was issued to all sections of the tribe announcing the Government's intention to take all the necessary action unless the tribe abandoned the intention of organizing lashkars against British territory. A further Afridi jirga on June 28 broke up owing to dissension among the various sections of the tribe, and up to July 4 there was no sign of any lashkar materializing.

The attitude of the Pass Afridis and Orakzais remains good. On two occasions during the week shots were fired at militia posts on the Kurrum Border. In Waziristan, the hostile Mullah Gulin has again succeeded in raising a following, with the proposed object of attacking friendly Mahsud sections. Warning has been issued to the hostiles that air action will be taken against them in the event of any further activity.

The internal situation throughout the Province continues rapidly to improve. . . . On July 3 a representative deputation of many different classes and schools of thought presented an address of welcome to the Chief Commissioner at Peshawar [as reported fully in The Times of July 4].

GENERAL.—The chief event of the week has been the declaration of the All-India Congress Working Committee as an unlawful association under the Criminal Law Amendment Act. The Committee consists, at full strength, of about 15 persons. For a considerable period they have been playing a prominent part in organizing and directing the civil disobedience movement. Not only have they passed a number of resolutions urging the public to defy the law and to refuse payment of taxes, but they have circularized widely an incitement to the troops and the police to fail in their duty in dealing with the civil disobedience movement. Simultaneously with the notification of the Committee, the president, Pandit Motilal Nehru, and the secretary were arrested and were subsequently sentenced to six months' simple imprisonment each.

Following on this action there were hartals in various towns, but many of them were incomplete, and there have been no clashes between the authorities and the public. Popular demonstrations have been most marked in Bombay city, where conditions continue to be unsatisfactory, and the mill-hands suspended work for two days.

The day before the Committee was notified a meeting was held, the results of which have now been reported in the Press. A number of resolutions were passed, the general sense of which was to urge the continuance of the civil disobedience movement with increasing vigour. The Committee confirmed the resolution inciting the troops and police to fail in their duty, and they urged all Congress organizations to give the widest publicity to it in spite of the fact that the resolution had been proscribed under the Criminal Law.

During the week the Governor-General promulgated an Ordinance for the purpose of controlling effectively the seditious bulletins and news-sheets which, since the issue of the Press Ordinance, have been published in many places in deliberate defiance of the law. These bulletins consist largely of falsehoods and misrepresentations, and their object is to stir up racial and anti-Government feelings.

In spite of the vigorous activities of the Congress, the situation shows distinct signs of improvement in several directions as already noted. The position on the Frontier is rapidly returning to normal. In parts of Gujarat there are indications that the movement is losing some of its vigour, and most of the Provinces report a slackening of effort. The conviction that the civil disobedience movement cannot succeed is growing, and commercial and industrial circles are showing increasing concern regarding the dangerous consequences of its continuance. There is an increase in constructive effort towards a constitutional solution of political problems, and Moslems in particular are devoting much thought and attention to the presentation of their case at the London Conference. While the situation, therefore, has still many unstable elements, these are not so numerous or so pronounced as a few weeks ago.

NIZAM'S ACTION AGAINST AGITATORS

SECUNDERABAD, July 7.—With a view to protecting Hyderabad State from "unhealthy outside political influences and disturbances," the Nizam has declared several branches of the Nationalist volunteer organization unlawful.

It is understood that the deportation of a few prominent Nationalists is contemplated. Mahomed Ghouse, a theological teacher of Nationalist leanings, was deported to Madras last night. Ghouse is alleged to have written intimidating letters to Government officials.—Reuter.

AUSTRALIAN POLITICAL CRISIS

MR. SCULLIN TO SUCCEED MR. THEODORE

CANBERRA, JULY 7

Mr. Scullin, the Prime Minister, formally announced to-day the resignation of Mr. Theodore as Commonwealth Treasurer. Mr. Scullin will take over the office, and will be sworn in to-morrow. He is expected to make his Budget speech in the House of Representatives on Wednesday or Thursday.

Both Mr. Scullin and Mr. Theodore will make a statement in the House on Wednesday. It is expected that the Prime Minister will leave for London in the middle of August, when Parliament will adjourn until early next year. The selection of the acting Prime Minister has not yet been made.

No occurrence since the Federation was established has equalled in interest the report of the Royal Commission on the Mungana mines. Action by the Opposition is expected. Mr. Theodore announces that he does not consider that his representation of Dalley in the House of Representatives is involved. Mr. Scullin will this month have several interviews with Sir Otto Niemeyer.

In the meantime, the debate on the Arbitration Bill will be resumed at the stage at which it was postponed to enable the powers of the Conciliation Commissioners to be clarified.

MR. SNOWDEN AS CHANCELLOR

GREEK PROFESSOR'S APPRECIATION

PARIS, JULY 7

M. André Andreades, Professor of Economics and a member of the Academy of Athens, delivered a lecture on "Mr. Philip Snowden and his financial policy" to the Société d'Economie Politique at the Cercle de la Renaissance this evening.

Recent history has shown that Mr. Snowden's personality is not easily understood or appreciated by the Latin nations, and M. Andreades did well to preface his lecture with some general remarks on the characteristics of the natives of the West Riding and a few particulars of Mr. Snowden's upbringing and career. The surroundings in which Mr. Snowden was born and bred, he explained, were favourable to the development of a puritanical Socialist spirit. The "stolid, unpoetical, and truthful Chancellor" had overcome disadvantages of environment and physical weaknesses through the combination of an iron will and an unlimited capacity for work, which enabled him to master every detail of contemporary economic problems, while at the same time he forged a political career, an acute sense of realism, and an absolute sincerity of conviction.

The history of the English Socialist Party and that of Mr. Snowden's political career ran parallel, and by 1924 it was impossible to conceive a Labour Government in which Mr. Snowden did not hold office. He had achieved a liberty of action within his own party which was comparable to that enjoyed by Gladstone during the Palmerston administration. Mr. Snowden had always held essentially unorthodox views for a Socialist financier.

In 1924 Mr. Snowden had proved the unorthodoxy of his views by increasing indirect, more than direct, taxation. Had not the Conservative Government increased expenditure during its term of office, Mr. Snowden would again have found a surplus in 1930. Only then did he substantially increase direct taxation. He might, it is true, have mitigated this evil without abandoning his free trade principles by the levy of certain fiscal duties, but it must be remembered in his favour that he had improved the Sinking Fund and cut down expenditure. M. Andreades considered that if the Left Wing of the Labour Party could be controlled and a campaign of unredeemable election pledges avoided, Great Britain might achieve a well and truly balanced Budget in the near future.

CANADIAN ELECTIONS

THE UNEMPLOYMENT BOGY

OTTAWA, JULY 6

The past week has witnessed a slight increase in public interest in the election campaign. Mr. Mackenzie King has been campaigning on the prairies, where he has had some rather noisy meetings and been subjected to severe heckling, a rare thing in Canadian elections. He has replied denying the charges of Mr. Ferguson, Premier of Ontario, about his attitude to the St. Lawrence Waterway, but Mr. Ferguson, on Friday evening at Kitchener, Ontario, returned to the subject and a note of bitterness has crept into the exchanges between the protagonists.

Liberal candidates report that the Budget is a good "talking card," but their great difficulty is the unemployment situation, which the Conservatives are sedulously exploiting. Mr. Mackenzie King and his colleagues no longer try to dismiss the unemployment problem as a trivial issue, and they have receded from their earlier position that they would not cooperate with the provinces in relief measures.

Mr. Bennett, the Conservative leader, has been in the Maritime Provinces, where the local pride in their distinguished son tells in his favour, and he is also helped by the vigorous backing of the Provincial Governments of Nova Scotia and New Brunswick. Liberal newspapers like the Ottawa Citizen, however, persistently attack him on the ground that he proposes for Canada the same sort of economic and corporation rule as the big business interests have imposed upon the United States.

H.M.S. NELSON AT BREST

BREST, JULY 7

The officers of H.M.S. Nelson were entertained at luncheon by the French squadron here to-day. Every French ship had British guests. Sir Michael Hodges, Commander-in-Chief, the Atlantic Fleet, and his staff lunched with Admiral Le Dô in the Diderot.

This afternoon a dance was given on board the cruiser Duquesne, which was brilliantly decorated, and a special performance was arranged at the Municipal Theatre for this evening. The Nelson was thrown open to the public during the day, there being a constant stream of interested visitors.

A BRIDGE OVER THE GOLDEN GATE

NEW YORK, JULY 7

After eight years of study it has been decided that it is practicable to build a bridge over the Golden Gate at the entrance to San Francisco harbour in California, and it is proposed to begin work in the near future in hope of finishing it by 1936.

The bridge will be 8,500ft. long. Its highest point will be 760ft. above the water, and it will have a clearance in mid-channel of 225ft. It will be a suspension bridge 90ft. wide, with two towers resting on bed-rock which has been found at a depth of 140ft. The cost is estimated at about £6,000,000.

Mr. Michael Terry, accompanied by three experienced prospectors, left ADELAIDE on Sunday for Alice Springs, en route for the Petermann and Tomkinson ranges, on the borders of Central Australia, for the purpose of examining a large auriferous area for gold and other minerals.

GERMAN FINANCES

EMERGENCY MEASURES IN THE REICHSTAG

BERLIN, JULY 7

Herr Dietrich, the new Minister of Finance, introduced in the Reichstag to-day the Government's emergency revenue measures, which include a non-recurring 5 per cent. increase of the income-tax (not the tax rate) of persons earning more than 8,000 marks (£400), and levies on public officials and unmarried persons. The programme in its present amended form has been passed by the Reichsrat, with only slight alterations, since its introduction by the Chancellor and the Finance Minister in person nine days ago.

In the Reichstag, too, the prospects of its passage are more promising than they have yet been, although a good deal of strenuous negotiation will have to be faced. It would not be surprising if the Chancellor managed to get the measures through with the same support as the Bills passed before Easter, that is to say, the Government parties and the Moderate Nationalists associated with Herr Schiele, the Minister of Agriculture.

Although the Nationalist Parliamentary group has officially "rejected" the programme, that decision was only reached by a vote of 25 to 20, which again throws into relief the division of the party into two groups, one, still slightly larger but rather uneasy, supporting Herr Hugenberg, and the other, associated with Herr Schiele and Count Westarp, large enough for a threat of its secession to carry weight. In its present form, too, the programme is not so distasteful to the Socialists that their assistance, indirect if not direct, would be entirely out of the question. There are bound to be compromises. Even the Government parties have not thrown off all their misgivings. But the German Peoples Party, now that its alarm over the Saxon elections is beginning to subside and it no longer feels so directly compromised by occupying the Ministry of Finance, has left the door sufficiently wide open. Only if petty tactical ideas again assert themselves will the Chancellor have to resort to decrees. If he does, it is considered doubtful whether the Reichstag will have the courage afterwards to repeal them and bring about an early General Election.

In his speech to-day the Finance Minister made it clear how impossible it would be at the present time, with the Budget half passed and late in the bargain, to make the sweeping cuts suggested in some quarters. He declared, however, that whatever trouble he had with the various Departments, he would make the cuts of 100,000,000m. which could be effected a condition of his remaining in office. The debt redemption programme forced through by Dr. Schacht before Christmas must not be tampered with.

Herr Dietrich said he regarded the present measures only as clearing up in preparation for more sweeping reforms. He explained that he had already had Bills drafted to enable municipalities to raise local revenue by means of a rating system and consumption taxes on alcoholic drinks. But he had not tacked them on to the present programme because even a week's further delay could not be risked. The Government intended to combine an effort at bringing down prices with productive employment schemes. He outlined, roughly, the larger tasks to be faced later and frankly foreshadowed more hard times with the 1931 Budget, unless the economic situation improved.

MEXICAN CONGRESSIONAL ELECTIONS

NEW YORK, JULY 7

Five men were killed and about 20 injured in the Mexican Congressional elections yesterday; but the public was generally apathetic, and some of the polling booths appeared to be completely deserted. Early returns indicate that the National Revolutionary Party, headed by the President, Don Pascual Ortiz Rubio, will retain the control of Congress.

PESHAWAR

REPORT ON THE RIOTS

TROOPS AND POLICE VINDICATED

INDIAN JUDGES' VERDICT

SIMLA, JULY 7

The judicial committee appointed to inquire into the Peshawar riots on April 23 published its findings here to-day. The result has been the complete exoneration of the civil and military authorities concerned, justification of the emergency methods they adopted, and a whole-hearted tribute to the coolness, courage, and restraint of the troops and police engaged.

The news comes as a tremendous relief to those who, like your Correspondent, have had a first-hand opportunity of seeing the peculiar danger of the situation in Peshawar and the necessity of prompt and firm action in a moment of crisis. The report of Mr. Justice Panckridge and Mr. Justice Shah Muhammad Sulaiman, who conducted the inquiry, runs to 30 pages, but the Government has published a useful summary. The essential part of the report naturally lies in the findings, which are set out after a short review of the events, beginning with the attack by the mob on the police, proceeding to the entry of the armoured cars through the Kabuli Gate, the murder of Private Bryant, the dispatch rider, the assault on Mr. Metcalfe, the Deputy Commissioner, who was rendered unconscious by a brick, and so to the situation when the troops were compelled to open fire.

(1) That when the Deputy Commissioner entered the city the mob was in a violent mood.

(2) That after he entered the Kabuli Gate the violence of the mob increased, brickbats were thrown at the cars, a dispatch rider was attacked, assaults were made on civil and military officers in an armoured car, and Private Bryant's body was set on fire. The mob was, therefore, unquestionably riotous.

(3) That the Deputy Commissioner was throughout animated by the desire to avoid bloodshed, and incurred serious personal risk by his reluctance to give the order to open fire, which he might justifiably have given earlier.

(4) That it was essential to disperse the crowd, and the only effective means of doing so was by opening fire. The firing was, further, a justifiable exercise of the right of private defence.

(5) That, having regard to the size and temper of the crowd and its determined attack upon the cars, the firing of the 20 rounds necessary for its dispersal and the force employed were not excessive.

SECOND CLASH

The report then proceeds to discuss the second clash between the troops and the crowd later in the day, when the mob had become more aggressive, attacked soldiers and police with lathis and brickbats, and attempted to seize their rifles. Here, again, the conclusions are decisive. The Court finds:—

(1) That Mr. F. C. Isemonger, Inspector-General of Police, did all in his power to induce the crowd to disperse, and showed disregard of danger in remaining so long in a position between the troops and the crowd.

(2) That he was justified in instructing the officers that they were at liberty to open fire if the troops were driven back.

(3) That Major Penny and Captain Gatehouse rightly interpreted Mr. Isemonger's instructions, and did not open fire before the situation justified it.

(4) That Sergeants Hoyle and Martin were also justified in opening fire, because the position in which their detachment found itself was serious.

(5) That the 10 rounds fired by the machine-guns and the 24 rounds fired by the men of The King's Own Yorkshire Light Infantry were no more than were necessary to effect the dispersal of the crowd.

(6) That throughout the other ranks of the Armoured Car Company, The King's Own Yorkshire Light Infantry, and the 2nd/18th Royal Garwhal Rifles displayed a high standard of discipline, and that the officers in command, Major Penny, Captain Gatehouse, and Captain Ricketts, handled their men with coolness and judgment.

The Judges add the opinions, first, that the medical complement to deal with casualties was insufficient; second, and very important, that armoured cars were unsuitable for dealing with the situation, pointing out that the difficulties were aggravated from the moment an armoured car knocked down a member of the mob.

The Government of India have accepted the findings, promising to accept the two last-named suggestions and providing against a repetition. The salient passage in the official statement runs:—

The Government of India accept the findings of the Commission, and, in doing so, endorse the tribute paid to the various officers and men, civil and military, for the courage, resource, and forbearance displayed.

No task is more unpleasant than the necessity for ordering or opening fire on a riotous crowd. The Government observe with satisfaction that the Commission consider that on both occasions the use of force was justified and that the amount of force used was in neither case greater than the circumstances required.

There is a suggestion of criticism of the higher command, however, in the final sentence of the Government's statement, which says:—

The situation in which the troops were placed previous to the second firing emphasizes the difficulties and dangers likely to occur through non-observance of the accepted principle that troops should not be brought into close physical contact with a violent hostile mob.

Such are the findings of the two Judges, who in the course of their inquiry examined 56 witnesses, and who differ only on questions affecting the sequence of events. One material dissension is Mr. Justice Sulaiman's doubt as to whether the extent of the firing in the second affray was altogether justified.

The first thought of anyone who is familiar with the circumstances is one of intense relief that an impartial inquiry, conducted by eminent Judges, one of whom is an Indian, has resulted in the complete vindication of the authorities.

VILIFIERS ANSWERED

One's second thought must be the fervent hope that the campaign of vilification of the officials concerned which the Indian Press has waged regardless of the fact that the whole question was sub judice will now either come to an end or have an end put to it. But the uppermost feeling must be the further hope that in future neither quixotic promises of a rattled administration nor anxiety to placate an excited populace will countenance public inquiries at moments of crisis such as these. If there is a shadow of suspicion that either civil or military officers have behaved improperly, it is perfectly competent for the higher commands to conduct a strict investigation and take appropriate action.

But I was in Peshawar throughout the judicial Commission's inquiry, and from personal observation can testify that the sole result of the public sittings was to revive bitter memories and keep hatred alive; that there was no real public interest, only 16 people attending the court on the first day; that the real leaders of the mob did not come forward; and that the proceedings gave birth to a host of malicious rumours about some very gallant officers, who, at the risk of their own lives, attempted to save the lives of others.

Moreover, there is one thing which one can say with the utmost frankness now that the truth is out. It would be deplorable if in future military and police officers who are faced with a crisis which demands an almost instantaneous decision had their judgment warped by sudden nervousness about going into the witness-box in order to give an unnecessary justification of their action.

In a survey such as this it has only been possible to deal with the official statement, the report itself demanding much more space; but it is possible to contemplate one or two "high lights" in the story as told by the two Judges. The first is a very significant passage on the conduct of the unfortunate Garwahlis.

We think that the men of the Garwahl Rifles found themselves placed in an extremely unfortunate position. They were a handful, and were called upon to advance against a dense crowd and press it back in circumstances in which they could not make use of the advantage which their weapons would normally have given them.

This statement does not affect one's opinion of the justice of the sentences meted out to the seditious agitators in their ranks, who had begun mischief long before the day of the riots, but it at least wipes out a great part of the stain on the honour of a magnificent regiment.

There must also be time to note the gallantry of Lieutenant Synge, Royal Tank Corps, which is the subject of special mention by the Judges. Owing to the noise, the men in an armoured car could not hear the first order to fire, whereupon Lieutenant Synge "resolved to carry the order personally, left the police court roof, and ran out through the crowd. He was attacked on all sides and defended himself by firing his automatic pistol."

Finally there is the curious evidence which fixed the precise moment the order was given to open fire. At the moment the order was given Mr. Fooks, Senior Superintendent of Police, was hit on the arm by a brickbat, which shattered and stopped his wrist-watch, so automatically registering the time of the first shot.

THE INDIAN PROBLEM

STATEMENT TO BE MADE TO-MORROW

(FROM OUR PARLIAMENTARY CORRESPONDENT)

It is understood that either the Prime Minister or Mr. Wedgwood Benn, the Secretary of State for India, will make a statement on the present position in India and the plans for the Round-Table Conference at the end of questions in the House of Commons to-morrow afternoon. This will coincide with a similar statement by the Viceroy at Simla.

The matter has been under almost continuous review by the Cabinet, and the subject of constant correspondence with the Government of India, since the Report of the Indian Statutory Commission was published, and at one stage there were consultations between Mr. MacDonald and Mr. Benn and leaders of the Opposition—namely, Mr. Baldwin, Sir Austen Chamberlain, Mr. Lloyd George, and Lord Reading. A special meeting of the Cabinet was held last night at the unusual hour of 6.30 to consider the latest messages which had reached the India Office from Simla, and there were also meetings of Conservative ex-Ministers and of the Liberal "Shadow Cabinet."

"ALL-PARTY" MEETING BREAKS DOWN

SIMLA, JULY 7

The meeting of the Committee of the All-Parties Conference ran true to form. Sir Annepu Patro, the patient president, made a valiant effort to get the meeting going, but it broke down with some rambling expressions of individual opinion.

Meanwhile up the road the Executive Board of the All-India Moslem Conference, while reaffirming the recommendation in favour of Moslem representation at the Round-Table Conference, dotted the "i's" and crossed the "t's" of its criticism of the Statutory Commission's Report. The meeting appreciated the recommendations that future Constitutions should be on a Federal basis, and endorsed the system of separate electorates and Provincial autonomy. It then proceeded to tear the rest of the Report to bits.

Here are a few points from its resolution, which states that the Board is "emphatically of opinion that the minimum demands of Musulmans of India have not been met by the Commission":—

(1) The meeting was definitely opposed to the system of proportional representation as suggested. Moslems should be granted a minimum of one-third of the seats both in the Assembly and in the Council of State.

(2) If at any time the Moslems of a Province decide by a plebiscite of two-thirds of its members to do away with separate electorates, they should be allowed to do so. The opposition of other communities should not prevent such abolition.

(3) Provincial autonomy should be real, and not whittled down by unlimited overriding powers of the Governor. All Ministers should be non-official and elected.

(4) Moslems must be guaranteed a majority in Bengal and the Punjab. While the Commission has maintained the Hindu majority in six Provinces, it has deprived the Moslems of these two Provinces of their majority.

(5) Sind must be separated from Bombay without further delay.

(6) The reforms suggested for the Frontier Province are inadequate. It should have the same measures as are granted to the other Provinces.

(7) Baluchistan should be guaranteed full Provincial autonomy.

(8) The Commission has made no provision for the representation of Moslems in the public services.

The resolution, first, must be read side by side with the decision to recommend acceptance of the invitation to the London Conference. Secondly, it is the first constructive criticism of the Report launched in this country. Thirdly, it is a frank admission of the Report as a practical basis of discussion. Fourthly, it is proof that the Moslem leaders have studied the Report carefully, and that their criticism, extreme as it is, goes a long way ahead either of the single-syllabled abuse of the Congress-wallas or the political dyspepsia of the Bombay Liberals.

But, last of all, and perhaps most important, it comes as a most opportune reminder to the other communities that the time has come to sit down and do something if they do not want to be left out in the cold.

SIMLA, July 7.—Lady Irwin, wife of the Viceroy, will leave India at the end of this month on a short visit to England. She will return here early in October.—Reuter.

EMPIRE TRADE

UNIONIST VOTE OF CENSURE

COMPANY RESERVES AND INCOME TAX

(From Our Parliamentary Correspondent)

The publication of the bankers' resolution on the subject of Empire Trade has been followed by immediate action by the Conservative leaders in the House of Commons. As the result of a meeting of ex-Ministers last night, the following Vote of Censure was handed in in the names of Mr. Baldwin and Mr. Chamberlain, the chairman of the party organization:—

That this House, believing that a return to prosperity can best be promoted by safeguarding the home market against unfair foreign competition and by expanding the export market by reciprocal trade agreements with the Empire overseas, regrets that the Government has reversed the policy of safeguarding instead of extending it, and has arbitrarily excluded from consideration the imposition of duties upon foreign foodstuffs devised to obtain equivalent advantages for British manufactures and agriculture in Empire markets and elsewhere.

The Conservatives are anxious that this Vote of Censure shall be discussed at the earliest possible moment. The time of the House of Commons is heavily mortgaged until the end of the Session, and it was suggested in some quarters last night that it might be possible to discuss the motion on Thursday if the House agreed to curtail the proceedings on the concluding stages of the Housing Bill, which are set down for to-day and for Thursday. The Conservatives have no hope of carrying the motion, for they realize that they cannot rely on Liberal support in a matter where safeguarding is concerned. But they are anxious to discover as soon as possible whether the Government are going into the Imperial Conference with unfettered hands, as Mr. Thomas has suggested, and whether it will be possible to discuss the whole question of Imperial Preference with the Dominions.

THE REFERENDUM

Incidentally the motion was construed last night as an admission that the Referendum is about to be dropped from the Conservative programme for good and all, and that the Conservatives will be perfectly prepared to fight the next election on any concrete scheme which may emerge from the Imperial Conference. At a meeting of the executive committee of the Empire Industries Association at the House of Commons last night the following resolution was carried unanimously:—

The Executive Committee of the Empire Industries Association cordially welcomes the Bankers' Manifesto in support of the policy for which the Association has consistently stood since it was formed five years ago and calls for a united effort to give effect at the earliest possible date to a full policy of safeguarding and Imperial Economic Unity as the vital method of solving the economic problems of this and other Empire countries.

But Empire trade is not the only question on which the Government finds itself in grave difficulties at the moment. Labour members are waiting with considerable anxiety for the resumption of the Committee stage of the Finance Bill to-morrow. It is now unlikely that the Liberal Party will give its full official support to the new clause which stands in the names of Conservative and Liberal members proposing a reduction of 6d. in the rate of income-tax for company reserves which are used for the acquisition of new plant, machinery, land, and buildings.

NEW CLAUSE

At a meeting of the Parliamentary Liberal Party last night, however, it was decided to press a new clause which stands in the names of a number of Liberal members and which proposes that the reserves of a company which are definitely used for reconditioning the plant and machinery shall be exempted altogether from income-tax. It was agreed that the suggestion would involve a heavy burden upon the Treasury, but Mr. Lloyd George and other members pointed out that it would mean that for every £1,000,000 which it cost the Exchequer about £5,000,000 would have been spent on reconditioning and therefore in helping to deal with the problem of unemployment. It was urged that it would be much better to spend public money in this way than in merely increasing the debt of the Unemployment Insurance Fund with no prospect of recovering the money so spent on the "dole." It was agreed that the drafting of the clause might be improved, and Sir John Simon, Sir Herbert Samuel, Mr. George Lambert, and other members will undertake this task to-day. Various estimates have been suggested as to the cost of the concession, but the Liberals will suggest that the cost can be offset by receipts from Reparations and by a refusal on Mr. Snowden's part to carry out his present intention of liquidating the debts of his predecessor.

There is little likelihood that the Chancellor of the Exchequer will accept such a proposal except under very heavy pressure, but the Conservatives will be present in large numbers to-morrow, and they would doubtless be prepared to support the Liberal clause if it is pressed to a division. As the discussion on the Finance Bill is to be followed by the consideration of the House of Lords' amendments to the Coal Mines Bill it is obvious that the Government are in for a difficult time to-morrow. Behind the scenes they will be attacked by their own back bench members at party meetings on their unemployment policy to-day and on the new naval shipbuilding programme to-morrow. It is little wonder that members of all parties were wondering last night how long the Government can keep its ship afloat in the present sea of troubles.

NAVAL TREATY

REASSEMBLY OF U.S. SENATE

A WARNING BY MR. HOOVER

WASHINGTON, JULY 7

When the roll of the Senate was called this morning 58 members answered to their names, nine more than is required for a quorum. Other Senators still absent are hurrying back to Washington at the call either of the President or of the leaders of their parties, and the danger of which the Press has made so much for a week past that President Hoover's summons to the Upper House of Congress to discuss the Naval Treaty of London would not be heeded by more than half the Senate has been averted. There remains only a doubt whether the opponents of the Treaty can obstruct the taking of a vote on the question of consent to ratification so long that in weariness the Senate might decide to adjourn until after the November election.

The formal reading by the Clerk of the President's Message on the subject of the Treaty was the principal business of the day.

Presentation of his views of the subject, Mr. Hoover's Message ran, was especially necessary because of the "misinformation and misrepresentation" spread by those who "in reality are opposed to all limitation and reduction in naval arms." He referred to groups in the United States, Great Britain, and Japan "who believe in unrestricted military strength," but declared his belief that the sole purpose of the American people was national defence, and the aspiration the abolishing of competition in armaments, and that the only way to obtain such a result was by international agreement.

The President touched on the very nerve centre of the opposition to this Treaty when he wrote "it is folly to think that because we are the richest nation in the world we can outbuild all other countries."

Other nations (the Message continued) will make any sacrifice to maintain their instruments of defence against us, and we shall eventually reap in their hostility and ill-will the full measure of the additional burden which we may thus impose upon them. The very entry of the United States into such courses as this would invite the consolidation of the rest of the world against us, and bring our peace and independence into jeopardy. We have only to look at the state of Europe in 1914 to find ample evidence of the futility and danger of competition in arms.

FLEET STRENGTHS

Three-fourths of the Message was a discussion of the comparative total tonnage of the United States, British, and Japanese Fleets, the allotment to each of 8in. and 6in. gun vessels in the cruiser category, and of the saving in money to the United States represented by the terms of the Treaty as against the completion of the present naval programme, plus the replacement authorized and necessary under the Washington Agreement.

Of this last President Hoover wrote that it would "cost in construction over $500,000,000 more during the next six years than the fleet provided under this Treaty." And later he added, "The question before us now is not whether we shall have the Treaty with either three more 8in. cruisers or four less 6in. cruisers, or whether we shall have a larger reduction in tonnage. It is whether we shall have this Treaty or no Treaty." He thought it important for many reasons that the question should be dealt with at once. The subject had been under discussion since the Geneva Conference three years ago, the lines of the Treaty had been known since last summer, the actual document had been before the American people and the Senate for nearly three months. Every fact which could affect their judgment was known, and the document itself comprised the sole obligation of the United States. "If we fail now," he concluded, "the world will again be plunged backward from its progress toward peace."

The Message was quietly heard, and nothing would have remained but the formal reading of the Treaty and an adjournment until to-morrow, had not Senator McKellar, of Tennessee, introduced a resolution. In this unrolled, through innumerable whereases, the complaint that only part of the documents exchanged between the parties in the negotiations before the signing of the Treaty had been made available to the Senate, a complaint of which much will be heard in the days to come. The resolution ended with another request for the submission of all letters, telegrams, cablegrams, memoranda, and files concerning the Treaty, and it moved Senator Reed, of Pennsylvania, to renew his statement that he and Senator Robinson, of Arkansas, as members of the United States delegation, had confidential possession of these documents. He would be willing, he announced, to show them to any Senator who would accept them in the confidence with which he had accepted them.

This was Senator Johnson's opportunity. He made derisive play with Senator Reed's offer to "permit" his colleagues to see what they should see of right. He declined the offer with scorn. He demanded that these communications upon which the Treaty had been based should be given to the Senate, and he is likely to abound in this sense every day in the week. The resolution went over until to-morrow, when the Senate will meet at noon, and Senator Swanson will commend the Treaty in a speech lasting at least two hours.

SOVIET TIMBER FOR THE UNITED STATES

QUESTION OF AN EMBARGO

It is stated that the British Government is taking up the question of the prohibition of the unloading of British cargo ships in American ports under the new U.S. tariff law, to which reference was made in The Times of yesterday. The legislation provides for the prohibition of imports wholly or partly manufactured or produced by convict labour. The vessels, together with ships of other nationalities, had been chartered to load timber in Russia for United States ports.

The British Ambassador in Washington has been instructed to approach the American authorities, on the ground, it is announced, that "it would be manifestly unjust suddenly to enforce an Act without warning shipping." The British Government is, therefore, asking that British ships already on their way to America should be allowed to land their cargoes.

Our Washington Correspondent says that up to a late hour yesterday the officials of the United States Treasury had not made known their decision on the question of the possible prohibition of the import of cargoes of lumber from Soviet Russia.

Comment on the difficulties that have arisen is made in our City Notes.

CHEAPER HOUSE COAL

Leading South Yorkshire collieries have made further reductions in house coal in the hope of clearing stocks and inducing householders to lay in winter supplies earlier than usual. Best qualities are 3s. a ton cheaper at the pit and kitchen sorts 1s. 6d. a ton lower.

COMMONS AND THE FINANCE BILL

TAXATION OF WASTING ASSETS

WEST INDIAN SUGAR

WESTMINSTER, MONDAY

A section of the Unionist Opposition continued their cross-examination on the Naval Treaty at question-time to-day. In a series of replies the PRIME MINISTER explained that the figure of 91,000 tons for British cruiser replacements up to 1935 had been first mentioned during the conversations with the United States last August as a basis on which a Treaty might be concluded. He also denied that Lord Jellicoe had in any way been prevented from being the delegate of the New Zealand Government, or that any Dominion had had its choice restricted. Finally he said that the legislation, which would, by custom, precede ratification of the Treaty, would annul the so-called Root (Washington) Treaty, which dealt with submarines and had never been operative, and possibly substitute a clause embodying the new agreements concerning the restrictions on submarine warfare.

"HARDY ANNUALS"

When the House returned to the Finance Bill it took the "hardy annuals" at top speed. The first was for the separate taxation of husband and wife; and MR. GRAHAM declared that it would cost £8,000,000 a year, rising to £35,000,000, when spouses had shown reciprocal confidence enough to divide their wealth equally between them. The extra relief already granted to married men in respect of their wives now cost £17,000,000 a year, which was a substantial encouragement of marriage. To make the married, and especially the wealthy married, a present of £35,000,000 a year would be unjust to the other taxpayers.

There was no division on this clause, nor on the next clause, in which LIEUTENANT-COMMANDER KENWORTHY proposed the repeal of the duty on turpentine and white spirit. MR. SNOWDEN made no attempt to justify the duty, but he was allowed to keep the £350,000 which it yielded upon a vague promise to repeal it as soon as he could.

The proposal of SIR BASIL PETO to institute an allowance in respect of wasting assets was much more strongly pressed. It had been recommended by the Royal Commission on Income Tax in 1920 and successive Chancellors of the Exchequer had promised to consider it.

MR. GRAHAM now reported that the Government had made a new effort in conversation with the F.B.I. and Associated Chambers of Commerce. So far it had failed on the point that a wasting asset must not have a longer life than 35 years, but he would try again. After a reminder by SIR H. BETTERTON that nothing could better advance rationalization than this sort of allowance, the House did not insist further for the moment.

The first division was challenged on the Government's refusal to relieve the proceeds of life insurance policies from part of the estate duties, a refusal which MR. PETHICK-LAWRENCE based upon the injustice of encouraging one form of thrift only. After this, in a most urbane atmosphere, MR. SNOWDEN accepted as a stimulus to rationalization MAJOR NATHAN'S proposal to exempt from transfer stamp duty transfers of property as between associated companies, MR. ROMERIL'S to exempt certain superannuation funds from income-tax, and MR. MATTERS'S to allow deduction of agents' fees from copyright royalties assessed to tax.

WEST INDIES

SIR ASSHETON POWNALL then attempted to help the West Indies by moving to increase the preference on Empire-grown sugar from ¼d. to ½d. a lb. MAJOR DAVIES claimed that help to these Colonies was an Imperial duty and a moral responsibility, as Lord Olivier's report had shown.

MR. ORMSBY-GORE asked why the Government's decision to help the natives of East Africa should be "irrevocable," while they refused any similar trusteeship for the natives of the West Indies, whose sugar crop was excluded by tariffs from every market save Great Britain and Canada. If help was not given by preference, this country would have to find at least £1,000,000 a year to keep the population from starvation. The preference would cost only about £700,000 a year. MR. TINNE, himself a sugar grower, urged that the extinction of the West Indian industry would allow other sugar growers to exploit the British consumer.

MR. SNOWDEN fully admitted his responsibility to the West Indian population, but an increased preference was the wrong way to discharge it. It would cost at least £1,500,000 a year, and would do nothing effective to make up the difference between the cost of production and world price. He could not accept it. The Government had already taken steps to permit the harvesting of this year's crop, and had told the Governors of Colonies that they would provide relief if necessary. MR. AMERY poured scorn on sympathy which was so unpractical as to suggest nothing but doles; but the Government won the division by 246 votes to 141.

PRINCE TAKAMATSU

VISIT TO PORTSMOUTH DOCKYARD

PORTSMOUTH, JULY 7

Prince Takamatsu motored to Portsmouth to-day and spent several hours inspecting the naval establishments. On his arrival in Portsmouth Dockyard the Prince, who was in the uniform of a lieutenant in the Japanese Navy, was received by Admiral of the Fleet Sir Roger Keyes, Commander-in-Chief, and Vice-Admiral L. A. B. Donaldson, Admiral Superintendent.

The Prince went aboard H.M.S. Victory and was conducted over the vessel by the Commander-in-Chief and spent half an hour aboard her. On going ashore again he saw the panorama picture of the Battle of Trafalgar painted by Mr. W. L. Wyllie, R.A., which was shown to him by the artist.

After lunching at Admiralty House with the Commander-in-Chief and Lady Keyes, the Prince went to Whale Island, where Captain G. C. C. Royle conducted him through the Gunnery School, and before leaving the Prince watched with interest the rehearsal of some of the episodes in the Gunnery School's Centenary tattoo.

CABINET COUNCIL

A Cabinet Council was held at 6.30 p.m. yesterday in the Prime Minister's Room, House of Commons. There were present:—

Mr. MacDonald, Mr. Snowden, Mr. Henderson, Mr. Thomas, Lord Parmoor of Frieth, Lord Sankey, Mr. Clynes, Mr. Benn, Mr. Shaw, Brigadier-General Lord Thomson, Mr. Hartshorn, Mr. Greenwood, Dr. Addison, Sir Charles Trevelyan, Mr. Graham, Mr. Adamson, and Mr. Lansbury.

COMMUNISM IN FINLAND

DEMONSTRATION OF PROTEST

HELSINGFORS, JULY 7

The political situation is considered to have improved to-day, especially as the demonstration of the 12,000 Lapua men was carried out peacefully and in a very impressive manner, culminating in the singing of the national anthem by about 20,000 citizens outside the Government building. Intense patriotic feeling was aroused by the spectacle of the crowd of stern looking, simple clad peasants confronting the leading men of the country and embodying the will of the rural population to take part in a joint national effort to stamp out Communism. The demonstrators propose to leave the town to-night.

It is evident that the leaders of the Lapua movement intend to retain control of political developments, and to-day they issued a proclamation declaring that they are of opinion that direct action against the Communists should now cease, provided the Cabinet takes immediate steps to enact the new anti-Communist legislation. The next move remains with Parliament, which is now debating the Bills.

It is reported that the Social Democrats are discussing whether, in the absence of a promise by the Cabinet to guarantee security, they should take part in the Parliamentary Session. It is understood that many members prefer to stay away, but no decision has yet been made. In Parliament to-day representatives of all parties except the Communists, who were absent, made protests against the abduction on Saturday of two Communist members of the House. The two abducted members were released this morning by their abductors at Lapua, 200 miles from Helsingfors, and handed over to the police. The abductors, it is understood, remain free.

THE TRAMP PROBLEM

ABUSES OF THE CASUAL WARD SYSTEM

(From Our Parliamentary Correspondent)

The Departmental Committee of the Ministry of Health which was set up to inquire into the administration of the existing casual ward system has now completed its task and has agreed upon a unanimous report.

The report discloses the fact that there are about 100,000 persons living in lodging houses, in casual wards, or under hedges, and schemes are suggested for reducing this number and for inducing persons to forsake a life of vagrancy. It is proposed, for instance, that new officers should be appointed whose duty would be to try to persuade the older vagrants to go into homes and the younger ones into training centres. In the casual wards themselves, it is suggested, there should be suitable opportunities for bathing, sleeping, and cleansing under the care of full-time officials. Regular medical inspection should be arranged and there should be closer cooperation between vagrancy committees and similar bodies in a district. Advisory committees should be appointed to see how far young men who are just taking to the life of the road can be assisted to find work. In the wards, gruel should be removed from the diet, which should be improved to include at least 2oz. of fresh or tinned meat at the midday meal.

The committee further suggest that permission should be given to men to smoke so long as adequate safeguards are provided, and that stonebreaking should only be allowed as a task after a special request to allow it has received the sanction of the Minister of Health. A man should be required to stay two nights in a casual ward and to work during the intervening day.

The committee as a result of the evidence came to the conclusion that vagrancy committees are apt to look upon the casuals as men who do not belong to them. The conditions in some of the existing casual wards are described as infamous and intolerable, and a reference is made to a number of abuses which it is felt should be remedied. They include cells 9ft. by 4ft. where men are kept in darkness for 12 or 13 hours; a casual ward where there are no baths and night clothes are not supplied to the men, and places in which men detained over a Sunday are not allowed to leave the block in which they have been placed. Some of the tasks are described as useless and degrading to the men who have to waste their time upon them.

CRICKET

THE UNIVERSITY MATCH

After a day of fluctuating fortunes at Lord's, Cambridge, in spite of some disasters, had no reason to feel despondent at the end of the first day's play in the University Match. They started excellently, having 139 runs on the board before the first wicket fell, just before luncheon. Thereafter something in the nature of a rot set in, the bowling of I. A. R. Peebles being chiefly responsible, but in the end they put together 288 runs and at the close of play had dismissed three Oxford batsmen for a score of only 68 runs. Peebles took seven wickets for 75, an admirable performance. Oxford, having had the run of the play largely in their favour after the luncheon interval, have been once more reduced to the position they occupied after losing the toss, and the first hour or two to-day may well settle the result of the match. Play will be begun at 11.30 a.m.

A full report from our Cricket Correspondent will be found on p. 7.

ERUPTION OF VESUVIUS

NAPLES, July 7.—An eruption of Vesuvius, with lava spouting to a height of nearly 90ft., began to-day. The eruption occurred from the mouth of the small cone. Lava began to flow freely from the western base of the small cone, accompanied by the emission of slag. Two more fountains of lava, both on the north side of the cone, began to spout later, but these were not so active.—Reuter.

THE PRINCE OF WALES

The Prince of Wales will leave London by air for Belgium on July 29 to visit the Exhibition at Antwerp.

The Prince will fly to Brussels, where he will be the guest of the British Ambassador, Earl Granville. He will visit Antwerp on the following day and will probably return to London by air on July 31.

NORTH NORFOLK

POLLING TO-MORROW

MESSAGE FROM MR. BALDWIN

Candidates { Mr. T. A. Cook (U.)
{ Lady Noel-Buxton (Lab.).

Polling, To-morrow. Declaration, Thursday.

LAST ELECTION:—
Mr. N. Buxton (Lab.)	14,544
Mr. T. A. Cook (U.)	12,661
Mrs. C. F. Hoffman (L.)	3,403
Labour majority	1,883

CROMER, JULY 7

With only one day before polling both parties are working at high pressure. Mr. Amery and Lieutenant-Colonel Wilfrid Ashley are among the Conservative members of Parliament speaking in support of Mr. Cook, and Lord Beaverbrook will end his campaign by addressing three meetings to-morrow night. Lady Noel-Buxton has the support of Mr. Alexander, First Lord of the Admiralty, and Miss Bondfield, Minister of Labour, to-night; and Mr. Roberts, Minister of Pensions, will speak on her behalf to-morrow. The candidates and their supporters continue to address meetings in different parts of the division, which covers an area of some 400 square miles.

The Conservative candidate has received the following letter from Mr. Baldwin:—

July 5, 1930

Dear Mr. Cook,—The electors of North Norfolk at this election have a great opportunity of declaring the country's complete loss of confidence in the Socialist Government. Ever since it came into office unemployment, which was falling rapidly under the Conservative Government, has risen steadily month by month, until to-day the figures have reached almost unparalleled proportions; trade has steadily declined; industrial confidence has been destroyed; the Socialist Government has stood by idly watching the agricultural industry fall into deeper depression, and, despite all the Socialist promises at the last election, nothing has been achieved, nor any legislation passed, to improve the lot of the workers as a whole.

I observe that you have expressed your personal agreement with views which, in some respects, go beyond the official programme of the party. At the same time you have made it clear that, as a loyal supporter, you accept the policy which I have advocated in a number of speeches during the last few weeks. You whole-heartedly support the agricultural proposals of our party, including a guaranteed price for wheat, a tax on malting barley, and the prevention of dumping of bounty-fed oats from abroad. You are fighting to secure the safeguarding of our home industries from unfair foreign competition. Lastly, you are fighting the battle of Empire economic unity, an ideal at which Conservatives have aimed ever since the days of Mr. Joseph Chamberlain.

I am convinced that by the active prosecution of these measures alone can we find hope for the restoration of better times, and I trust that the electors of North Norfolk will return you to Parliament on Wednesday and thus bring us a step nearer to the day when we can put them into effect.

Yours sincerely,
(Signed) STANLEY BALDWIN.

Mr. Baldwin's letter was read by Mr. F. WORTLEY, the chairman of the Conservative Party in the division, at a meeting at Holt to-night. Mr. Wortley said if there was any doubt—and there had been ill-founded doubt—that the Conservative candidate was not going to have a message of hope and support from the leader of their party, that doubt was now dispelled. If differences had existed between Mr. Baldwin and Lord Beaverbrook, they were fast disappearing, and very soon they might be hand-in-hand assisting this country and the Empire towards prosperity.

LORD BEAVERBROOK, who addressed the meeting, said he appealed to the supporters of the Labour Party because in Empire free trade was a remedy for unemployment. He appealed to the farm workers, and said the policy of Empire free trade was the ploughman's policy. He also appealed to the farmers to support Mr. Cook. Empire free trade, he added, ought to make an immense appeal to the Liberals. It offered the Liberals the greatest area of free trade that could be imagined.

Both parties realize the importance of the Liberal vote in deciding the election, and it is believed that the number of Liberal abstentions will be smaller than was anticipated at the opening of the contest. The Labour Party claims that Lord Beaverbrook's campaign has consolidated a large section of the Liberal vote in their favour, although Liberal support is being given to the Conservative candidate.

The Labour Party have just issued an election sheet which states:—"Show Mr. Cook and newspaper millionaires who support him that Norfolk people know their own minds about food taxes." This is a theme on every Labour platform. Lord Rothermere visited the division yesterday.

LORD HEWART

Foreign Exchanges were rather more favourable to sterling, the Paris, New York, and Milan rates advancing. Swiss francs were again in demand. A sharp rise occurred in the Argentine exchange. Silver rose 5-16d. to 15⅞d. per oz. (p. 21)

In the Stock Markets yesterday the outstanding feature was the firmness of Gilt-Edged securities, the weakness of Brazilian bonds and shares, and the rising tendency shown by a number of British Industrial shares. Rubber and Tea shares were firm, but the Mining market was out of favour. (p. 20)

NANKING AND PEKING

The Chinese civil war drags slowly on. Between the Yangtze and the Yellow River the armies of the Central Government have evacuated part of Shantung, but are attempting to regain the lost ground and are attacking the important town of Kaifeng—presumably with the object of breaking through the centre of the Northerners. GENERAL CHIANG KAI-SHEK recently informed a party of journalists who visited his headquarters that the counter-attack was making excellent progress at Kaifeng and in Shantung and that the moral of the Northern forces was giving way under their losses. South of the Yangtze too the Government claim to have inflicted a complete defeat on the so-called "Ironsides" and the Kwangsi generals who have been endeavouring to create a diversion by attacking Changsha. These forces have been so often "annihilated" on paper, only to revive within a few weeks or months, that the official account of this success is likely to be accepted with a prudent reserve ; at the same time a victory that fell short of the "annihilation" of the rebels might still enable the Nanking Government further to strengthen their position north of the Yangtze. But in spite of the optimism of Nanking a complete victory for one side or the other seems as far off as ever, and good judges of Chinese affairs expect the campaign to end in a military stalemate. A peace imposed by military and financial exhaustion can hardly be more than a truce. The claims of the Northern generals are incompatible with the avowed policy of the ruling group of the Kuomintang. FENG YU-HSIANG and his ally YEN may claim that they are defending the principles of DR. SUN YAT-SEN and rescuing the Kuomintang Party from the dominance of a clique : they are, indeed, supported by numerous dissident members of the party and by "rebels" who have been officially expelled from its ranks. But what they are fighting for is in fact their own freedom from the political and financial control of Nanking. They are ready to admit the sovereignty of a Central Government provided that it does not touch their pockets or their prestige. At Nanking, on the other hand, the talk is all of centralization ; and, just as the Constitution framed by DR. SUN YAT-SEN was based upon the dictatorship of one party in the State, so that group of his followers who are now masters of the richest portion of the Yangtze basin will neither admit nor, if they are strong enough to prevent it, permit the existence of semi-independent satrapies.

Given these differences of outlook further struggles between the Central authority and rebel Tuchuns seem inevitable. The governing group at Nanking may give place to other chiefs, but causes of further conflict are likely to persist unless the Russian Constitution imposed upon China by the Kuomintang is modified. At present the Central Government can rightly claim to have restored a measure of order and organization in the four provinces on the Lower Yangtze which it has controlled since the Southern armies reached the river. Till the revival of civil war it was gradually extending its fiscal and administrative authority over a wider circle of provinces, and the work of its Minister of Finance, MR. T. V. SOONG, has won well-deserved praise. Unfortunately for its finances the outbreak of war has led to a very serious recrudescence of Communist insurrection and brigandage on the Middle Yangtze and in the Southern provinces, where military rebellion and economic depression have driven the peasantry to desperation and life and property are equally insecure. It would be unjust to blame Nanking alone for a state of affairs which is the natural consequence of the civil war, or to deny that personal ambition has played a great part in the rebellion of the Northern satraps. But it is at least arguable that the Russian Constitution imposed upon China by DR. SUN YAT-SEN has contributed to the distrust of the Central authority which has made rebellion so frequent and so general. The principle that Courts should be independent of executive control has yet to be recognized ; there is no public discussion of public affairs ; no final responsibility rests with the Ministers, for the last word is with the Central Executive Committee of the party. The same system is applied to the conduct of local affairs. The Tang-Pu or local executive Councils wield autocratic power over the officials, and, since no lists of their members are published, the public does not know who are its real rulers. According to the young members of the ruling party China is under tuition, but the Chinese would like to know who their tutors are. An "Invisible Government" which renders no full account of public moneys and maintains a severe censorship must expect to be accused of corruption. Some of the Tuchuns who have made war upon it profess to be shocked at the financial malpractices of important members of the party : others, no doubt, would like a larger share of the loot. But the system is one which is bound to breed enmity and suspicion.

All these points can fairly be made against the Central Government, and yet its position on the Yangtze and its control of the revenues of the great ports of Central China make its survival both desirable and probable. Peking may break away for a time, the North-Western provinces may escape for years from its control, but in the long run a Government established in what is still the richest part of China is most likely to last. To the foreign Governments which have much to gain from the peace and prosperity of a nation of 400,000,000 souls its emergence from its present difficulties is a major interest. The recognition of the Nanking Government by the Powers unquestionably did much to maintain it in power at a critical period of its fortunes : it is hardly too much to say that without such recognition it might have collapsed. Its imperfections are obvious, but there is no reason to believe that FENG, YEN, or the Kwangsi generals would have done any better, and there are good reasons for believing that the Yangtze valley is the only possible centre for a Government of China south of the Great Wall. This granted, is it desirable that the foreign Legations should remain at Peking—as far away from the capital, when the railway is in working order, as Madrid is from London, and much farther when the railway is cut? The maintenance of the Legations at Peking, in spite of the transfer of the capital, is bound to encourage influential elements in the North to hope for the restoration of a sovereign Government at the old capital and to frame their policy accordingly. The seizure of the Maritime Customs Administration by YEN HSI-SHAN and his appointment of a British nominee in the place of the BRITISH COMMISSIONER, who is an official of the Nanking Government, is an example of the annoying incidents to which the geographical separation of our Legation at Peking from the Nanking Government is likely to give rise. YEN is at present a rebel against the internationally recognized Government of China, but this does not alter the fact that his action must compel the British Legation sooner or later to negotiate with him on a matter which is of vital importance to foreign traders and foreign bondholders—an embarrassing duty, even though the former "Model "Tuchun" is now the de facto ruler of a large part of the North. Again, apart from the exposure of the Peking Legation to such embarrassments, the establishment of more frequent personal contact between SIR MILES LAMPSON and the Nanking Government is surely advisable in the interests both of this country and of China. The fact that power is in the hands of the Executive Council of the Kuomintang rather than with the Ministers makes it all the more imperative for the diplomatic body to obtain and maintain contact with the men who matter most, and it is at least possible that the uncompromising attitude which Nanking has shown on occasion in its treatment of foreign rights and interests is due to a natural soreness at the retention of the Legations at Peking. The immaturity of the Kuomintang Government may be admitted ; but will it be cured by isolation ?

A League of Students

The PRINCE of WALES asked the public last night to invest £30,000 in a new undertaking. Whether he be answered by the generous or by the discriminating, the result should be the same, and the National Union of Students should get its money, its headquarters, and a certain necessary endowment. The Union is a federation of the University Unions of the country. It is federated in its turn with an international union comprising similar Unions in three of the Dominions and in thirty-seven other countries. The world's undergraduate population—in a Confederation of 800,000 members—has within a few years and with the encouragement of the Universities quietly furnished itself with a remarkable organization. The twofold work of the British section illustrates the work of the whole. Its aims are to welcome and befriend the foreign or Dominion student, and to speed and help its own members abroad. On one side of its activities it is concerned with hospitality and on the other with travel. The whole is a practical venture in intellectual cooperation, set on foot as much to meet a need as to create it, and a practical extension of University life. Travel and study were never far apart, and travel, even unacademic travel, is a form of study in itself. The two are inseparable to-day. It is well for the world that youth should better acquaintance with youth and it is well for a nation, and not least for this nation, that it should not be outstripped by the experience of its friends and rivals.

Communism Repudiated in Finland

A remarkable demonstration in Helsingfors yesterday may be interpreted as a national announcement that Finland has definitely repudiated Bolshevism. The struggle between national and Communist influences has been continued with varying intensity ever since Finland obtained her complete freedom at the end of the War. There has never been much doubt as to the side on which the sympathies of the great majority of the population lay ; but Communism, sedulously fed and fostered from across the Russian border, still passed stealthily from factory to factory and from village to village, like a poisonous germ in the veins of the body politic. The Red agents had lately developed a talent for exploiting deficiencies in the Finnish police regulations ; and quite recently the group known as "The Young Communists" had been emboldened to invade the very stronghold of Finnish nationalism along the coast of the Gulf of Bothnia. This region had always been the hearth of the national spirit of independence whenever in days past Sweden or Russia tried to bring the country under a foreign yoke ; and, true to their regional traditions, its sturdy farmers now bound themselves together to resist Communism. The counter-movement began in the township of Lapua, where the Red rowdies were roughhandled ; and under the vigorous leadership of M. KOSOLA the Lapuans decided that the Communist pest must be destroyed not only in Ostrobothnia but throughout Finland. They therefore organized reprisals upon their enemies in as many villages as they could reach in that sparsely populated country, and in the Capital itself. Some of their activities certainly did not come within the four corners of legality ; but public opinion decided that the fault lay not so much with the Lapuans as with the law.

The Government of the day accordingly summoned an extraordinary session of Parliament on the first of this month for the sole purpose of legalizing more drastic action against political agitators. The proposals of M. KALLIO (then Prime Minister) did not satisfy the Lapuans ; and he made way for a national Government under M. SVINHUFVUD, the principal political figure of Finland, who had greatly contributed to the liberation of his country in 1918 and had then become its Regent. He has now been able to form a Ministry from all parties except the Social Democrats and the Communists ; and the Social Democrats fully share his abhorrence of Communist doctrines. His task must be to restore general confidence and to strengthen the hands of the law against the violence of Right and Left. Yesterday's demonstration augurs well for his success. The 12,000 persons gathered together in the vast central square of Helsingfors opened the proceedings with Divine service, and the subsequent processions passed off amid scenes of great enthusiasm but without any disturbance to the public peace. The Lapuans moreover are satisfied, and were last night dispersing to their village homes. M. SVINHUFVUD is known to enjoy the complete confidence of the PRESIDENT of the REPUBLIC ; he clearly has national sentiment behind him ; and GENERAL MANNERHEIM, who was so prominent in suppressing the early efforts of the "Red Guards" to dominate the young Republic, was specially invited to be present at yesterday's demonstration, and made a patriotic speech, as did also PRESIDENT RELANDER. It is manifested to the world that Finland, which has had ample opportunities of testing Communism at close quarters, has no use for it whatever.

Wimbledon

American players won their fourth of the five titles open for competition at Wimbledon yesterday. There has never been such a clean sweep by one country since lawn tennis players began to come from other lands to Wimbledon in search of fame and honour, and—as if to emphasize their superiority—the Americans had ousted the representatives of all other countries from these four events before the final round was reached. Many people may regard with complacency the victories of such well-established players as MR. W. T. TILDEN and MRS. F. S. MOODY in the belief that they may soon pass from the scene and leave their honours to others ; but the sting of the Americans' success lies rather in the way in which their younger representatives have overthrown the best players from other countries. That shows that they have a new generation worthy to carry on the traditions of the old. Other countries have been as busily employed in the search for new players as the Americans, but none has had the same success.

It may not be unnatural to look for reasons, and some must have been apparent to those who attended Wimbledon during the past fortnight. Though lawn tennis as played in the championships is one of the most strenuous and exhausting games, it has not generally attracted the highest type of athlete in this country. It must be admitted that the young Americans showed far nobler fighting qualities and more robust physique than most of the players from elsewhere. They made the winning of their matches their one object and concerned themselves with that alone. One of the chief troubles with lawn tennis in England at the present time, and it is the same in some other games, is that young players get too much publicity at the outset of their careers. Some slight performance of merit is so loudly proclaimed that their names are on every one's lips. They attain a false fame and sense of their own importance. They grow contemptuous of the great players of the past, from whom they might learn much, and forget that they have done little to put themselves in the same class. They are sometimes tempted also by the offer of large fees to contribute their views on the game to the popular Press, though their contributions may possess little value, and some of them, it is said, are not even seen by those whose names they bear. That does little good to the player or to the game. Rules have been framed at times to stop the nuisance of the player-writer and of the "ghost" who retails his articles under a popular name. If these rules were enforced more rigidly, and extended so as to get rid of the nuisance altogether, English lawn tennis would benefit in many ways.

The Creator of Sherlock Holmes

A party of French schoolboys who visited London not long ago were asked what it was that they most wished to see. They replied, "The rooms of Sherlock Holmes in Baker-"street." It was an answer that every one understands, for few localities have been so enriched by the imaginative splendours of a human pen, and the literary map of England, after it has shown the boundaries of HARDY'S Wessex and the BRONTË country, must remember a lighter immortality and find space for a little inset map of a street which the voices of bus conductors can never render commonplace—so memorable are the deeds that were done there towards the close of the nineteenth century. There came a point at which CONAN DOYLE grew weary of Sherlock Holmes and his genius for stealing and keeping more than his due share of public attention. Like the Greek who grew weary of hearing ARISTIDES called the Just, so the creator of Sherlock Holmes found even his great qualities an offence when too long and incessant a fuss was made about them. Certainly no one who passes in review the whole gallery of the author's invention but will pay tribute to his magnificent and astonishing range. He holds his high place among the story-tellers because he not only brought into the world a succession of highly entertaining personages, but could devise surroundings for them which enabled them to display their characteristic excellences to the full. Those who follow the fortunes of Rodney Stone, of the White Company, of the Brigadier Gerard, of Micah Clarke, and a crowd of others, share momentous events by the side of intimate friends, and this double gift of providing at once good company and stirring deeds was displayed by CONAN DOYLE in his short stories as well as in his books. Seeing what perils they ran, and how nobly, it is easy to understand the resentment of the rest of the Conan Doyle characters that pride of place must always be yielded to a lean and somewhat inhuman scientific student of crime, living not in the brave and brutal fourteenth century or at the heart of the Napoleonic epic, but amid the hansom cabs and street urchins of the London of the later eighties.

Perhaps that humdrum setting is part of the spell. The passionate disciples of Sherlock Holmes will continue to aver, in the face of the indignant Brigadier flourishing his sabre at this English civilian, that romance and realism meet in Holmes alone. His creator paid him the rare compliment of bringing him back to life, and he continued to impart his prized confidences off and on for another thirty years, because from his first appearance he was recognized as someone whom the world would not willingly let die. Times have changed ; much is at the service of the modern detective that was unknown to Holmes, and he is already the chief link of modern boys with the social life of Victorian England. He may soon need to be edited with notes, as he has already received the honour of a higher criticism dealing with the corpus of writings on his life. Shy and remote, and lacking any semblance of the gifts of a "good mixer," Sherlock Holmes finds himself nevertheless the most widely known character in modern English fiction, the man of whom it would be safest to bet that the first dozen people in every street had heard. Fame is capricious, and even those whom she visits must accept her on her own terms. MILTON preferred "Paradise Regained" to the epic the world has chosen to bracket with his name, and HARDY was more interested in his poems than in his novels. CONAN DOYLE, who became a teacher with a mission in his later years, might not particularly desire, but had certainly earned, the grateful salute of the world to a teller of tales who gave, and continues to give, as much pleasure to his fellows as any writer of the age.

BANKERS AND EMPIRE TRADE

MORE VIEWS ON THE MANIFESTO

AN ARGUMENT FROM SHIPPING

TO THE EDITOR OF THE TIMES

Sir,—Your leading article of to-day dealing with the banking pronouncement that we must face the fact that the original hope for world free trade has been disappointed, and that the British Empire can no longer afford to be the butt of those causing her loss of trade and consequent unemployment here, confirms the conviction which should reach the thinking masses.

Already many of the most prominent industrials and the guiding spirits of the unions are recognizing what they have to face, and that they will have to abandon old and now useless traditions.

In spite of any personal political adherence to recollections of the Cobden tradition, the controllers of the great steamship lines have for years surrounded their position (where possible) with safeguarding agreements and tariffs, without which protection they would not be able to keep up their regular sailings during the present extreme depression.

Yours, &c.,

Liverpool, July 5. CONVERTED.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE TIMES

Sir,—It is only fair that it should be recorded that there are some bankers beyond those responsible for the manifesto published in your columns on Saturday last, and, what is more, that many of these would be by no means in agreement with the said manifesto. There are eminent names among the friends of Sir Eric Hambro who conferred and agreed with him, but it was not a committee of bankers generally and therefore cannot speak with authority for all.

There are still some of us antiquated fossils (who nevertheless have studied the question in the light of both economic science and modern conditions) who cannot make out why it is not a very good thing to encourage foreign imports inasmuch as (i.) a profit is left here in so doing ; and (ii.) they are paid for by goods and services made and rendered by British men and women. This seems to us almost a mathematically demonstrable proposition in any circumstances running over a series of years, and, if it be so, we cannot for the life of us understand why it will not increase unemployment if there are not the goods to be made and the services to be rendered which pay for these imports. And again we cannot see how any barrier set up against foreign imports is not going to increase the price of goods retailed in this country, and, if so, to leave every one of us with less money to spend on other things.

The great thing is to encourage the spending of money by those who have it and thus encourage trade. That alone will make industry profitable, and profits alone will lead to plenty of employment. People cannot carry on business for long unless they make a profit. Of course all this is utterly obsolete free trade, but we feel it must be correct nevertheless as an economic proposition.

I am your obedient servant,

R. L. BARCLAY.

Gaston House, Bishops Stortford, July 7.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE TIMES

Sir,—Sir Josiah Stamp has been guilty of a not unusual solecism. Confronted with a logical statement of opinion, with which he is clearly not in agreement, he cowers behind the age-old tag, "Let me understand just exactly what it is you mean." 'Tis a device well known since dialectic began. He follows, as is also usual, by imputing ambiguity ; he strips half a phrase from its context, and, in the manner of the schoolman, discusses its various possible meanings.

If the significant words, "duties on all imports from all other countries," are replaced in the bankers' phrase, "while being prepared to impose duties on all imports from all other countries," they become incapable of three meanings, and capable only of one. Thus the bankers do not suggest a general tariff on everything, nor do they attempt to specify what imports are involved ; nor do they refer to imports such as the Empire does not produce. Their very clear statement, if paraphrase is needed, is that they would exclude no import duty if a duty on that import is needed in order to reach a reciprocal trade agreement with another constituent nation in the Empire.

I am, &c.,

THE SIMON REPORT

TO THE EDITOR OF THE TIMES

Sir,—When the Montagu-Chelmsford Report was issued the Viceroy was careful to see that it was judged on its merits. A summary in newspaper language was telegraphed to every journal in India ; the Report was made everywhere available at the price of a rupee ; the recommendations were crystallized and explained in an authoritative pamphlet, which was translated into the principal vernaculars and distributed by the hundred thousand.

It is imperative that the contents of the Simon Report should be made widely known in India, not merely because of its recommendations, but for the exhaustive study of problems in the constitutional growth of India, which will have to be faced whoever has the framing of the final scheme.

May I, in endorsing your appeal for the fullest possible publicity, urge that the precedent of 1918 should be followed—that the argument and recommendations should be embodied in a short pamphlet, couched in the simplest language, so that all may understand it, and circulated throughout India, in English and the vernaculars ?

Yours truly,

Wendover, July 6. STANLEY REED.

THE AGE OF AN OAK

TO THE EDITOR OF THE TIMES

Sir,—Some time ago I found this English translation of an old Gaelic rhyme, which may be interesting :—

Thrice the age of a dog is the age of a horse ;
Thrice the age of a horse is the age of a man ;
Thrice the age of a stag is the age of an eagle ;
Thrice the age of an eagle is the age of an oak tree.

So if we take the age of a man at threescore years and ten, this table would give the age of an oak tree as 1,890 years.

DARTMOUTH.

Patshull House, Wolverhampton, July 3.

A MISUNDERSTANDING

TO THE EDITOR OF THE TIMES

Sir,—The Times newspaper has warmly supported every endeavour to preserve the amenities of the English countryside, and this support has everywhere been noticed with corresponding appreciation and gratitude. It is because of this, and because you would never desire, or knowingly permit, your agents directly or indirectly to act contrary to your declared policy in these matters, that I would call your attention to a hoarding recently erected in this neighbourhood. Among the placards pasted on it was one for "The Times Furnishing Company, Limited." To me and to others both the position and the contents of the hoarding have been a matter of no small aesthetic offence.

Your obedient servant,

SYDNEY J. ENGLAND.

Holmwood, Broadlands-avenue, Shepperton-on-Thames.

 The Times Furnishing Company has not, and has never had, the remotest connexion with The Times newspaper, though the style of Old English lettering used in its announcements has led many people to the same false impression as that of our correspondent.

INDIA HOUSE

OPENING BY THE KING TO-DAY

NEW IMPERIAL HOME IN LONDON

India House, Aldwych, will be opened by the King-Emperor, accompanied by the Queen-Empress, at noon to-day. Their Majesties will be received by Sir Atul Chatterjee, the High Commissioner. Sir Herbert Baker, the architect, will offer to the King a gold key with which to unlock the door. His Majesty's speech, which is to be broadcast, will be made in the library in reply to an address by the High Commissioner.

After the departure of their Majesties from India House the invited guests will have an opportunity to look round the building. In particular they will see the exhibition hall, where there has been assembled, under the direction of the Trade Commissioner for India (Mr. H. A. F. Lindsay), a striking and beautiful display of Indian arts and crafts, with dioramas of some of the chief industries. Most of the exhibits are gifts from Provincial Governments, Indian States, great industrial concerns, and individuals. Most appropriately the collection includes a loan from the Queen of an inlaid pinjra fourfold screen presented by Indians to her Majesty and placed by her at the disposal of the Government of India on permanent loan.

Special arrangements have been made for the broadcast of his Majesty's speech to be heard in India, but experiments made at noon yesterday were not very satisfactory, owing to the heavy air traffic at that time. Before leaving India House their Majesties will sign a few visitors' book.

India House is an impressive embodiment in London of the advance of India toward "the progressive realization of responsible government in India as an integral part of the British Empire." For more than sixty years after the passing of the Government of India Act of 1858 the Secretary of State for India, either by his own authority or in association with his Council, discharged every function of Government in connexion with India in this country. When the Montagu-Chelmsford reforms were under consideration a Committee, presided over by Lord Crewe, recommended the appointment of a High Commissioner to discharge the "agency" work for the Central and Provincial Governments, as distinct from the political and administrative functions discharged by the India Office. Accordingly the Act of 1919 authorized the appointment of a High Commissioner, who is not subject to the orders of the Secretary of State, nor is his establishment part of the India Office.

It will be 10 years next October since the appointment of the first High Commissioner, the late Sir William Meyer. Two houses in Grosvenor-gardens, near Victoria Station, were converted to office use. The accommodation soon became inadequate owing to the expansion of the work of the office. A third house was taken in 1922 and later part of a fourth. But these jumbled quarters were unsuited to be a centre of Indian work in the metropolis. Sir William Meyer died after two years' tenure, and his successor, Sir Dadiba Dalal, resigned within 18 months of taking charge.

Sir Atul Chatterjee is thus the first High Commissioner to serve for the full term of five years. He would have retired in the normal course at the beginning of the present year, but, most fitly, was offered and accepted a 12 months' extension, which has enabled him to bring to completion an undertaking of which he has been the main inspirer and guide. His tentative proposals for the building of a new India House had the encouragement of Lord Reading's Government. Later a detailed project was accepted by Lord Irwin's Government, and the Legislative Assembly voted a total sum of £324,000 for erection and equipment.

JOHN COMPANY

The term "India House" (with the prefix "East") is not new to London. Indeed, there may well be a number of people living within the Metropolitan area old enough to remember the appearance of East India House in Leadenhall-street, for it was not finally demolished until 1861. An earlier home which the East India Company occupied from 1621 to 1638, Crosby Hall, is still in existence, though removed from the original site in Bishopsgate to Chelsea. For more than two centuries "John Company" ruled from East India House in Leadenhall-street. It was there that Charles Lamb did clerical duty for a generation in the Accountant's office and produced the 100 official folios of what he called his "true works."

The palatial building to be opened by his Majesty to-day differs from its predecessors and from the India Office in that it is definitely Indian in provenance. The functions to be there discharged are many and varied. The High Commissioner is responsible for the purchase of railway material and other non-military stores required for the Indian Governments, Central and Provincial. The detailed work is done at the Stores Depôt in Lambeth, near Waterloo Station. The High Commissioner also recruits such personnel for the service as the Provincial Governments draw from this country, and also for the Government of India, with the exception that the All-India services are recruited by the Secretary of State. The "H. C." pays the pensions and leave salaries of all civil officers retired and on furlough from the Indian services. He supervises the work of the Trade Commissioner for India, who now has in the exhibition hall the setting for a display of Indian products in a locality readily accessible to City men and to the general public.

Further, the High Commissioner is charged generally with the protection of the interests of Indian nationals, and in particular he endeavours, with the aid of an Education Department, to provide assistance for all students from India who seek his help in the arrangement of their courses of study and their admission to schools and other institutions. All official Indian publications are to be stored and sold at India House. Further, the High Commissioner has taken an increasingly important part in international and Imperial work. As noted in the Report of the Simon Commission, Sir Atul Chatterjee has been leader of the Government group of the Indian delegation to successive meetings of the International Labour Conference ; and he represents India on the governing body of the International Labour Organization. He has also held the distinguished position of president of the Conference.

But the purposes for which India House has been erected are not exclusively official. Indian visitors have even more need than those from the Dominions for a venue equipped with libraries and reading-rooms and prepared to furnish the information that may be required. As explained in an illustrated brochure to be given to the guests at to-day's ceremony, it is the purpose of the High Commissioner to make India House in the truest sense the London home of India. A few copies of the brochure will be available later for sale to the public.

INDIAN MOTIVES

The building, designed by Sir Herbert Baker, A.R.A., is, properly for its place, not so much a blending of Eastern and Western architectural styles as an infusion of Indian motives and materials into a structure that is essentially European. As such, it is remarkably successful in design, though there is a good deal to criticize in the actual workmanship of some of the details. The plan, a segmental curve on Aldwych with a straight return on Montreal-place, was already decided by the general lay-out of the Bush House site. It is to be regretted that the window levels do not correspond to those of Bush House, but the radical difference in interior accommodation made that impossible, and the discrepancy is not nearly so disturbing to the street frontage as seemed likely in the early stages of the building.

For rough-and-ready description India House might be compared to an Italian palazzo with an Oriental flavour, and it is only after examination that one discovers how slight are the means by which the flavour is produced. Take away the grey columns supported on elephants' heads and supporting lions, which flank the entrance, the balconies, linked by an inscription, which distinguish the High Commissioner's and secretarial floor, and the pierced parapet above the cornice, and what remains is a Renaissance building, almost as simple as Bush House itself. In spite of its Indian motives, India House is anything but an ornate building, and to have diffused so general a flavour of the East over the façades by the just placing of the features named is evidence of skill and taste on the part of its designer. The roundels, in coloured relief, symbolizing the Provinces of India, on the spandrels of the window arches on the ground floor, occur just where they are wanted from a decorative point of view.

On entering the building you are struck at once by the masculine firmness and simplicity of the planning. Architecturally the backbone of the building is the circular entrance hall, vaulted below—in the basement—in the style of a crypt and continued above through a circular gallery to a dome, which terminates on the third, or High Commissioner's, floor in an octagonal lantern of pierced white Indian marble. All the carved stone in the building, it may be said, and all the woodwork employed are Indian. For the plain surfaces in the entrance hall, and elsewhere, a pink Dumfries freestone is used, matching in colour the Agra sandstone of the carved balustrade to the double staircase. The floor of the entrance hall is inlaid in coloured marbles with the symbols of the 12 Provinces of India, which, together with the Rose, Thistle, Leek, and Shamrock, are repeated in the carved white marble balustrade of the gallery above, and from the terminal octagon hangs a many-globed lamp of beaten bronze. The effect, when this is lighted, is very striking.

THE CARVED WOOD

To the left of the entrance hall is the gallery of the exhibition room, itself sunk to the basement level, where examples of Indian craftsmanship are displayed. The gallery is supported by brackets of Agra sandstone carved with Indian motives, the side spaces above and below being divided into three bays by stone piers. It is in looking at the carved wooden balustrade of the gallery that some disappointment is felt, and it may be said that the workmanship in carved wood throughout the building strikes one as mechanical and suggestive of "shop finish." The wood panelling, on the other hand, is excellent, and the employment of native woods makes this one of the most interesting features of the building. The large committee room, to the right of the entrance hall, panelled in Indian Laurel, the small committee room, on the return, in Koko, and the reception room—above the exhibition room and, like it, galleried and divided into three bays at the sides—in Andaman Padaok, are particularly successful interiors. For the floors Andaman Gurjan is chiefly used. The characters and sources of these woods, mostly from the Andaman Islands and Burma, were described by Mr. H. Stainton-Tireman in the Indian Number of The Times of February 18.

Most of the ceilings throughout the building are simply vaulted in plaster, with the windows entering by lunettes, and it is intended that they shall be decorated by Indian painters. From the roof of India House there is a magnificent view, extending on the south from Vauxhall to the Tower Bridge, with the Crystal Palace on the horizon, and making it evident how completely Greater London is surrounded by a ring of wooded hills.

TO-DAY'S CEREMONY

OFFICIAL PROGRAMME

At 11.45 a.m. the King-Emperor and Queen-Empress, attended by the Secretary of State for India, the Lady-in-Waiting, the Lord, Groom, and Equerry-in-Waiting, will leave Buckingham Palace and drive via The Mall, Admiralty Arch, and the Strand to India House in Aldwych. At the entrance of the building their Majesties will be received by Sir Atul Chatterjee, High Commissioner for India, who will present the architect, Sir Herbert Baker. The architect will offer to the King-Emperor a gold key, which, after unlocking the door, his Majesty will deliver to the High Commissioner. After their Majesties have entered the building the High Commissioner will present Lady Chatterjee, and a bouquet will be presented to her Majesty.

The King-Emperor and the Queen-Empress will then be conducted up the reception staircase to the dais in the library on the first floor, where the guests will be assembled. When their Majesties have taken their places on the dais the National Anthem will be played. The High Commissioner will read and present an address to the King-Emperor to which his Majesty will reply.

The High Commissioner will then present to their Majesties:—Dr. Oscar Faber, O.B.E., consulting engineer; Mr. Alexander Thomson Scott, A.R.I.B.A., partner of Sir Herbert Baker; Mr. Edmond Joseph Hill, director of Messrs. Higgs and Hill, Limited, building contractors; Mr. Joseph Armitage, craftsman designer; Mr. Charles Wheeler, sculptor; Mr. Vernon Helbing, architect's assistant; Mr. Herbert Stanley Stephens, clerk of the works; Mr. William Richard Thomas, works manager to Messrs. Higgs and Hill, Limited; Mr. William Marlow, High Commissioner's works officer; Mr. Edward Murrey, foreman mason, South Western Stone Co., Limited; Mr. Hubert Ball, foreman joiner, Messrs. Waring and Gillow, Limited; and Mr. Patrick Clarke, foreman fitter, Messrs. G. N. Haden and Sons, Limited.

The King-Emperor and the Queen-Empress will then leave the library and inspect such parts of India House as may be their Majesties' pleasure. Their Majesties will sign the visitors' book. The High Commissioner will present a replica of the key of the building to the King-Emperor. Their Majesties will then descend by the main lift to the entrance, whence they will take their departure, the National Anthem being played. The King's Indian orderly officers will be on duty in the library and a detachment of Indian cadets from Sandhurst will be posted in the entrance hall. Morning dress will be worn.

SPAIN AND ENGLAND

KING ALFONSO AT THE SPANISH CLUB

Replying to the toast of the evening, proposed by DR. C. BETHENCOURT, president of the club, the KING referred to Spain's industrial progress. Spain, he said, had not gone under as pessimists would have them believe, and he urged all Spaniards in England to have faith in their country. He paid a tribute to the friendship existing between Spain and England, and said that British industries were always being encouraged by his people.

Others present were:—

MINISTRY OF HEALTH

The Minister of Health, Mr. Arthur Greenwood, M.P., has appointed Mr. S. H. G. Hughes, C.B.E., as Deputy Accountant-General in the Ministry of Health in succession to Mr. W. G. Hunter, C.B.E., who has retired from the public service.

NATIONAL UNION OF STUDENTS

PRINCE OF WALES'S APPEAL

NEED OF £30,000

The Prince of Wales attended a dinner held at the Savoy Hotel last night in support of the Establishment Fund for the National Union of Students of the University Colleges of England and Wales.

Lord Cecil of Chelwood, the president of the Union, recently issued an appeal for £30,000 to be used as an Establishment Fund for the purchase and endowment of the London headquarters which act as a national and Imperial centre, and for the provision of hospitality for Dominion and foreign students visiting England.

The Prince of Wales responded, and submitted the toast "The National Union of Students." He said:—

I thank you sincerely for the kind way in which you have received the last toast, and I can assure you that I am glad to be here to-night to speak to a cause which is interesting because it is somewhat out of the ordinary. It is a cause concerned not with the sick nor the aged, but with young people, young people who are sound enough in wind and limb, and who appeal to you, not directly for their own behalf, but for your support to a piece of educational machinery which they themselves have created in the belief that it will provide them with experience and knowledge necessary to the full assumption of citizenship. It is an appeal which, like all educational appeals, will find response only in the hearts of those whose minds are capable of the "long view"; and who recognize that money and energy may be well spent even though the results of the spending are not apparent until the next generation.

The National Union of Students is a union of the undergraduate students at our universities, not only at the older and more famous universities but of all those rapidly growing universities and colleges which in comparatively recent years have arisen—and are indeed still arising—in many of our great cities to provide each year a great proportion of the teachers for our schools. It may be that even yet the immense significance of these universities in our national life is not adequately realized. Their coming has meant a revolution in education upon a vast scale which is bound to bring in its path new developments touching the fringe of its main line of progress, such, for instance, as the union itself.

In form the union is a federal association of the student unions within the universities, which, in the modern universities at any rate, include in their membership the whole body of undergraduates. The council of the National Union is federated, together with the sister National Unions of three British Dominions and 37 other countries, to the International Confederation of Students, whose headquarters is in Brussels. You see at once that the National Union is a body whose interests are not centred in this country alone. It has Imperial and thus international ramifications. The council is the governing body of the union and has at its disposal an office in London and a competent secretarial staff. It is the work done by that office, carried on always under the direction of the council, and at the instigation of the university unions, which represents the main achievement of the National Union and the main basis of the appeal I am making to-night.

INTRODUCTORY CHANNEL

First, I would mention the provision of hospitality for Dominion and foreign students in Great Britain. Every year large numbers of students from all parts of the world come to this country to benefit from our culture and our social traditions. Nothing is more to our interest than that these students, coming and going in a never-ceasing stream, should carry away with them to their own countries, whether those countries are British or foreign, a vivid, kindly, and true impression of England and English people. And yet under present conditions the lot of the visiting student is sometimes anything but pleasant. English people are, as we all know, naturally as hospitable as any in the world. But we are, perhaps, apt to hide the light of our kindness beneath an overwhelming bushel of reserve. There is a certain ritual, little understood by foreigners, which must be observed before one person will admit another even within the outer boundaries of companionship. You remember Gilbert's poem about two Englishmen stranded together upon a desert island, who lived for months without speaking to one another because they had never been introduced! The National Union of Students provides an introductory channel which any student from abroad may easily navigate; its office is a centre attracting students from all over the world; and it is its boast that no student, be he British or foreign, need feel friendless in London so long as that office exists.

The hospitality secretary of the union is in touch on the one hand with students from abroad, and on the other with committees of ladies and gentlemen particularly interested in certain countries, who are generous in entertaining students from those countries, and skilful in giving them some insight into the private lives of our English families and the working of our great public institutions. You may form some idea of the extent of this work from the fact that invitations to private homes were arranged for 200 foreign and Dominion students during the month of May this year. A fund of £5,000 is urgently required to provide the inevitable secretarial expenses of the Hospitality Department. Another aspect of its work is the reception in England of groups of students from the Dominions, America, and the Continent of Europe, who visit us either for purposes of a particular study, such as architecture, economics, sociology or medicine, or more generally to make a discovery of this country and its people. Every winter a large group of South African students is sent to us by the National Union of South African Students, and during the summer months from May till September there is rarely a day on which a party of students from one country or another is not in England under the supervision of the Hospitality Department. To-day, for instance, at this moment, there is a group of students from Canada in Oxford; a party of American students are in Stratford-on-Avon; and students from Latvia are in London. These students want and deserve something more than they can obtain from the ordinary sight-seeing tour. From the National Union those who come on special study tours get a carefully planned programme of visits to factories, docks, schools, or whatever may be their object of study; they are received here by people who know their subject, and they are welcomed and accompanied by contemporary British students.

Those who come for less specific purposes also have the advantage of being welcomed and entertained by fellow-students, and a real effort is made to make their visit not merely a sight-seeing excursion but a valuable social experience. Few things are more important than this interchange of groups of students between one country and another; but few things more easily degenerate into an almost valueless experience than the ordinary party tour. If there were no body, such as the National Union, supervising the proper reception in England of study groups from abroad, in my opinion it would be urgently necessary to invent one.

TRAVEL DEPARTMENT

The complement of the Hospitality Department, receiving groups from abroad, is the Travel Department, which sends groups of English students to be received by the National Unions of other countries. Of these outgoing tours the most important are those arranged for students of certain subjects to visit places of especial interest to them in their studies. And here is an aspect of the union's work which I would especially commend to your attention, because I am, as indeed who is not at the present time, particularly interested in the future welfare of British industry, and I feel it is admirable that those who are training in our universities to enter industry as chemists, engineers, physicists, and so on, or are studying economics to fit themselves for posts of administration, should be given opportunities to go abroad and see at first hand the great industrial developments on the Continent. That students of mining should go to Northern France, Belgium, and the Ruhr; students of oil engineering to Rumania and Poland; students of agriculture to Denmark—and that everywhere they should be given the fullest opportunities of examining mines, farms, factories, docks, and their equipment—is a most significant contribution to technical education, and a contribution which the Travel Department of the National Union has been largely instrumental in making.

I turn now to a branch of the work which like the Hospitality Department, is sadly in need of funds—the arrangement of student exchanges. The educational value of a few months' residence in a foreign country is generally recognized, and for students of foreign languages is properly regarded as essential. The problems which face most students going abroad are how to find, first, the necessary funds; and, secondly, a place of residence where they may acquire a knowledge of the language and facility in speaking it, while at the same time learning something of the national outlook. Both these problems are largely solved by a successful exchange. The work is growing prodigiously every year, and more secretarial staff is most urgently required. It is impossible to charge fees which will more than cover the postage. If the work is done at all it must be done as a service for which no adequate financial return can be expected. In other words, if it is to continue it must be supported by donations, and I am sure you will all wish it to be continued. I learn with pleasure that a gift of £1,000 was recently given to our youngest university college, the University College of Hull, to provide a fund for enabling one student, who could not otherwise afford to do so, to spend his summer vacation abroad. I would like to see similar gifts given to the National Union of Students, so that it may continue, through its student exchanges, to enable many hundreds of students to spend their vacations abroad.

I cannot deal at length with the many other activities carried on from the central office of this extremely virile organization. The office is continually used by students in search of information on University matters; it assists students to find lodgings in London and recommends British students to places abroad; it is organizing, in cooperation with the University Councils, a Loan Scheme for distressed students. It arranges visits of international debating teams between this country, the Dominions, and the United States; it endeavours to find employment during the vacations for the many students who in these days find it increasingly difficult to spend three or four years at the University without contributing anything to the family exchequer; and in many ways it is of service both to students in our own Universities and to those who come from abroad.

One can easily imagine its enormous potentialities for the future. As a collective enterprise by the students themselves it has at its direction a fund of energy and vigour and all the immeasurable possibilities of youth. I would like to see it paying some attention to the export of men trained in our Universities to fill posts of administration in the Dominions and in other parts of the Empire. I would like to see the resources of its Travel Department directed to the organization of study tours to the Dominions and perhaps to India—though these things I know cannot be done without considerable financial help. And I would like to see under its direction not merely the house which accommodates its office staff, but a great house, a house of residence, where its work of welcoming British and foreign students might be adequately fulfilled. I am thinking of those magnificent international houses for students, erected in New York and elsewhere by the munificence of one to whom we in this country have great cause to be thankful. What a fine thing it would be if we could have in London a great house of residence for visiting students under the auspices of the representative society of our own students. Perhaps the British prototype of Mr. Rockefeller is among us to-night! If he is not, I hope it will not be long before the National Union finds him.

I have recently learned with pleasure of another great project, under different auspices, now well advanced, for a hall of residence in London for students from the Dominions. I would like to see established in London an international house where British students might come to know their contemporaries or other nationalities. (Cheers.) But this is for the union to do in the future—a future which I am sure will be as full of progress and achievement as the past seven years.

PURPOSE OF DINNER

I am glad to have had this opportunity of explaining to this audience, and to the audience which I understand to be listening in to these proceedings both in this country and across the Atlantic, something of the work of the National Union of Students and its sister unions in other countries. I now turn to the essential purpose of this dinner. The union is appealing for the sum of £30,000. The money will be used to purchase the headquarters building at No. 3, Endsleigh-street; to provide for its annual upkeep; to meet immediate requirements in the shape of furniture and equipment; and to provide £5,000 as the nucleus of a hospitality fund.

As to the headquarters, one might well imagine that a union with 28,000 student members in this country, the British unit in an international federation with 800,000 members, whose London office is naturally a centre not only for the university students of this country but for those of the Empire, would require a palatial headquarters building, something expressing in stone the extent of its ramifications and the grandeur of its ideals. But the union is not asking for anything so grandiose. It asks merely for the purchase price of the house which it occupies at present, a small house, in which there is not overmuch room for the staff which it employs. It asks you to do little more than barely to put a roof over its head and give it the wherewithal to keep that roof in repair. And it is not asking you to do even this before the value of its work has been tried and proved. You are not being asked to launch into existence a new organization. Already, for seven years, the union has been working, and the prodigious growth in all its activities has shown that it meets a real need and is fulfilling a real purpose. Through these years of rapid growth and rapidly increasing commitments the union has been supported by the students themselves—helped, I am glad to say, in recent years by grants from the Universities. It is only now, when the union which they established has grown to a point where it outstrips their own resources, that the students turn to you to provide for them the capital endowment which they cannot possibly provide themselves. "Youth," as Mr. John Galsworthy says, "is not rich—except in promise." It is for you to see that the promise which is inherent in this fine organization is not stunted by lack of the necessary funds.

You will see that no effort has been spared to provide on the tables before you ample and efficient means of making your gifts. Those outside this room who wish to send donations should address them to the Honorary Treasurer, Sir William Plender, London Wall Buildings, London, E.C.2. May I say, in conclusion, that I am personally interested—very interested—in the success of this appeal and I look forward without misgiving to its rapid conclusion. (Cheers.)

LORD CECIL responded, and MR. L. S. AMERY, M.P., MR. P. J. NOEL BAKER, M.P., LADY ASTOR, M.P., also spoke.

SIR WILLIAM PLENDER, the hon. treasurer of the appeal, later announced contributions totalling £6,186.

ASTHMA RESEARCH

The Asthma Research Council have issued a report on the progress of their work since the council's inception in October, 1927, to May 31, 1930. Included in the report are statements by doctors on investigations carried out at the asthma research clinics at Guy's Hospital, the Great Ormond Street Hospital for Sick Children, the London Clinic, and elsewhere. The report says that investigations to date have shown that the majority of asthmatics suffer from some constitutional abnormality which varies with the individual. One of the objects of investigation is to ascertain the fundamental cause or causes of the abnormality. Another object of research is to discover how and to what extent the chemistry of the body varies in asthma sufferers and to find suitable methods of bringing the body chemistry back to the normal. The report may be obtained from the Council's Office, King's College, University of London, W.C.2.

THE LOAD LINE CONFERENCE

CONVENTION SIGNED BY 27 NATIONS

UNIFORM RULES

The International Load Line Conference, which opened in London on May 20, concluded its sittings on Saturday afternoon, when an International Load Line Convention was adopted and signed unanimously by the representatives of the following 27 Governments:—

Australia, Canada, Chile, Cuba, Denmark, Finland, France, Germany, Great Britain, Greece, Iceland, India, Irish Free State, Italy, Japan, Latvia, Mexico, Netherlands, New Zealand, Norway, Peru, Poland, Portugal, Spain, Sweden, Union of Socialist Soviet Republics, and the United States of America.

The PRESIDENT of the CONFERENCE, Admiral of the Fleet Sir Henry F. Oliver, proposed the adoption of the Convention, and in the course of an address summarizing the results of the Conference said that the rules and recommendations of the British Load Line Committee, 1927-1929, which were accepted as a basis for discussion, had been examined by the members in detail in the light of experience gained in loading, navigating, and operating ships all over the world, in differing circumstances, and in all seasons of the year. The result of this examination was embodied in the rules for determining the maximum load lines of merchant ships that were included in the Convention, and those rules represented the unanimous opinion of the technical and nautical representatives attending the Conference.

In the same way they had examined the experience gained by the nations who had for many years been loading their timber-carrying ships and their tankers under special conditions. The Conference had embodied the conclusions at which they had arrived in the rules for those types of ship which appeared in the Convention. For both classes they were satisfied on both technical grounds and in the light of the experience of years that deeper loading to the extent prescribed was fully justified, subject to the conditions they had laid down.

They had made provision for special types of ships possessing constructional features, similar to those of the tankers, which afforded extra invulnerability against the sea. In general the rules, as the Conference had framed them, provided for increases of freeboards in the winter months, particularly in the smaller classes of ships, and they defined in detail, and with far greater precision than any rules now in existence, the methods to be employed to secure the effective closing of openings in the weather decks and in the sides of the ships, and for the protection of the crew.

The Conference had carefully examined and revised the Zones and Seasonal Areas that regulated the loading limits of all ships.

NEW AND EXISTING SHIPS

They had, Sir Henry proceeded, applied the new rules in full to all new ships—that was, to ships the keels of which were laid on and after July 1, 1932. They had imposed on all existing ships, which were not brought voluntarily under the new rules, the rules of 1906, subject to the condition that, in addition, they complied, so far as was reasonable and practicable, with the conditions laid down in regard to new ships for the effective closing of openings in the weather decks and in the sides of the ship, and for the protection of the crew.

From the administrative point of view, each nation ratifying the Convention would be bound to take all such steps as might be necessary to make effective the load lines prescribed by the rules. On the other hand, each nation would accept an International Load Line Certificate issued, in accordance with the provisions of the Convention, by the nation to which the ship belonged, as having the same force as the certificates issued by them to their own ships.

Some of them might feel disappointed that upon some particular points their own particular views had not prevailed, but they had met one another throughout their discussions with the utmost frankness. They had, as the president of the Conference of 1929 said, pooled their knowledge and tested it by the experience of all, and they must all realize how much more could be accomplished by joint action to attain the object for which they had all been working—the promotion of safety of life and property at sea. At the closing session of the Conference of 1929 Senator Rio, in an eloquent speech, referred to the Convention that was then adopted as "a great charter." That Convention did not establish international standards fixing the loading limits for merchant ships generally. It had been their aim and purpose to complete the work in the spirit that actuated the Conference of 1929; and if, as he hoped and believed, they had accomplished that aim, they would in the two Conventions have indeed a great charter placing the international oversea carrying trade of the world on a basis of safety such as had never hitherto been attained.

At the conclusion of the Conference the PRESIDENT of the BOARD of TRADE said that six weeks ago it was his privilege to welcome the members at the beginning of their work, and it was now his pleasant duty to congratulate them on its conclusion. The task before them was to draw up uniform loading rules which should be binding on the ships of all nations in all the seas of the world, and that task they had accomplished. It was not an easy matter to determine the right point to which ships of different size and strength and build should be allowed, under different conditions, to load; but it was imperative that it should be done, for if they loaded ships too deeply there was the risk of damage and danger, whereas, on the other hand, if they compelled ships to load too lightly they shut out cargo which could safely be carried and thereby added to the cost of every commodity carried by sea. To determine what the right point should be, an enormous amount of work had been done and experience gained, in this and other countries. They had been able to avail themselves of this experience, and they had had with them leading experts from all the principal maritime nations of the world. They had worked hard and had produced a set of rules which were a marked advance on anything which had preceded them. He was glad to think that these would not only lead to greater justice as between ship and ship and nation and nation, but to even greater attention being paid to the safety of the ships and of those who sailed in them. No one pretended that the work was perfect, or that it was the final link in the chain of development. They themselves expressly provided for the modification of their rules as further knowledge and experience were gained. But if they did not overrate the work done here they must not underrate it. It was a great thing that they had done, to establish for the first time uniform loading rules, which meant uniform safety rules, for all the cargo ships of the world. He very heartily congratulated them on its accomplishment.

1,000 GUINEA BULL FOR CHILE

PRINCE'S STOKE CLIMSLAND HERD SOLD

LENTON, JULY 7

The roads of many breeders of pure-bred Shorthorn cattle led to Grove Farm, Lenton, near Nottingham, to-day, when Messrs. John Thornton and Co. were engaged in the dispersal sale of the Prince of Wales's well-known and prize-winning Stoke Climsland herd.

The herd, full of the most fashionable Scottish blood, was removed from Stoke Climsland, in Cornwall, a few days ago, and that the sale was regarded as of considerable importance was shown by the large attendance of breeders from many parts of Britain, including a contingent from Scotland.

One thousand guineas was the winning bid of Mr. Frank Webb, of Bilsington, Leighton Buzzard, for Kinellar Keystone, a magnificent two-year-old bull bred in Scotland, and the runner-up was a buyer for the Argentine. Two other bulls changed hands at 100 guineas each. One was the old prize-winning sire Climsland Golden Ray, whose new owner is Miss A. S. Brocklebank, a Rutland breeder, and the other the beautiful yearling Lenton Crocus King, the buyer being Mr. Marshall, of Stranraer, Scotland. It should be added that the 1,000 guinea bull is destined for exportation to Chile.

Prices for females were not at all high, the best being 65 guineas given by Mr. J. H. Edge for the grand yearling heifer Climsland Augusta 13th. Sir Frank Beauchamp, of Woodborough House, Camerton, Bath, was announced as the buyer for 62 guineas of Climsland Princess Royal 4th, a six-year-old cow which as a yearling heifer won fourth prize at one of the Royal Shows. Fifty guineas was given by Mr. Marshall for Climsland Orange Blossom 4th, a Royal Show winner, and other prices were lower, some being but very moderate indeed.

£80,000 FOR UNIVERSITY COLLEGE, HULL

Mr. George Frederic Grant, a leather merchant of Hull, well known for his many charitable activities, who died recently at the age of 87, has made the University College of Hull residuary legatee of his estate. The amount by which the College will benefit is estimated at over £80,000, of which £75,000 will accrue immediately.

In addition Mr. Grant in his lifetime established a trust, the funds of which stand at about £11,000, to give scholarships tenable at the University College of Hull. He had previously given anonymously £1,250 to establish a scholarship at the College, and in 1927 he gave £5,000 anonymously to the funds of the College and in 1928 £1,000. His total benefaction, therefore, amounts to about £100,000. The only condition of his large bequest is that at least three-fifths of it shall be preserved for the purpose of endowment.

ABBEY SCHOLARSHIP AWARDS

At a meeting of the council of the Edwin Austin Abbey Memorial Scholarships for Mural Painting, held yesterday, Miss Marjorie Reynell McGill and Mr. Frederick Gordon Shelley were awarded minor scholarships of £125 a year, tenable for three years. Miss McGill, who is 22 years of age, studied at the Clapham School of Art and the Royal College of Art, and Mr. Shelley, also 22 years of age, at the St. Marylebone School of Art and the Polytechnic, Regent-street. The work submitted by the 14 competitors for the scholarships will be on view at the Royal Institute Galleries, 195, Piccadilly, W.1, to-day and to-morrow, and the exhibition may be visited by the general public and art students free of charge. These scholarships, of which one major and two minor are awarded each year, have been founded by Mrs. E. A. Abbey in memory of her husband, the late Edwin Austin Abbey, R.A., and embody what are known to have been Mr. Abbey's ideals for the training of a mural painter.

THE NEW BETHLEM HOSPITAL

OPENING BY THE QUEEN TO-MORROW

As already announced in The Times, the Queen is to open the new Bethlem Royal Hospital at Monks Orchard, Eden Park, Beckenham, to-morrow, in the presence of the Lord Mayor. She will travel by road from London, and will be received at the entrance to the new building by the president, Lord Wakefield. The Archdeacon of London, the Ven. E. N. Sharpe, will conduct the dedicatory service. After the Queen has declared the hospital open and received a memento of the occasion, the Lord Mayor will thank her on behalf of the Governors.

The new buildings are situated within a ring fence of 200 acres of beautiful park land. They are 10 miles from Charing Cross and under 10 minutes' walk from Eden Park Station on the Southern Railway. Lord Wakefield has defrayed the cost of the science and treatment laboratories; Lady Wakefield has given the chapel; Lady Cooper has provided £5,000 for the recreation hall, in memory of her husband, the late Sir Edward Cooper (Lord Mayor in 1919 and a Governor), and an anonymous donor has contributed £5,000. The lay-out is on a system of separate residential blocks, in accordance with the newest ideas on the subject. Every up-to-date appliance for treatment and research will make the study of psychological medicine available to a large body of students.

The provision for the personal comfort of the patients differs from that afforded in any other mental hospital. Apart from small four- and five-bed wards for special purposes, the patients will enjoy single bedrooms, in addition to living rooms and other amenities, such as obtain in good private houses. The corridors will afford facilities for exercises in inclement weather, while the buildings are so arranged that the sun is trapped at every available point. There are to be billiard rooms for male patients, and also writing and recreation rooms. The women's quarters make provision for the associate life of the patients.

In planning the buildings the Governors have looked forward some 30 years, when they hope that the institution will enjoy the benefit of largely increased funds. In the past 75 per cent. of the total cost of the hospital has been met from the private income of the charity, the balance coming from payments by the friends of patients. The Governors, who have yet to experience the cost of running the new hospital, hope to be able to continue that proportion.

MIDLAND BANK FLOWER SHOW

EXHIBITS AT HEAD OFFICES

Yesterday the seventh annual flower show of the Midland Bank Horticultural Society was held in the new head offices, Poultry. The membership of the society is now about 300 and is steadily growing, embracing not only the branches in London, but also those throughout the country.

Taken as a whole, the exhibits were on a par with those of last year, except in regard to the roses, which are this season suffering from the drought and heat. The number of classes was 24, and there were also four separate classes open for competition by other banks. For these there were 40 entries, and the banks competing included all the other members of the "Big Five" and several Imperial and foreign banking organizations.

The best of the exhibits were the sweet peas, while only second in interest were the vases of flowers. The winner of the cup for sweet peas was Mr. F. Burfoot, and that for the vases of flowers went to Mr. W. McDonald. Mr. G. Wonfor secured the cups for roses and for violas. In the classes open to other banks the first prize for sweet peas went to Mr. Vick, of Barclays Bank, Leighton Buzzard, that for carnations was won by Mr. T. Wharnby, of the Mercantile Bank of India, and Miss Jewson, of the Westminster Bank, Lombard-street, secured the prize for the best bouquet.

A LUCKY STRIKE

(FROM A CORRESPONDENT)

It was one of those obnoxious days when we had to go back to lunch: I am never completely happy when there is a fixed time for leaving the river, whether for lunch, or dinner, or to catch a train, or any other irrelevance. Happily this lunch was not far away, and it did not seem to be too inexorably fixed. For it was nearly one o'clock when we came down from the Bull's Pool, where the salmon leaped light-heartedly round our flies, as usual, in the bright sun; and embarked in the boat for the island of rock which was our next chance.

It is a difficult landing, for the boat has to be edged between the two streams which meet below the rock, and, if the bows go too much one side or the other, she is carried away and the approach has to be made again. After more than one failure, after fixing the anchor firmly, after the scramble ashore, we were still later for lunch and it looked, as we climbed over the rock, as if our journey had been in vain: though a fish or two splashed near the Fall, or in non-taking places, there was little carry over the right stand of it, and the sun blazed overhead. However, here we were. And, when the rod was thrust into my hand and I was told to "hurry up or we should be late for lunch," I determined, as I climbed laboriously down the rock, to fish it carefully and not be hurried: I had risen a fish here yesterday, and, though the water was lower and everything was as wrong as possible, lunch might well wait a little longer.

The rock from which one fishes juts, a bold headland, into the pool, and the stream runs round in almost a semi-circle. From the point of the headland a ledge runs out under water, curving with the curve of the rock, and under the ledge at any point a fish may be lying in the black depths below. One begins at the top of the stream with a short line, standing almost at water level. But the precarious footholds mount as one comes to the point of the headland, and from the last good niche behind the top I can see, not the water on the other side, or the fly as it sweeps round, but a good half of the line below the rod. And now, as I hold the rod steady at the end of the cast, a fish, a silver curve, a fresh-run fish, leaps into my view for a second above the rock and falls with a resounding splash into the water again.

There is a murmur from the audience above—probably it was a shout, but the noise of the Fall drowns it: no thought of lunch now. I climb back trembling and fish the run again from the beginning. As the fly reaches the place there is again a splash—I see the spray fly in the sunlight—and a violent pull: the fish has come again from below the ledge and followed the fly into the shallow water. Then, as I stagger to the top, he is away in one long rush, right across the pool, till all the line goes and half the backing as well. I see him almost on the far shore and reel feverishly: with all those sharp ledges I must not let him have an inch more than he must. Again he runs the whole length of the pool; again I recover the backing and a little more. But now he goes upstream and bores below the ledge. I feel the ominous gritting of the cast on the sharp edge, but can do nothing with him: if I pull I shall merely saw the cast against the rock.

But the luck is against him. The fisherman, in his long boots, climbs down into the water and on to the ledge. I hand him the rod and he is able to get a straight pull on the fish downstream and clear of rocks. At last he comes, and, as I take the rod, rushes again to the far side. Again I recover; but this time he is lower down the pool, he turns down still farther, is caught in the rush of the current, there is no bringing him back against that torrent, and, like Mr. Briggs, I am plunging over rocks, through bushes, holding the rod high to keep clear of boughs, till the fish stops just where the boat is, in the slack water between the two currents.

There he stays, exhausted, till the net is slipped under him by skilful hands—a fresh fish of 13lb., hooked deep under the pectoral fin. I must have struck him as he rolled over the fly in the shallow water on the ledge—truly a lucky strike. And now, who minds about going home to lunch?

Obituary

SIR JOSEPH WARD

A GREAT NEW ZEALAND STATESMAN

Sir Joseph Ward, whose death at the age of 74 is recorded on another page, announced his intention to resign the office of Prime Minister of New Zealand on May 15 last. His doctors had advised him that freedom from official cares was essential. His death ends a career closely linked with the great period of New Zealand Liberalism. He was himself the author of many of the Liberal reforms, and to the people of New Zealand in later years he personified the movement.

Ward possessed unbounded faith in New Zealand and in the British Empire. All his life he was an optimist, and the risk of his experiments was diminished by his capacity for sound administration. He carried through what others might have failed in because he inspired public confidence. His State advances schemes, under which 40 millions sterling have been lent to settlers and 16 millions to workers, have undoubtedly accelerated settlement. The hydro-electrical development begun during his first Prime Ministership and extended by succeeding Governments has been similarly beneficial. Other notable works connected with his name are: inland penny postage; a subsidized contributory National Provident Fund for the general public; an advanced Public Health Act; and the Act providing regular payments for the ultimate extinction of the public debt.

In Imperial affairs he was a ceaseless worker for strengthening the links of Empire. In commerce he worked for improved communications and for preference in trade. In defence, he made the significant gesture of the gift of a battle cruiser, and established the military training scheme which enabled the Dominion to respond nobly when the War broke out. At the Imperial Conference in 1911 he submitted a plan for the foundation of an Imperial Council. It was not accepted, but his advocacy served to emphasize the value of consultation and the need for giving the junior partners a better opportunity of being heard. That opportunity came later, though not in exactly the way he had anticipated, in the representation of the Dominions in the War Cabinet, at the Peace Conference, and on the League of Nations.

Sir Joseph Ward's grasp of finance won him the confidence of the business community. He was a fluent speaker and quick in debate, and though a hard fighter he never carried political quarrels into private life. His charm of manner put him on an easy and friendly footing even with those who most strongly opposed his politics. When he won his remarkable victory in 1928 the whole country recognized it as a personal success and congratulated him in this spirit. It was indeed a notable tribute to a lifelong devotion to New Zealand and the Empire.

Born in Melbourne on April 26, 1856, Joseph George Ward was taken by his parents to the Awarua district of Southland. After attending the primary school, he began work at the age of 13 as a telegraph messenger. He worked afterwards in a merchant's office and in the Department of Railways, and then established a successful mercantile business of his own. When still in his twenties he became Mayor of his home town, Campbelltown, and made the reputation which assured his return to Parliament in 1887 as a member of Mr. John Ballance's Liberal Party, then in opposition. His critical ability and ready grasp of political affairs quickly attracted attention, and when Mr. Ballance became Prime Minister in 1891 Ward was made Postmaster-General. In this office he showed administrative capacity, arranging mail services and extending and cheapening telegraph and telephone facilities. On the death of Mr. Ballance, Mr. Seddon formed his first Ministry in 1893, and Ward became his first lieutenant, with the portfolio of Finance. Later he took charge also of railways, public health, commerce, and tourist and health resorts, as well as the Post Office. He had an extraordinary capacity for work, and his departments gained a reputation for efficiency and for modern methods. As Colonial Treasurer almost his first task was the emergency measures necessitated by the bank crisis of 1894. The Government's aid was pledged to the Bank of New Zealand, disaster was averted, and a partnership begun which has since been extended with great benefit to the country. In the same year Ward devised the advances to settlers scheme—then deemed a bold experiment—to enable the Government to lend funds for the improvement and purchase of farms and the erection of dwellings. At the height of his political success in 1896 he was obliged by his private business to relinquish office temporarily, though he remained in Parliament. He returned to office three years later, and shortly afterwards achieved a typical triumph by the introduction of inland penny postage.

When Mr. Seddon died in 1906, Sir Joseph Ward (he was created K.C.M.G. during the Royal tour of 1901) was representing New Zealand at the Postal Union Conference in Rome. On his return he became Prime Minister, and was sworn of the Privy Council in 1907. But the fortunes of Liberalism were even then on the decline. He won one election in 1908, and carried on the Liberal tradition for three years. He made his dramatic offer of a battle cruiser to the British Navy in 1909, and the following year, after attending the Imperial Defence Conference, he established the universal military training system. In June, 1911, he was created a baronet, and represented New Zealand at the Imperial Conference, where he advocated an Imperial Council. But the election at the end of that year left him with too narrow a margin. He resigned in 1912.

The outbreak of the War placed upon him responsibilities which he did not shirk. The Reform and Liberal Parties put aside their political differences, and on August 12, 1915, the formation of the National Cabinet was announced. Sir Joseph Ward became Minister of Finance and Postmaster-General, and, with Mr. Massey, he attended the Imperial War Council meetings and the sittings of the Peace Conference. He and his Liberal colleagues worked loyally with the Reform Ministers throughout the War. Sir Joseph's achievements included the borrowing of £55,000,000 on the local market, a great feat for a country with less than a million and a half population, and the accumulation of Budget surpluses exceeding £15,000,000. Hopes were entertained that the wartime partnership of the parties would endure, but the National Cabinet was dissolved in August, 1919. In the succeeding General Election the Liberals were vanquished, and Sir Joseph himself lost the seat which he had held since 1887. He held aloof from politics till 1923, when he unsuccessfully contested a by-election. In 1925 he re-entered Parliament as member for Invercargill. In the meantime, the old Liberal Party had undergone various changes of name and leader, and Ward chose to maintain an independent attitude as a free critic of the Reform Government.

In 1928 Sir Joseph accepted the invitation of the National (former Liberal) Party, which had now been reorganized, to become its leader. Though in his 73rd year, he showed all his old boldness in the election campaign. The electors, suffering from economic ills, were willing to vent their displeasure on the Reform Government, and Ward also won much support by his proposal to borrow £70,000,000, spread over a period of eight or 10 years, for providing new capital for State advances to settlers and workers and for hastening the completion of the main railways. He was returned at the head of the strongest party, and, though lacking an independent majority, he was able to take office as Prime Minister on December 10, 1928. He faced his difficulties with cheerfulness and even eagerness and carried through the heavy loan conversion operations, and raised local loans to supplement the State advances funds. But the strain of leadership in a three-party House told upon him. He was taken ill on October 3, and Mr. G. W. Forbes became Deputy Prime Minister during his chief's absence, and was recently chosen to succeed him.

Sir Joseph Ward received honorary degrees from Oxford, Cambridge, Edinburgh, Dublin, and Birmingham. He married in 1883 Theresa Dorothea, C.B.E., daughter of Mr. H. J. de Smidt, of New Zealand; she died in 1927. He leaves four sons and one daughter. He is succeeded in the baronetcy by his eldest son, Mr. Cyril Ward, a member of the firm of Kinsey and Co., shipping and general agents of Christchurch, who is married and has five sons and a daughter. One of Sir Joseph's younger sons is named Gladstone William, and another is named Awarua, after his father's first constituency.

SIR DAVID BURNETT

SAVING OF THE CRYSTAL PALACE

Sir David Burnett, Lord Mayor of London in 1912-1913, whose death at the age of 78 we announce to-day, practised for over 60 years in the City as a surveyor, and was for the greater part of that time active in the service of the Corporation and the public. During his term of office as Lord Mayor he was instrumental, with the help of The Times, in acquiring the Crystal Palace for the people, remaining up to the time of his death chairman of the Crystal Palace Trustees. He was one of the earliest Fellows of the Surveyors' Institution, an Alderman, and a Lieutenant of the City.

Sir David was born in London on August 22, 1851, and educated at the old City of London College. He began his municipal career in 1888, entering in that year the Corporation of the City as a representative of Candlewick Ward, in which his professional interests were centred. He soon took a leading and active share in the work of the Corporation, and filled with great efficiency the chair of many of the most important committees, where his business acumen and gifts as a speaker became invaluable. For a time he was Chief Commoner. In 1902 he became Alderman of his ward, defeating two other candidates, and, as was expected, proved a first-rate magistrate. In 1907-8, in the Mayoralty of Sir John Bell, he filled the office of Sheriff, his colleague being Sir Charles Wakefield. That year was memorable for the visit to the City of, first, the German Emperor, and then M. Fallières, the French President.

Sir David Burnett became Lord Mayor in November, 1912, and discharged his functions throughout his year of office with energy. At the outset he took public steps to save the long-threatened Crystal Palace from demolition and extinction, and was fortunate enough to get the necessary funds together to achieve his object. During the War the Palace and its grounds were the headquarters and training camp of the Royal Naval Reserve, and the famous building and its accessories are now in charge of trustees in the interests of the public. Of these trustees Sir David Burnett was naturally selected as chairman. During his mayoralty Sir David also raised funds for the relief of the civilian sufferers by the Turco-Balkan War and for a memorial to Captain Scott, the Polar explorer, and his colleagues. For this £75,000 was raised, a large part of it being set aside to provide for the widows and families of the men who had perished. Another fund which Sir David raised at the Mansion House was for the relief of the sufferers by an accident at the Sengenhydd Colliery, in South Wales, for which nearly £50,000 was collected. Sir David, during his official year, made an attempt to get all the derelict colliery funds, many of which had substantial balances unexpended, combined and made available for future needs, but, though a representative conference was held at the Mansion House, no agreement was reached. In June, 1913, M. Poincaré, the new French President, visited the City. It was on this occasion that Sir David, who had been knighted in 1908, received his baronetcy. He was made at the same time a Grand Officer of the Legion of Honour.

Sir David's firm about this time took over the long-established and famous business of Messrs. Edwin Fox and Bousfield, the partners of which had either died or were retiring, and the new undertaking prospered under the style of Messrs. Edwin Fox, Burnett, and Baddeley, the partners being Sir David, his son Major Burnett, and his son-in-law, Mr. Bernard Baddeley. The firm later still became Messrs. David Burnett and Son. Sir David retired early this year, and the business is now carried on by his only surviving son, Lieutenant-Colonel L. T. Burnett.

Sir David was married in 1875 to Emily Rebecca, daughter of Mr. Thomas Sleap, of Dalston, and by her had two sons and five daughters. Lady Burnett died in 1917. The heir to the baronetcy, Lieutenant-Colonel Leslie Trew Burnett, was born in 1884, and was married in 1917 to Joan, second daughter of Alderman and Lieutenant-Colonel Sir John Humphery. He served in the War as major and temporarily as lieutenant-colonel of the 4th Battalion, City of London Regiment (Royal Fusiliers). For his services he was made an Officer of the Order of the British Empire. He is a Lieutenant for the City of London.

SIR GEORGE YOUNG

Dr. W. M. Childs, till lately Vice-Chancellor of the University of Reading, writes:—

I am glad that in your admirable notice of the late Sir George Young you have mentioned the work which he did for Reading University. That work, in more than one way, was of the highest value. It was not merely that Sir George brought to the task of drafting statutes and regulations an authoritative experience in such matters, or that he had a singular gift of clarity and precision of statement, or that he brought to more than one difficult situation an exceptional measure of the judicial temper. In all such work, and in the discussion of policy, he was never "formidable" with us, except in the sense that the line he took was almost always unanswerable.

Yet now that his long day has closed, and closed with honour, what one chiefly recalls is something larger and simpler than his acumen, his knife-like directness of speech, his rich stores of wisdom and experience, or even his subduing courtesy. Unless all one's judgments are wrong, Sir George Young was a great old man. Administrator, scholar, athlete, there entered also into his composition something of antique heroism and simplicity. His personality impressed itself without effort. As his tall figure made its way to the table the reality of business quickened. Often silent, the fact that he was there was fortifying. If he was critical, not disposed to accept a new turn of policy without scrutiny, he could also trust; and to be trusted by such a man was a heartening thing. Age had not dulled his love of adventure nor quenched within him the springs of generous comradeship. When it was announced that, after many years of effort, Reading was to have a university charter, this man of 85 was the first in an audience of 1,000 people to leap to his feet, with uplifted arm. Such a man, so wise, so understanding, so generous in soul, was good to work with, and under. To have his confidence and good will was to all of us an honour never to be forgotten; and the University of Reading has reason to be proud that in the days of its early youth it was able to enlist his support and affection.

SIR ARTHUR CONAN DOYLE

THE CREATOR OF "SHERLOCK HOLMES"

Sir Arthur Conan Doyle, novelist, patriot, and in his later years ardent spiritualist, whose death in his seventy-second year we announce this morning, came of a family well known in the world of art and humour. His grandfather was John Doyle, the portrait painter and lithographer, who, under the signature of "H. B.," produced the still well-remembered caricatures of the Duke of Wellington and other great men of his day. Of the sons of John Doyle one was the yet more famous Richard ("Dicky") Doyle, who designed "the best known picture in the world," the present cover of Punch, and worked much for that journal until his religious convictions—the family being Irish and Roman Catholic—compelled him to sever his connexion with a paper that attacked the Pope. Another son was Charles Doyle, also an artist, who settled in Edinburgh.

Arthur Conan Doyle was the eldest son, born on May 22, 1859, of this Charles Doyle. He received his education at Stonyhurst and at Edinburgh University, and adopted the profession of medicine, practising at Southsea from 1882 to 1890. Though it is not to medicine that he owed his fame, his knowledge and experience were of service to him in more than one way. He introduced the subject again and again into his novels, and not only into the specifically medical stories, such as "Round the Red Lamp"; and, always patriotic and keenly interested in the work and fortunes of the British Empire, he put himself at the disposal of his country during the South African War and served as senior physician to the field hospital equipped and maintained by Sir (then Mr.) John Langman.

One result of this experience was an important pamphlet (following a book on "The Great Boer War") entitled "The Cause and Conduct of the War," which was translated into 12 European languages, and given away by thousands. The object of the pamphlet was to put the facts of the case fairly and temperately before the peoples of Europe, and to disabuse them of some, at least, of the erroneous ideas that had been industriously spread on the subject of our political morality and our methods of warfare. It was doubtless in recognition of these services, no less than of those he rendered in fiction, that in 1902 he received the honour of knighthood. His public career also included two unsuccessful contests for a seat in Parliament, the first for Central Edinburgh in the Liberal Unionist interest in 1900, the second for the Hawick Burghs as a Tariff Reformer in 1906.

It is, however, as a writer of fiction that Sir Arthur Conan Doyle was most widely known. The stories which his name brings instantaneously to the mind are those of which Sherlock Holmes is the central figure. The personality of the eccentric amateur detective—with his fiddle, his dressing-gown, his strong tobacco, his courage and resource, and his genius for the unravelling of mysteries which no mere professional detective could hope to possess—was well fitted to catch the popular imagination. And his creator made use of him with an ingenuity which was none the less remarkable because he knew each secret to start with, and worked backwards from it. And it cannot have been wholly by luck or accident (though it may have been by inspiration) that the character of Holmes's friend, Dr. Watson, has become no less famous and even more beloved than Holmes himself. Besides this remarkable success in rejuvenating detective fiction—to the great advantage of his successors—Conan Doyle achieved sterling results in the long list of historical romances that sprang from his fertile brain, from 1887, when he published his first book, "A Study in Scarlet," for some half a century onward. The tales of the Napoleonic era concerning Brigadier Gerard; "Micah Clarke," "The White Company," "Sir Nigel"—these and others are still popular, and deserve to be. But none of them, nothing else that Doyle ever wrote, equals "Rodney Stone," which contains, incidentally, the best exposition of the author's passion for pugilism.

His work for the stage was less successful than his books. Only one of his plays achieved a great vogue: the little Story of Waterloo, which provided Sir Henry Irving with one of his favourite and most effective characters, that of the very old soldier, Corporal Gregory Brewster.

In his later years Sir Arthur Conan Doyle gave himself up more and more to the enthusiasms which his quick sympathies aroused in a generous nature. These included Home Rule for Ireland, prison reform, divorce, and especially spiritualism. Always fond of travelling, he visited Australia in 1921 and South Africa when he was 70, in the interests of the beliefs to which he had been converted from the sheer materialism of his early manhood. He wrote a history of spiritualism; and his views on the evidence for it and on evidence in general coloured much of his later fiction. Among his many exploits in defence of what he believed to be truth and justice was his long and finally successful struggle for the release of Oscar Slater. In this he showed himself as keen and generous a sportsman as he did in the hunting-field (it took a weight-carrier to bear the massive frame of him), on the cricket-field, on the golf links, and in all the relations of life.

Doyle was twice married, first to Miss Louisa Hawkins, of Minsterworth, Gloucestershire, who died in 1906; and secondly, to Jean, daughter of Mr. J. B. Leckie, of Crowborough.

CAPTAIN SIR R. CAVE-BROWNE-CAVE

Captain Sir Reginald Ambrose Cave-Browne-Cave, Bt., R.N., retired, who died on July 4 at his residence, Eversley, Ventnor, at the age of 69, was the second son of the Rev. Ambrose Sneyd Cave-Browne-Cave, rector of Stretton-en-le-Field, Derbyshire, and a nephew of Sir Mylles Cave-Browne-Cave, eleventh baronet. He succeeded his cousin, the Rev. Sir Genille Cave-Browne-Cave, as thirteenth baronet in October, 1929. Entering the Royal Navy in January, 1873, he became a lieutenant in July, 1882, receiving early promotion for his services on board the flagship Alexandra at the bombardment of Alexandria. He afterwards served in the Orlando, flagship in Australia, and other ships, and in December, 1896, was promoted to commander and appointed to the cruiser Minerva. In May, 1900, he became Inspecting Officer of Coastguard at Lynn, and his last appointment was in command of the President, then drillship of the Royal Naval Reserve, in 1904-7. He retired in June, 1907, with the rank of captain. Two of his cousins who also entered the Navy are now on the active list of the Royal Air Force, Group Captain H. M. Cave-Browne-Cave and Wing Commander T. R. Cave-Browne-Cave, of whom the former took out a flying-boat squadron to Singapore and Australia some two years ago and now commands the R.A.F. in the Far East.

Captain Cave-Browne-Cave was married in 1890 to Evelyn, daughter of the Rev. Charles and Lady Georgina Oakley. The funeral will be held to-day, at 2.30 p.m., at St. Catherine's Church, Ventnor.

Sir Thomas Talbot Power, Bt., who has died in Co. Dublin, was the sixth of his line. He was born in 1863 and succeeded his brother in 1916. He married, in 1884, Margaret, daughter of the late Thomas Martin, of Co. Dublin. He leaves no heir.

SHELLEY'S FRIEND

A LIFE OF TRELAWNY

THE FRIEND OF SHELLEY. A Memoir of Edward John Trelawny. By H. J. MASSINGHAM. (Cobden-Sanderson. 21s. net.)

When Trelawny heard of Shelley from a young bookseller at Lausanne, it would have appeared improbable to him that his hold on the attention of the twentieth century was beginning at that moment. That, however, was the fact. Thanks to his own pen, the course of his friendship with Shelley is widely known, from the first courtesies in Williams's rooms at Pisa to the tragic Trelawnian ritual and Shelley's cremation on the Italian shore; otherwise Trelawny is vague and legendary. The strange fact that a man of Trelawny's type should be so deeply fascinated by Shelley, the relations of Trelawny with others of the Shelley circle, the earlier and later adventures of Trelawny, and the absence of a comprehensive work upon him have moved Mr. H. J. Massingham to write about him at great length. One of Mr. Massingham's discoveries is a further account of the drowning and the burning of Shelley and Williams, and he scatters biographical records through his volume; but his main enthusiasm is for analysing and illuminating the characters of those often-described exiles of Pisa, and especially for displaying Trelawny in his feelings towards each of them in turn, after introducing his "Pirate" by himself. Indeed, the volume is a series of largely psychological essays, and it is difficult for a reader who does not bear in his memory a fairly good chart of Trelawny's troubled voyage from 1792 to 1881 to accompany Mr. Massingham freely, or to discern the straightforward unity necessary to so long a book. For, with a waywardness not unlike his hero's, Mr. Massingham takes us swiftly to and fro among the dates and problems that concern Trelawny.

Apart from these awkwardnesses, and from some crotchets and unevidenced dogmatic statements, Mr. Massingham has achieved a book of commanding stature, so far as the realization of the characters is concerned. The puzzles created for him by Trelawny (for example, in his conduct towards Mary Shelley before 1837, and his last words of 1878, condemning her for spiritual disloyalty to the reformist poet) find him eagerly prepared to scan the situations afresh and give his own answers. It may be that all his predecessors in Shelleyan studies have concurred in a judgment; they have, to be sure, found Trelawny wanting in the affair of repeated proposals of marriage to Mary in 1831 and contemptuous allusions later on; Mr. Massingham stands out, and estimates Mary in general in order to stabilize Trelawny's impersonal honesty in the particular instance. As for Trelawny's embarrassing unconsciousness of the border between truth and fancy, event and dream, Mr. Massingham, allowing something for dramatic appetite, is convinced that there was nothing else in the man's variations.

ELIZABETHAN ROGUES

THE ELIZABETHAN UNDERWORLD. With Notes and an Introduction by A. V. JUDGES. (Routledge, 25s. net.)

To students of Elizabethan literature most of the old tracts and treatises collected in this fat volume will already be familiar. Awdeley's "Fraternity of Vagabonds," Harman's "Caveat for Common Cursitors," Greene's Cony-catching pamphlets, Dekker's "Bellman of London"—the editions by Furnivall, by Mr. G. B. Harrison, and others have won many a reader for these. But Mr. Judges has approached them and others like them from his own angle. He presents them not as literature but as studies in the history of economics, labour, Poor Law, vagrancy and so forth; and his introduction is a valuable comment on these tracts and ballads from a point of view which enables the ordinary reader to see new interest and value in them. Mr. Judges discusses the possible origins of the vagrancy and beggary; the enclosure of fields and the changes in the methods of farming; the dissolution of the monasteries and its effect upon the number of men and women without means of livelihood; the coming of gypsies, and the meaning and scope of sanctuary. He examines then the legislation and all the machinery for putting it in force—legislation and machinery alike being pretty useless—which reveal the extent and gravity of the evil in the days of Elizabeth and King James I., and his learned notes add many interesting and telling details to the story. It was no joke in those days to be a local authority responsible for dealing with vagrants and workless and masterless men. The remedies—all these whippings, brandings, mutilations, stocks, imprisonments, expulsions, executions and the rest—seem cruel indeed, even more cruel than they were futile; but some sympathy must be spared for those who had to administer the law. It will be to many a new idea that the parish constable was to be pitied as well as feared; but a ballad which Mr. Judges has included—a song of a Constable made by James Gyffon, Constable of Albury, 1626—shows the pathetic side of honourable but very laborious and responsible office:—

> Whip he the rogues, they'll rail and they'll curse,
> Soldiers are rude 'cause they are > Sent to the treasurer with their pass,
> And may not beg everywhere.
> If warrants do come, as often they do,
> For money, then he it demands;
> To everyone with 's rate he does go
> Wherein they are levied by lands.
> They'll say then, he gathers up money of others
> To put to use for increase;
> Else gathers it up to run away w' it:
> What terrible words be these!

Between the violence of the beggars and the mean slanders of the ratepayers his life was not a happy one. And he got no pay for it.

In some aspects these pamphlets and poems are amusing. Awdeley's and Harman's and Greene's and Dekker's descriptions are so lively and—as we now find them—quaint, and the natural desire to be interested in rogues, from these "upright men" and their "morts" to Moll Flanders and Colonel Jacque, and so to the most exquisite scoundrel in the latest "crook" play, that it is easy to read these Elizabethans as one reads mere fiction. It is just as well to remember, under the guidance of Mr. Judges, that in the main, at any rate, they wrote solid fact. For one thing, these tracts will help to correct any tendency to sentimentalize over the Elizabethan Age, whether in the towns, infested with dangerous rogues, or in the country, where, as Mr. Judges remarks, "the grimness of the picture conflicts oddly with the generally accepted notion of the pleasant, comfortable life of the English village in the sunny days of the great Queen." And such reflections as are aroused may not be wholly inapplicable to more recent days, which also have their own problems of unemployment.

We regret that in our notice last Friday of Mr. S. K. Ratcliffe's pamphlet, "What the Simon Report Means," the name of the publishers was wrongly given. It is published by "The New Statesman" at 1s. net.

ANGLIAN ART

DR. BALDWIN BROWN'S NEW VOLUME

THE ARTS IN EARLY ENGLAND. By G. BALDWIN BROWN. Vol. VI., Part I. (Murray. 15s. net.)

Twenty-seven years have now passed since Professor Baldwin Brown published the two first volumes of his history of English pre-Conquest art. One of these, the most delightful in the series and the most general in its treatment, sketches the Anglo-Saxon community centred round the village church, and traces the various ways in which Anglo-Saxon life expressed itself in art. The other remains the classical exposition of Church architecture before the Norman Conquest. The third and fourth volumes deal with the decorative art of the pagan period, and the fifth describes the monuments of Christian Northumbria during the flower of its art in the seventh century, notably the great stone crosses of Ruthwell and Bewcastle and the Lindisfarne Gospel-book. Volume VI., Part I., which follows its predecessor after a nine-year interval, is really the concluding portion of Volume V., a fact that must be realized if the new part is to have justice done to it and if its relation to the whole is to be appreciated. There is no clear dividing line between Volumes V. and VI., and St. Cuthbert's coffin is described in one, its contents in the other.

The new instalment consequently contains three archaeological essays which were crowded out from the previous volume, but which were required to complete the survey of seventh-century Northumbrian art. They deal respectively with the Stonyhurst Gospel, the Franks casket, and the Hackness cross. Of these the first, a copy of St. John's Gospel, was indubitably found in St. Cuthbert's coffin when it was opened in 1104. The little book in its contemporary cover—by far the earliest of all English bindings—can at present be seen in a glass case near the entrance to the exhibition of English Medieval art in the Victoria and Albert Museum, in a miraculous state of preservation. Much as one would like to identify it with the copy of St. John's Gospel which Bede tells us that St. Cuthbert had from his master, Boisil, prior of Melrose, the number of its quires (12 and not seven) makes such identification impossible, and Professor Baldwin Brown is doubtless right in supposing that it is an addition to the original contents of the coffin. The ivory casket presented to the Department of Medieval Antiquities in the British Museum by Sir Augustus Franks, from whom it takes its name, is a yet more wonderful artistic production. Its known history is correspondingly shorter, for its first certain appearance is as a work-box in a French middle-class household in the Department of the Haute-Loire. Never were thimbles and scissors more magnificently housed than in this seventh-century ivory box, lettered with Northumbrian runes and carved with crowded scenes in which classical and sacred history and Germanic mythology meet in curious medley. On this side the Roman wolf suckles Romulus and Remus, on that the warhorse Grani mourns Sigurd in his earthen barrow; while Titus capturing the Jewish Temple opposes Weyland in his smithy jostling the Magi of the East. The mutilated cross at Hackness, where the good St. Hild founded one of the earliest of English nunneries, is less astonishing, but its inscriptions are more mysterious. Part in Latin, recording the devotion of the early community to their abbess Oedilburga, they are part in Ogham cipher and part in cryptic runes, of which the secret is so well hidden that even were they interpreted correctly the correctness of interpretation would be incapable of proof. Our ancestors delighted like children in riddles.

"CHILDREN'S DAY"

The first "Children's Day" in the City and Greater London is to be held on Monday, July 14, in connexion with the National Council for Maternity and Child Welfare. The final meeting of the committee which has been making arrangements was held at the Mansion House yesterday, LADY ERLEIGH presiding, when LADY GALWAY said that the council, which was founded some years ago, acted as a central exchange or clearing house for the constituent societies. It is hoped that sufficient money will be raised by the sale of the emblem on Children's Day to aid all the constituent societies who help the various branches in Greater London. Depôt holders will present the proceeds of the collection in the form of purses to Lady Patricia Ramsay at a garden party to be held at St. James's Palace on Thursday, July 17.

MOTOR-VEHICLES IN GREAT BRITAIN

A return has been issued by the Ministry of Transport giving particulars of the number of motor-vehicles registered for the first time under the Roads Act, 1920, during the month of April, 1930 [Stationery Office, price 2s. 6d.]. The number of new motor-vehicles registered was 34,324, compared with 34,602 in April, 1929. The return shows the number of each class of vehicle registered for the first time by each licensing and registration authority analysed in detail according to various taxation scales—for example: motor-cars under headings of horse-power, goods vehicles under headings of unladen weight, hackney vehicles under headings of seating capacity, &c.

SOLDIERS AND SAILORS HELP SOCIETY

DUKE OF CONNAUGHT ON EXPANDING WORK

Presiding at the Caxton Hall, Westminster, yesterday, at the annual meeting of the Soldiers and Sailors Help Society and Lord Roberts Memorial Fund and Workshops, Field-Marshal the Duke of Connaught said that in 1929 the society was able to deal with 37,000 cases. Among these were more than 3,000 men that they were able to place in employment—a considerable advance on the 2,700 of the preceding year. In view of the very congested state of the labour market, this was encouraging. Monetary assistance amounting to over £28,000 was given in 13,829 cases of distress, and in addition a considerable number were helped by grants of clothing. They were also able to arrange convalescent treatment for 384 men, in connexion with which they were much indebted to Lord Midleton and the trustees of Smith's Charity.

The society (he continued) still paid grants to veterans of the Crimean, the Indian Mutiny, and the China campaigns, but one died during the year, and only six remained of those originally in receipt of allowances. Further assistance, both in money and part-worn clothing, was necessary to enable the society to carry on, and he was the more encouraged to appeal for these to be sent to 122, Brompton-road, S.W.3, because, as the result of an appeal he made through the Press at the last annual meeting, the trustees of an estate sent £500, in addition to which many parcels were received.

RECORD SALES

Referring to the Lord Roberts Memorial Workshops, the Duke said that many improvements had been carried out in these factories, and, so far as financial resources allowed, modern equipment and machinery had been introduced where necessary, with the result that the workshops were in a sounder position than before. During the year sales amounted to £120,000, which was a record, being £6,000 in excess of the sales in the previous year, and nearly 80 per cent. more than in 1922. That was evidence that the workshops were becoming more generally known among retail traders, and were maintaining a reputation for good quality material and high-class workmanship. He was glad to say they were able to pay wages amounting to £53,000, a sum appreciably greater than that in the previous year. The average disability of the men, said the Duke, was 62 per cent., so that there was little hope of their obtaining work elsewhere.

The annual report, which was adopted on the motion of ADMIRAL SIR WILLIAM GOODENOUGH, seconded by GENERAL SIR ROBERT WHIGHAM, stated that subscriptions and donations amounted to £13,994. At the Lord Roberts Workshops, though the disabled men were quite unable to produce as quickly as their able-bodied competitors, working losses were only 2s. 10d. a week per employee.

LIEUTENANT-COLONEL BALFOUR GRAHAM, of Fife, pointed out that those who wished to patronize the Lord Roberts Workshops should see that they bought from the proper quarters. Two doormats were brought to his door which the vendor said had been made in the workshops at Edinburgh, but it turned out that they had not been made there.

On the proposition of COUNTESS ROBERTS, the Duke of Connaught was re-elected president and Princess Beatrice and Princess Arthur of Connaught vice-presidents.

The DUKE, in response, remarked that Lady Roberts, in the interest she took in the society, was following in the footsteps of her splendid father.

QUEEN CHARLOTTE'S HOSPITAL

FUND OPENED FOR MATERNITY RESEARCH

Princess Helena Victoria and Princess Marie Louise attended a dinner at the Savoy Hotel last night, held under the presidency of LADY HOWARD DE WALDEN, to launch an appeal for the research fund in connexion with the Queen Charlotte's Maternity Hospital.

LORD MOYNIHAN said that one of the greatest tragedies of to-day was that every woman in giving birth to a child ran exactly the same risks as her mother ran. The difficulties encountered were considerable, because no individual practitioner could study groups of cases. What must be done could be summed up in one word—research. To many people research into any particular subject meant exercising the Teutonic faculty of making easy things difficult. There was a great prejudice in the minds of many to research, but after all prejudice was only an emotional reaction to ignorance of truth.

The value of research might be gathered from one set of statistics. In the South African War 200,000 troops were engaged. There were 57,600 cases of typhoid fever and 8,022 deaths. During the last War, when millions of troops were engaged, the majority of our soldiers voluntarily accepted inoculation and there were only 7,423 cases of typhoid fever with 266 deaths. Lest that should be thought only a coincidence he might add that the French up to October, 1916, had over 100,000 cases and over 12,000 deaths.

SIR WALTER FLETCHER, secretary of the Medical Research Council, said that, while the general death rate had fallen, the maternity death rate had risen. Out of over 100 deaths in maternity 40 were caused by poison due to bacteria and 20 to some unknown change in the chemistry of the body. Those were the cases into which there must be careful research.

LADY HOWARD DE WALDEN said that Mr. Dudley Docker had given £1,000 to the fund, for which £20,000 was needed. The Medical Research Council had promised to make a grant of £1,700 a year.

The sum of £20,000 is required for establishing the research department. Those who are starting the fund have hopes that puerperal fever will yield to research like so many other diseases.

The current issue of the Churchman contains the papers read at the recent Oxford Conference of Evangelical Churchmen (in continuation of the Cheltenham Conference).

A resolution, drafted by the Anglican and Eastern Churches Association and passed by 164 ruri-decanal chapters and conferences, has been sent to the Archbishop of Canterbury expressing "conviction that the furtherance of closer relations between the Anglican and the Orthodox Churches, as part of the general work of reunion, has a claim upon the active support of Churchmen," and the hope that the Lambeth Conference will take measures "to give the rapprochement between ourselves and the Orthodox Church their encouragement and support."

Application should be made to the Belgian Embassy before July 17 for reserved seats for the solemn Te Deum, at which Cardinal Bourne will preside, in Westminster Cathedral on Monday, July 21, at 11.30 a.m., on the occasion of the centenary of Belgian independence.

The Company was incorporated on the 15th March, 1929, and carries on the business of an Investment Trust Company. The Company is precluded by its Articles of Association (set out below) from acquiring any investment involving unlimited liability, and from investing (except in British Government Securities) more than a specified part of its funds in any one security.

The Company's first financial period ended on the 31st March, 1930. The gross revenue for that period amounted to £59,848 15s. 4d., and the net revenue after providing for interest, income-tax and management expenses, to £41,043. As the capital was only available for gradual investment during the period, the revenue received to 31st March, 1930, does not represent what may be expected as the income of a normal year. In addition the revenue will be increased by the income from the investment of the proceeds of this issue of Debenture Stock.

The following is the Report of the Auditors of the Company with respect to profits and dividends paid since its incorporation:—

(a) No Investment involving unlimited liability on the Company shall be made, and

(b) the amount invested in the purchase or acquisition of any particular investment or security, shall not exceed one twentieth part of the subscribed share and debenture capital combined or one tenth part of the subscribed share capital of the Company whichever be the greater, but this restriction shall not apply to any investment carrying the obligation or guarantee of the British Government.

(c) The amount for the time being owing in respect of Borrowed Moneys is not without the sanction of the Company in General Meeting to exceed the nominal amount of the subscribed share capital, except in the case of borrowing for temporary purposes of sums not exceeding 10 per cent. at any one time outstanding of the nominal amount of the subscribed share and loan capital of the Company for the time being.

The qualification of a Director shall be the holding alone and not jointly with any other person of shares or stock of the Company of the nominal amount of £500.

The provisions regarding Management Expenses and Directors' Remuneration are as follows:—

87. For meeting the management expenses of the Company (as hereinafter defined) during every financial year the Directors shall set aside out of the income of the Company for such year such sum as they shall determine but not exceeding a sum equal to one-half of one per cent. on the first £1,000,000 of the paid up capital reserves and loan capital as appearing in the Balance Sheet at the end of such year, and to one quarter of one per cent. on all amounts in excess of £1,000,000 of the paid up capital reserves and loan capital as aforesaid, and so in proportion for any period other than a complete year for which the Company's accounts are made up; and no management expenses in excess of the sums so set aside shall be incurred by the Directors without the authority or sanction of the Company in General Meeting.

88. Out of the sum so set aside in each financial year or period the Directors shall meet and discharge all the management expenses of the Company (as hereinafter defined) during such year or period including the remuneration of the Directors who shall be entitled to receive as their remuneration for their services during such year or period any balance of the sum so set aside remaining after payment of all the other management expenses but so that the Company in General Meeting may at any time vote the Directors further remuneration for their services. Such remuneration shall be divided between the Directors in such proportions and manner as they may agree, and failing agreement equally. In addition to their remuneration the Directors shall be repaid their travelling, hotel and other expenses incurred in attending and returning from Board and General Meetings.

89. For the purposes of the foregoing Articles the expression "management expenses" shall mean and include rent of offices, rates and other ordinary office expenses, salaries of and remuneration to the Managers, Secretaries, Clerks, and other employees, Directors' ordinary remuneration, and generally all ordinary administrative expenses and outgoings of the Company, but shall not include commission or brokerage payable to the Managers or to others on purchases, sales, or changes of securities and investments or expenses of or in connection with any issue of the Company's shares or securities, postages, telegrams or cables, auditors' fees, legal expenses, income-tax or other taxes, special or additional remuneration to Directors, travelling expenses or the expenses of Directors attending and returning from meetings of the Board or General Meetings.

The Preliminary Expenses of the Company were £24,715 15s. 10d. and this amount has been written down to £20,000, at which it appears in the Balance Sheet at 31st March, 1930.

No shares or debentures have been issued otherwise than for cash.

No payment has been or will be made to any promoter.

CITY NOTES

BRAZILIAN EXCHANGE POSITION

MORE NEW ISSUES

Although the sterling value of the milreis was a little higher yesterday the market for Brazilian securities was distinctly weak. In common with most agricultural and raw material producing countries Brazil is passing through a crisis owing to the persistent steady fall in prices. The unfavourable economic situation has been reflected in the weakness of the exchange, and last week the Ministry of Finance recommended the Inspectorate-General of Banks to adopt methods for regulating dealings in exchange, while the Bank of Brazil reduced its rate rather sharply from 5 59-64d. to 5 19-32d. (the par rate is 5.89d.). This reduction in the Bank of Brazil's rate does not imply that support has been withdrawn, though it is reported that the President-Elect has advised the Government to withdraw support and to let the milreis find its true level in terms of foreign currencies. Such a policy, if adopted, would in the long run prove quite sound provided that the Government and the banks refrained from inflating credit. A fall in exchange by making imports dearer would curtail imports, while as Brazilian goods and commodities would become cheaper in terms of foreign currencies exports would be stimulated. Only by increasing exports or raising fresh foreign loans can the Brazilian exchange be assisted, but the former method is obviously the more efficacious. There was a sudden revival of interest, which in the circumstances must be described as speculative, in Australian securities. The market is short of these stocks, and as a result prices are very sensitive to demand. There has been no material change in the economic position of the country.

Another Electrical Debenture

Two issues of Debenture stock are announced to-day, and in both cases the amount offered is £1,000,000. Edmundsons' Electricity Corporation, which has an issued share capital of £2,760,000—the bulk of it in Ordinary shares—is offering £1,000,000 of Five per Cent. Debenture stock at 93½. Ten per cent. is payable on application, 33½ per cent. on allotment, and the balance in equal amounts on September 1 and November 1. A first payment of interest, amounting to £1 16s. 4d. per cent., will be made on January 1. While the company reserves power to issue additional Debenture stock ranking pari passu with the present issue, it is precluded from issuing a total amount of Debenture stock exceeding one-half of the paid-up capital at any time; but the company has the right to raise in priority to it a small amount—namely, £100,000—and it can specifically charge its assets up to that amount. The stock will be redeemed by means of an annual cumulative sinking fund of 1 per cent., the first payment to be made on December 31, 1931. Stock will be purchased at or under par, or by drawings at par. The company reserves the right, however, to redeem the stock on June 30 in any year on giving six months' notice. On the face of it this might seem to be a disadvantage to the investor, but as the stock is issued at an appreciable discount early redemption, should it take place, would materially increase the average yield. The flat yield is £5 7s. per cent., the average yield to the last day of redemption—June 30, 1967—£5 8s. per cent., while if redemption took place in five years the yield would be as high as £6 11s. per cent. The company is financially interested in 72 electricity supply undertakings, and also carries on business as electrical engineers and contractors. Profits at their present rate are sufficient to cover the service of the Debenture stock three-and-a-half times.

A New Trust's Issue

The other prospectus published to-day is of the London and Holyrood Trust, but in this case the subscription lists will not be opened until to-morrow. The company, which was formed as recently as March last year, to carry on an investment trust business, has an issued capital of £1,500,000, of which £900,000 is in Preference stock and £600,000 in Ordinary stock. It is making an issue of £1,000,000 Five per Cent. Redeemable Debenture stock at the price of 95; this stock will be known as Series "A," 1970-80. While the stock will be a "closed" series, the company reserves the right to issue debentures ranking pari passu with it provided that the total amount of debenture stock of all series does not exceed the nominal amount of the share capital at any time. There will be no sinking fund attached to the stock, but a fund to support the price of the stock in the market is to be created. Half-yearly payments of £5,000 each are to be made to the trustees beginning on July 1, 1931, until the fund reaches £25,000. Thereafter the semi-annual payment will be £5,000 or such less sum, if any, as may be required to maintain the fund at £25,000. The trustees are to use these moneys in the purchase of stock at a price not exceeding 96½. Repayable at par at latest on August 31, 1980, the stock may be repaid at 102½ on and after August 31, 1970. The life of the Trust has been much too short for its financial results to be of much interest. An investment trust depends for its success almost entirely upon the skill of its management, and it will be observed that the prospectus contains the names of some persons well-known in the investment trust business.

Results of Recent Issues

Dealings began yesterday in two new securities—the £1,000,000 of Buenos Ayres and Pacific Railway Five per Cent. (1912) Debenture stock, which was offered at 82½, and the Newcastle-upon-Tyne Electric Supply Company's £2,300,000 of Five per Cent. Consolidated Debenture stock, which was offered at 96. Underwriters of the Argentine railway issue were left with as much as 43 per cent. of the amount, investors being apparently more impressed with the heavy falling-off in earnings of the Argentine railways than with the statement made in the prospectus that in spite of the smaller receipts the final dividend was not likely to be affected. The scrip closed yesterday at 1½ discount. The subscription lists for the Newcastle company's issue were closed about an hour after they were opened, and the scrip yesterday commanded a small premium.

Forthcoming Offers

Owing to changed market conditions the majority of new issues made lately have been confined to debenture and other securities of a fixed interest-bearing character. Within the next few days, however, one or two equities will be offered to the public. Parkinson and Cowan, Limited, an amalgamation of a number of old-established businesses engaged in the manufacture of gas, water, and electricity meters, petrol pumps, &c., will issue 121,573 Seven per Cent. Cumulative Preference shares of £1 each, at 21s. per share, and 150,000 Ordinary shares of £1 each, at 25s. per share. This will raise the issued capital to £1,209,000. The present company has been in existence since 1900, and throughout that period it has paid dividends on its Ordinary capital, the average payment for the 30 years being over 8¾ per cent. For each of the past four years the distribution has been 10 per cent. Another issue to be made immediately is on behalf of Lockwood and Bradley, Limited, multiple-shop tailors. The offer to the public will consist of 200,000 Seven-and-a-Half per Cent. Cumulative Preference shares of £1 each, and 200,000 Ordinary shares of 5s. each, the price of issue in each case being par.

Grovesend Steel Report

An encouraging report from a company engaged in the heavy industries in these days is rare enough to call for comment. The Grovesend Steel and Tinplate Company, the Ordinary share capital of which, amounting to £500,000, is held by Richard Thomas and Co., obtained a larger profit for the year to March 31 last, and the dividend to be received by the controlling company has been raised from 10 per cent. to 12½ per cent., free of tax. Net profits amounted to £92,808, and after payment of the Preference dividend the balance of £76,558 represents a return of nearly 15½ per cent. on the Ordinary capital. By the appropriation of a further £5,000 from profit and loss the item Debenture issue expenses is extinguished. Including a taxation reserve the company's reserves amount to £640,000; there is a Debenture debt outstanding of £855,200. While a subsidiary of Richard Thomas and Co. the Grovesend Steel Company is itself the controller of a number of companies, its investments in subsidiary companies being £177,700 and in associated and other companies £146,440. The balance-sheet shows that current liabilities amount to £273,000, but that the floating assets largely exceed this figure, their total being £604,000.

Losses from Indian Floods

Two allied Indian tea companies, Cachar and Dooars and Bengal United, have had a very bad year owing to the combined effect of disastrous floods and a low price for their tea. Reserves have been almost entirely absorbed in meeting the losses sustained, and no dividend can be paid on the Preference capital of either company. The Bengal United suffered a loss of £33,661 on the season's working, and £36,350 of its reserve is appropriated to meet the loss on profit and loss account, while the balance of the reserve, £8,650, is written off cost of estates account owing to the damage inflicted by the floods on the gardens. In the case of Cachar and Dooars the loss on the season's working was £7,736, and the transfer from reserve to profit and loss is £10,750; this company, however, suffered the complete destruction of one of its gardens, comprising 686 acres, and this serious capital loss has been met by the further transfer of £50,000 from its reserve, this sum being written off the cost of its estates. After these deductions the reserve will stand at £9,250. These floods were of unprecedented severity, and their occurrence in a year when prices for some classes of Indian teas had fallen to a low level was peculiarly unfortunate. Both companies have good dividend records, and with sound management a recovery in tea prices should enable them to re-enter the dividend list. But the necessity for restoring depleted reserves makes a conservative dividend policy advisable for some time to come.

United States and Soviet Timber

It appears that there are many British ships among the vessels involved in the transport of timber from Russia to the United States, the importation of which has been questioned by the United States Customs on the ground that the timber was felled by convict labour. Some of the ships are known to be on time charter to the Soviet Government, and therefore any questions affecting the legality of the imports of the timber into the United States would seem to be a matter primarily between the United States and Soviet Governments. When vessels are time chartered they may be employed in any trade chosen by the charterers, subject to such limitations as may be provided for in the terms of the contract. The statement has been made that, under the existing tariff law, imports into the United States produced by convict labour have already been prohibited, but the prohibition does not seem hitherto to have been applied to imports—at any rate on a large scale. The embargo is repeated and extended in the new tariff law so as to cover both forced and convict labour and, as was suggested yesterday, the possibilities involved in the prohibition of the produce of forced labour may be far-reaching, since it would seem that it may extend to the whole of the exports of Russia. The International Shipping Conference has interested itself in the question of the present timber exports, for vessels of various nationalities are concerned, and representations are understood to have been made by the Governments of the nations to which the ships belong. Yet it would appear that the owners of the vessels are actually less concerned in a satisfactory solution of the existing difficulties than the Soviet Government, which chartered the ships to carry the cargoes.

Low Costs of Sea Transport

In his thoughtful address at Antwerp on Saturday on "The Effect of Shipping on the British Empire" Mr. Walter Runciman, M.P., gave some striking examples of the low costs of sea transport. It is generally known that goods are carried by sea at a very low cost to the owners of the goods, but it is as well sometimes to quote rates in terms that can be easily appreciated by householders, instead of in the large units which form the bases of wholesale transactions. Outward freights were, he declared, only about 3 per cent. of the selling prices of the manufactured goods which were carried; while in the homeward trades meat was brought from Argentina at four-fifths of a penny a lb.; grain from New York at a figure equivalent to only a farthing for a quarter loaf; rice was brought from Rangoon at 3-20th of a penny a lb.; and "the freight paid on the wool which made a square yard of woollen cloth would scarcely pay the price in the retail market of two single yarns of its warp or weft." The great additions to the prices of commodities imported into this country which consumers have to pay are commonly made after the produce has reached this country. From the shipping point of view the trouble for a long time has been that not only are the rates of freight extremely low, but that the demand for transport has fallen far below the supply. Shipowners can fairly claim that they have done everything practicable, by the offer of low freight rates, to encourage the movement of commodities, but their power to promote commerce by the offer of cheap transport is clearly limited.

CHASE NATIONAL BANK

A message from New York states that according to an official statement issued yesterday deposits of the Chase National Bank as at June 30 exceeded $2,065,434,000 (£413,086,800), marking the first time that the deposits of any bank in the world have exceeded the $2,000,000,000 level. Total resources on the same date, at $2,648,958,000 (£529,791,600), also constituted a record.

STOCK EXCHANGE

BRAZILIAN ISSUES WEAK

GILT-EDGED MARKET FIRM

The Stock Markets yesterday showed a little animation, though the volume of business, apart from the Gilt-Edged group, showed no great expansion. There was a renewed demand for British Funds and for trustee securities generally, even Australian stocks meeting with more inquiry, as the result of which prices made a sharp response. In the Miscellaneous market the International group was dull and a fresh reaction occurred in Cables and Wireless stocks, but discussion regarding the prospects of a change in the country's fiscal policy was understood to be accountable for rises in a number of standard British Industrial shares. An unpleasant feature of the day was a general fall in Brazilian securities. This was due to the latest reports regarding the business situation in Brazil and to fears of a lower exchange which would increase the strain imposed upon the Brazilian Government in obtaining the amount of foreign currency periodically required to meet its external obligations.

Business in the Gilt-Edged Market showed a broadening tendency, and a fairly general improvement occurred in prices. Closing quotations were not, in all cases, quite the best of the day, the market wavering a little towards the close owing to some uncertainty about the immediate future of money rates. Four per Cent. Consols, at 88⅛, and Two-and-a-Half per Cent. Consols, at 56⅛, established rises of ⅛ and ⅜ respectively. The Five per Cent. War Loan was in favour, rising ⅛ to 103 5-16, and gains of ⅛ also took place in Three-and-a-Half per Cent. Conversion (79⅛), Four-and-a-Half per Cent. Conversion (99⅛), and Victory Bonds (94⅞). The Five per Cent. Conversion Loan was unchanged at 104⅜, and Treasury Bonds were dull. India stocks met with support, the new Six per Cent. Scrip rising to 2¼ premium, and among other new scrips L.C.C. rose to 1 premium, and Port of London to 102⅛. A better inquiry was reported for Australian stocks, and with the market not too well supplied with stock prices rose sharply. Commonwealth Fives, 1945-75, were quoted 2 points higher at 89½. This movement was typical of the group as a whole.

The Home Railway market began the new Account with a rather better tone, though there was not much sign of increased business. On balance rises of about ¼ took place in the heavy stocks, while Southern Deferred gained ⅛. The Underground lines remained a good market, for which the favourable character of the traffic returns is responsible. Metropolitan advanced ⅜ to 65½, and the shares of the Underground Company made a further rise of 3d. to 24s. 6d.

In the Foreign market the outstanding development was the weakness of Brazilian bonds, due to the latest reports concerning the business situation in Brazil and the attendant fear that the milreis may have to find a new level. Dealers quoted prices lower all round; the falls in the various Federal loans ranged from 1½ to 2½, while San Paulo Seven-and-a-Half per Cent. Coffee bonds dropped 4 to 80, and the discount on the new Coffee Loan widened to 5. Peruvian stocks were dull; the Six per Cents. of 1928 gave way a point to 76 and Peruvian Corporation Preference fell ½ to 42. Among European issues, falls of ½ to 1 occurred in Portuguese bonds, Roumanian Four per Cent. Consols, and one or two Greek loans. The weakness of Brazilian securities extended to the stocks of the railways, Leopoldina falling 1½ to 40½, and San Paulo 3½ to 162½. Among Argentine rails North-Eastern rose 1 to 30, and Cordoba Central issues were again wanted, the Second Debentures rising ½ to 48½, the First Preference 1 to 36½, and the Second Preference ½ to 23½.

The Oil Market was quiet, with prices generally steady. Anglo-Persian and Burmah closed slightly easier, while small gains were shown in Shell, Eagle issues, and Trinidad Leaseholds. English stocks of rubber rose last week by more than 1,000 tons, but the market was affected by talk about the possibility of a new agreement for restriction, and with the price of the commodity 5-16d. higher at 6⅛d. per pound, share values showed a rising tendency. Rubber Trust gained 1s. 3d. to 32s. 6d., Anglo-Dutch and Allied Sumatra each put on 9d. to 27s. 3d. and 13s. respectively, and numerous other shares showed gains of small extent. The recovery in the Tea Market was continued; among shares to improve were Assam Frontier (20s. 9d.), Tea and Lands (20¼), Jhanzie (2¼), and Pabbojan (4 11-16). James Finlay were firm at 77s.

RISES IN INDUSTRIALS

The Miscellaneous market was irregular. While on the one hand the International group was heavy, on New York advices, a number of British Industrial shares were quoted higher, the movement being attributed to views as to the benefits that might accrue to these companies were protection to become the national policy. In the Iron, Steel, and Engineering group rises of 6d. to 1s. were established in Consett (7s.), Birmingham Small Arms (9s.), Dorman, Long (5s.), Hadfields (7s. 6d.), and Stewarts and Lloyds Deferred (23s. 10½d.). Among Motor shares Austin rose 2s. to 27s., the market possibly deriving a fillip from the news that the shares were being quoted on the New York Kerb, and Dennis Brothers rose 2s. 3d. to 41s. 3d. Leyland touched 74s. 4½d., but reacted to 72s. 6d. National Omnibus were easier at 26s. 6d. Further rises occurred in Wall Paper Deferred (48s. 6d.), Dunlop Rubber (12s. 10½d.), and Coats (59s. 9d.). Imperial Chemical Industries were affected by reports regarding a reassuring statement made by officials of the company to leading dealers. The Ordinary rallied to 21s. 7½d., and the Deferred to 6s. 1½d. Waring and Gillow were raised to 26s. 10½d. on what was described as a "bear squeeze." Gramophone and Graphophone were heavy, and lower prices were quoted for Nickel, Brazilian Traction, and Hydro-Electric. A reaction occurred in Cables and Wireless, the Preference falling 2½ to 77½ and the "A" 4 to 25. There was a continued demand for Brewery shares, and prices showed a fairly general rise, gains of 1s. in Watney (65s. 3d.) and 1s. 3d. in Bass (67s.), being typical. Taylor, Walker rose at one time to 36s. 9d., from which there was a partial reaction to 36s. 3d.

In the South African market a number of leading shares were quoted slightly lower, including De Beers (7½), Union Corporation, Sub Nigel, Modder East, and Consolidated Main Reef. Randfontein Estates were firm at 7s. 10½d. Rhodesian Copper shares were quiet, with a dull tendency, small declines occurring in N'Changa, Congo Border, Tanganyika, and Zambesia. Chartered fell 4½d. to 33s. 3d. Both Copper and Tin declined, and the Tin share group was easier, London Tin falling to 16s. 6d., Ipoh to 17s. 6d., and Kamunting to 6s. San Francisco Mines fell to 14s. 6d.

FORTHCOMING CAPITAL ISSUES

An issue at par of 200,000 Seven and a-Half Cumulative Participating Preference shares of £1 each, and 200,000 Ordinary shares of 5s. each, of Lockwood and Bradley, Limited, tailors and general outfitters, will be made to-morrow. The company will own 99 branches throughout London and the provinces. The Debenture capital, amounting to £250,000 in 6½ per cent. stock, has been placed at 99 per cent. with the Prudential Assurance Company.

On Thursday next an issue will be made of 121,573 Seven per Cent. Cumulative Preference shares of £1 each at 21s. per share, and 150,000 Ordinary shares of £1 each at 25s. per share in Parkinson and Cowan, Limited. The company operates, through its associated companies, 26 factories engaged in the manufacture of gas and electric domestic appliances for heating, cooking, refrigerating, &c. The business has been established for over 100 years, and since its incorporation as a public company in 1900 it has paid a dividend on its Ordinary share capital each year; these dividends have averaged over 8¾ per cent. per annum for the whole period of 30 years.

PROSPECTUS.

The Company was formed in 1897.

It now controls or is financially interested in seventy-two Electricity Supply Undertakings which are owned by Associated Companies operating under Provisional Orders and/or Special Orders confirmed by Parliament and three Electric Supply Companies operating under Special Acts of Parliament. It also carries on business as Electrical Engineers and Contractors.

The gross revenue of the Undertakings from the sale of electricity, &c., for the year 1929 was £1,123,531. The number of units sold was 80,617,312, and the consumers served were 75,507.

A certificate as to the profits of the last five years given by the Company's Auditors is printed below.

The Investments in Subsidiary and other Companies in a Local Authority Undertaking and other Undertakings, and the amounts owing from Subsidiary Companies, valued at cost or under, stood in the Books at 31st March, 1930, at	£3,296,993
from which, however, must be deducted the reserve for depreciation of	71,103
	3,225,890
to which must be added the estimated amount of cash to be provided by this issue, the value of the Trustee and other securities, Debtors and other assets, less the outstanding loans and creditors of the company at 31st March, 1930	816,680
Making total estimated value of the net assets	£4,042,570

The revenue of the Company has grown rapidly in consequence of its investments in additional undertakings and the development of the business.

On the basis of the above figures the present issue of Debenture Stock is four times covered as to Capital, and the present rate of profits is more than three-and-a-half times the amount required to provide interest and sinking fund on the Debenture Stock.

The proceeds of the present issue will be applied to the redemption of the temporary loans and for the general development of the Company's business.

MONEY MARKET

LOANS IN DEMAND

DISCOUNT RATES HIGHER

Although further amounts are repayable by the short loan market to the Bank of England to-day and to-morrow the repayment of a large sum to the central institution yesterday left the money market decidedly short of loanable funds. While at the start money for the night was obtainable at 2 per cent. the rate subsequently advanced, borrowers in the afternoon frequently finding it necessary to pay 2½ per cent. and even more for fresh accommodation. For renewing old day to day loans 2 per cent. became the general rate. A certain amount of relief to hard-pressed borrowers was afforded by some purchases of September bills at 2 9/32 per cent. In view of the prospect of continuing monetary scarcity discount rates were again advanced, 2 5/16 per cent. becoming the minimum rate at which brokers were prepared to purchase three months fine bank bills. Demand was naturally restricted by dear money, and the market reported few sales beyond some three months' maturities at 2 7-32 per cent. and at 2¼ per cent., and the special sales already mentioned. The withdrawal of gold for France continued, but the foreign exchanges were rather more favourable in tendency save for a further decline in the Swiss rate which has reached a point, indicating the possibility of gold exports to that country.

The Bank rate is 3 per cent., to which it was reduced from 3½ per cent. on May 1. The banks' deposit rate is 1 per cent., and the deposit rates of the discount houses are 1 per cent. at call and 1¼ per cent. at notice.

FOREIGN EXCHANGES

The New York exchange moved upwards and closed ⅛c. higher, at $4.86 9/16; the premium on forward dollars widened further, that on one month being about 7/32c. A sharp rise occurred in the Paris rate, which closed at 123.73f., against 123.67½f. on Saturday, and the Italian exchange continued to move in favour of London, closing 1c. higher, at 92.88½l. On the other hand, the demand for Swiss francs caused a further movement in the Zurich rate against sterling, the closing quotations being 25.05 7/8f. Spanish currency showed appreciation, the Madrid rate being finally 41.29½p., compared with 41.47½p. A feature among the South American exchanges was a sharp rise in the Buenos Aires rate to 40 7/16d. The Rio exchange was also higher, closing at 5 7/16d. Peruvian currency showed slight appreciation.

EBBW VALE STEEL REPORT

FURTHER HEAVY LOSS

The accounts of the Ebbw Vale Steel Iron and Coal Company for the year ended March 31—in the form of which changes have been made to conform to the requirements of the new Companies Act—show that the Ebbw Vale company itself sustained a net loss of £363,536, which compares with a net loss of £407,394 for 1928-29. These figures are arrived at before writing off depreciation, but after charging £270,000 for interest not paid on and provision for premium on redemption of Eight per Cent. Notes. The subsidiary companies suffered aggregate losses of £100,600, which, however, is converted into a net profit of £18,818 by crediting £119,419 for interest and redemption premium on Ebbw Vale Notes held by them which are fully provided for in the parent company's accounts. The total net loss for the year was therefore £344,717. The debit balance of £957,636 brought forward by the Ebbw Vale Company has been reduced to £665,477 by transferring reserves not now required, while a balance of the subsidiary companies' losses, amounting to £501,157, is also brought into the present accounts (the aggregate losses of the subsidiaries from the date of acquisition to March 31, 1929, not having been fully dealt with in the holding company's accounts). Thus the total debit balance to be added to the net loss for the past year is £1,166,634, making a total of £1,511,351 to be carried forward. The auditors' report is given subject to depreciation of property and investments.

Attached to the report is a statement consolidating the balance-sheets of the parent company with those of the four subsidiary companies.

The coal production of the group, at 4,411,884 tons, showed an increase of 297,704 tons compared with 1928-29, but the coke production declined by 5,575 tons to 507,785 tons. The production of pig iron fell from 364,871 tons to 249,571 tons, and of steel from 248,379 tons to 144,000 tons.

With the exception of the Abercarn steam coal pit, which was rendered idle for 30 days in consequence of lack of demand, the Ebbw Vale Company's collieries have been fully engaged during practically the whole year. The collieries of the subsidiaries have only worked intermittently owing to the acute depression in the South Wales coal trade. The iron and steel departments were fully employed during the first part of the year, but in September acute foreign competition developed and it became impossible to operate these departments without incurring further serious losses. The steel works and blast furnaces were accordingly closed down and only the sheet works remain open, working on purchased sheet bars.

For the quarter ended March 31 last the heavy losses which were accumulating during the past two years had ceased, while the collieries as a whole, in spite of the extremely depressed state of the South Wales coal trade, showed a small profit. During the past few weeks trade depression has become intensified and it has been impossible to maintain all the collieries in regular work.

The meeting will be held on July 14.

The report of Falcon Mines to September 30 last states that the properties then consisted of 203 and the farm Chess in Southern Rhodesia and the M'Tuga Mine of 90 base metal claims in Northern Rhodesia. There is no alteration in the position of these properties, but it is hoped that an opportunity will eventually occur of dealing with the M'Tuga Mine, on which some 56,000 tons of ore, averaging 7.3 per cent. copper, are in sight. Active development work is in progress on the Wanderer Mine, in which company the Falcon's interest is 47,206 shares. Meeting, July 15.

The balance of £19,539 is to be carried forward, subject to the percentage due to the directors. The crop for the year was 3,601,962lb. The sum of £141 (against £156) is placed to provident fund; the Ordinary dividend for the year is 2½ per cent. (against 10 per cent.); £500 (against £1,000) is placed to income-tax reserve; and £8,709 is carried forward. Last year £50,000 was applied in reduction of goodwill, and the whole of preliminary expenses were written off out of share premium account. Meeting, July 16.

RIO DE JANEIRO CITY IMPROVEMENTS

The directors of the Rio de Janeiro City Improvements Company have convened an extraordinary general meeting for July 29 at which resolutions will be submitted to adopt a new objects clause in the Memorandum of Association and new Articles of Association, and authorizing the distribution of £35,783, equal to 6d. per share, by way of capital bonus among the members.

The new objects clause enlarges the company's operating area to the whole of Brazil, and, among other things, empowers the company to construct and operate various works of public utility. The changes in the new Articles are for the most part of a formal nature, but they include provisions for restricting the transfer of shares to foreigners, which will ensure that control of the company will always remain in British and Brazilian hands.

The proposed distribution of £35,783 is part of the surplus realized on the sale during the last few years of certain freehold properties no longer required.

Tenders of arrear coupon certificates at and under £99 19s. 6d. per cent. were accepted in full.

NEW YORK STOCK EXCHANGE

GENERAL DECLINES

NEW YORK, July 7.—Bearish trade advices, further declines in commodity prices, and firmer money rates had a depressing effect on the Stock Exchange to-day, and although trading was not very active the predominance of sellers caused general declines, which in numerous cases brought prices down to about the low level of the year. Sales were returned at 1,478,000 shares.

A substantial accumulation of selling orders during the week-end, reflecting the failure of the market in the past week to hold rallies, coupled with the prospects of a continuance of the downward trend in the automotive and steel industries, made the opening barely steady. Sentiment was further depressed afterwards by the renewed weakness of commodities, particularly wheat and cotton, which encouraged active professional selling, notably in specialities. Steel Common gave way sharply on predictions of a material reduction in the unfilled orders, and Vanadium Corporation and Air Reduction were also freely sold, although there was a continued absence of adverse news regarding the outlook for the last-named company. Pressure subsided later in the morning, shorts being disappointed at their failure to bring about more extensive liquidation, but there was only a slight rally.

The covering movement soon subsided, and the absence of any important support prompted a renewal of professional selling pressure against industrials and various specialities, one feature being the weakness of Ingersoll-Rand, which declined 12¼ points on reports of decreasing sales of the company's products. The firmer tendency of call money, which after opening at 2 per cent. advanced to 3 per cent., and the calling in of loans by the banks to the amount of about $40,000,000, also influenced selling, and the close was easy.

COTTON on the spot closed 30 points lower at 13.30c. The futures market at the opening declined 4 to 7 points on favourable weather and crop news, further receding later owing to selling by Wall Street and Southern houses, and in sympathy with the easiness of wheat and securities. A rally followed on support from trade and local operators, but the market fell back again in the afternoon under renewed selling, values at the close registering a net loss of 17 to 31 points, with the final tone barely steady. New Orleans spot middling declined 20 points to 12.50c., and the futures market closed 21 to 23 points lower on the day. The Memphis Commercial Appeal estimates the acreage at 45,703,000, a decrease of 2.9 per cent. Messrs. Procter and Gamble estimate a decrease of 2.3 per cent., and the American Cotton Crop Service 1 per cent. decrease.

WINNIPEG, July 7.—WHEAT opened easy at a fall of ⅛c. to ⅛c. on a resumption of professional selling encouraged by the absence of export demand and the rather "bearish" foreign crop news, particularly from Germany. CHICAGO, July 7.—WHEAT opened easy at a fall of 1⅛c. to ⅛c. influenced by the absence of bullish incentives in the foreign news and the continuance of hedging pressure with weather favourable for harvesting in the South-West. The market became steadied later on less selling and "bear" covering. Although the crop in the Canadian Provinces is considered to be in fair condition, there were some unfavourable reports, particularly from Southern Saskatchewan and Alberta, where the rainfall has been insufficient. Selling pressure was renewed in the afternoon on further reports that the crop in the South-West was turning out better than expected, the weakness of the Stock market, and the continued disappointing export demand also encouraging further bearish operations. The close was easy and 2⅛c. to 2⅛c. lower. Closing prices:—July 87⅛c.; Sept., 91⅛c.; Dec., 97c.

MONTREAL STOCK EXCHANGE

DULL MARKET

MONTREAL, July 7.—The market opened dull and easy and sagged listlessly throughout the session. The easiness and abundance of money failed to stimulate support for securities, the latest returns of car loadings demonstrating that there was no improvement in business and that there was little hope of recovery in the near future. The close was heavy.

NER-SAG, LIMITED

BRANDRETH SETTLEMENT—EARLY DISTRIBUTION

An Extraordinary General Meeting of the shareholders of Ner-Sag, Limited, was held yesterday, in London, when a resolution was passed in favour of the company going into voluntary liquidation with a view to reconstruction, and it was also decided that a new company should be formed, called Ner-Sag (1930), Limited, to continue the business. A statement of affairs was presented which showed assets totalling £253,599 against liabilities of £3,569, and an issued capital of £100,000.

Sir John Biles, who occupied the chair, stated that in the company's balance-sheet last September there was a suspense account which included claims against Mr. and Mrs. Brandreth amounting to £254,000. That figure, however, did not cover all the claims which the company considered it had against Mr. and Mrs. Brandreth. On the other hand, there were claims against the company by Seatings, Limited, and Ner-Sag (Overseas), Limited, for about £109,000. As the result of litigation a settlement had been arrived at, and any liability in connexion with the £109,000 disappeared altogether. In addition, the company had received from Mr. Brandreth gilt-edged securities which had realized £127,000, and 125,000 shares in the Overseas Company, which, it was known, would produce a minimum of nearly £21,000. The new company would have an issued capital of 100,000 shares of 4s. each, and the shareholders would have one share in the new company for each share they held in the present concern. An early payment would be made to the shareholders out of the assets.

Mr. C. L. Nordon referred to the gloomy days of January, 1929, when the company's shares stood at 10s. to 12s. Now they were quoted at about 45s., and very great praise was due to the directors.

The Chairman, in answer to a question, said the distribution to the shareholders would probably not be above 44s. a share, but, in addition, they would receive shares in the new company.

A resolution was also passed voting the directors a net aggregate sum of £5,000 as additional remuneration.

COMPANY MEETINGS

CHARTERLAND AND GENERAL EXPLORATION AND FINANCE COMPANY

ANOTHER FAVOURABLE YEAR

SIR EDMUND DAVIS'S SPEECH

The Ordinary General Meeting of the Charterland and General Exploration and Finance Company, Limited, was held yesterday at the Cannon Street Hotel, Cannon-street, London, E.C.

The Secretary (Mr. A. W. Westwood) having read the notice convening the meeting and the report of the auditors,

The Chairman said:—We now present our report and accounts for the year ended May 31, 1930, and I will, in the first instance, refer briefly to the items in the balance-sheet. The capital, both authorized and issued, remains unaltered at £360,000, divided into £100,000 Cumulative Preference stock and £260,000 in Ordinary shares of 5s., all fully paid. Creditors at £19,508 are some £5,600 higher than last year, and consist principally of unclaimed dividends, £8,804, and loan from our bankers and interest thereon, £8,287. The general reserve stands at the same figure as last year—namely, £80,000.

Dividend and Bonus

Coming to the profit and loss account, we first bring in from last year £75,938, and deduct the final dividends paid this time last year and the directors' percentage of profits, together £67,331, leaving £8,607, which, added to the profit for the year of £55,206, makes a total of £63,813. Interim dividends already paid to you on account of the current year have absorbed £16,000, leaving a balance of £47,813, which we recommend should be disposed of by the payment of final dividends of 3 per cent. on the Preference stock and 10 per cent. with a cash bonus of 5 per cent. on the Ordinary shares, all less tax. This will make the total dividends for the year up to 6 per cent. on the Preference stock and—with the cash bonus—20 per cent. on the Ordinary shares, and leave to be carried forward, subject to the directors' percentage of profits, £5,813.

For each of the four years ended May 31, 1929, we have paid 30 per cent. on the Ordinary shares in dividend and cash bonus, and on each occasion, and particularly last year, I stated that circumstances in future might be adverse to the payment of so high a dividend, and therefore we hope you will share our views that the profits covered by the period of our accounts are satisfactory, and that it is a matter for congratulation, in view of the times which have been experienced for some months past, that we can submit the present satisfactory balance-sheet.

The Investments

Turning to the other side of the accounts, the debentures, shares, and interests in other companies at market prices on May 31, 1930, or directors' valuation where there was no quotation, but in no case over average cost, are entered at £462,550, some £51,600 less than last year, but, on the other hand, cash and debtors are about £29,100 up, the total assets, at £507,322, being £22,466 less than last year. I would mention that the quoted investments comprise over 99 per cent. of the whole and that the assets, entered at £507,322, were worth, at the date of the balance-sheet, after making an allowance for the creditors and Preference stock, £652,074, or 12s. 6½d. per Ordinary share.

In the profit and loss account itself the items on the debit side are, as usual, fully detailed, and are in total slightly less than last year. On the credit side, the revenue from interest and dividends, at £55,967, is some £2,100 better than last year, but there is, of course, owing to the circumstances I have already mentioned, a big drop in the shares, &c., realized, so that after provision for additional depreciation the amount carried to the credit of the profit and loss account under this heading is £12,718, against £51,548 last year.

Large Holding in Turner and Newall

We give you, as usual, the list of principal investments at the date of the report, and there is no need to comment on them beyond referring to the exchange of our holding in Rhodesian and General Asbestos Corporation, Limited, for Ordinary shares of Turner and Newall, Limited.

At previous meetings I have dealt at some length with our interest in the Rhodesian and General Asbestos Corporation, but this is now a subject which will no doubt be referred to at the ordinary general meetings of Turner and Newall, Limited, and therefore our views of this interest are covered by my statement that we look upon our large holding in Turner and Newall, Limited, as an investment which should, in course of time, show great appreciation and give us a steady and satisfactory return.

Previous to proposing the resolution dealing with the adoption of the report and accounts, I wish to refer to the losses we have suffered, as mentioned in the report, through the death of Mr. G. Temple Harris, who had been a director for a little over two years, and Lt.-Col. F. P. Lousada Lloyd, who had been a member of this board ever since the formation of the company 20 years ago. During that period the dividend which we have distributed has been an average of 15.26 per cent. per annum, and, in addition, shareholders were given a free bonus issue of one Ordinary share for two in 1925, and also a free issue of one Preference share for every three Ordinary shares in 1927.

The Resolution

I beg to move: "That the accounts, May 31, 1930, together with the reports of the directors and auditors thereon, submitted to this meeting, be and the same are hereby received and adopted; and that a final dividend at the rate of 3 per cent., less income-tax, on the Preference stock (making a total dividend for the year of 6 per cent.), and a final dividend at the rate of 10 per cent. and a cash bonus of 5 per cent., both less income-tax, on the Ordinary shares (making a total dividend and cash bonus for the year of 20 per cent.) be and are hereby declared payable on July 10, 1930, to all members on the registers on June 28, 1930, and to holders of Coupon No. 26."

Mr. J. E. H. Lomas (one of the managing directors) seconded the resolution, and it was carried unanimously.

The retiring director, Mr. A. J. Wood, was re-elected; the auditors, Messrs. Deloitte, Plender, Griffiths and Co., were reappointed; and the proceedings then terminated.

CLARK'S BREAD COMPANY

CONTINUED PROGRESS

SIR A. JAMES HAWKEY ON THE TRADING RESULTS

The Thirty-seventh Ordinary General Meeting of Clark's Bread Company, Limited, was held yesterday at 132, King's-road, Brighton.

Sir A. James Hawkey, J.P. (the chairman), moved the adoption of the report and accounts, and in the course of his address said:—The accounts now submitted cover 12 months' trading, and are therefore somewhat difficult of comparison with those before you at the last annual meeting, which covered a period of 15 months. The net trading profit for the year ended March 29 last was £24,144 8s. 6d., and after deducting debenture interest, depreciation, and directors' remuneration the net balance is £15,813 2s. 3d., in comparison with £16,418 6s. 7d. for the 15 months ended March 31, 1929. I think you will agree with me that we may well regard this as an eminently satisfactory result. We propose to pay a final dividend of 7½ per cent., less tax, making with the interim dividend already paid a total dividend of 15 per cent., less tax, for the year, and to capitalize the sum of £5,500 and apply it in payment in full for shares by way of bonus to be distributed among the shareholders in the proportion of one share for every 10 shares held. To make provision for the issue of the bonus shares it will be necessary to increase the authorized capital of the company, and at a later stage in the meeting a resolution will be moved increasing the share capital by £20,000 divided into 40,000 Ordinary shares of 10s. each. The board has no intention of issuing the balance of the shares in the immediate future, but in view of possible developments of the business the directors considered it wise to make provision in excess of the actual amount required for the bonus.

Increasing Business

The business, both at the depôts and the bakery, is increasing. The present confectionery bakehouse, although erected since the War, has reached the limit of production, and at times we are only able to cope with our sales by working two shifts. It is therefore evident that at an early date we shall be confronted with the necessity of extending our present buildings upon the land owned by the company.

You will be glad to learn that the number of customers served daily on the rounds by the company has increased by 13 per cent. during the past year. In July last we opened a branch in Worthing, and it is doing exceedingly well. Another new branch was opened in Shoreham in March, and the results have far exceeded our anticipations. The board fully intend to extend the activities of your company in the future.

We may legitimately claim that our business has a deservedly high reputation for the quality of its products and the service it renders, and we should welcome the cooperation of our shareholders who reside in Brighton, Hove, and the contiguous districts in recommending the firm to the favourable consideration of their friends.

The Government and Night Baking

You are no doubt aware that during the year the Government proposed to introduce a Bill to prohibit night baking. Naturally, your board, and I may say the trade throughout the United Kingdom, viewed any such proposal with grave misgiving. As I have said elsewhere, I cannot conceive a more inopportune time for such an interference with the established practice of the trade. We are of the opinion that the prohibition of night baking, so long as the public have the desire to be furnished with fresh bread every morning, is all but impossible. The Master Bakers are convinced that in any event (if night baking is abolished) the immediate and permanent effects will be an increase in the cost of bread, with no commensurate advantage to the operative bakers and others engaged in the trade.

No doubt you would appreciate some indication of the future development of our business. In spite of the adverse conditions with which we are confronted and the deplorable weather experienced during the Easter holiday, our trade has continued to increase since the close of the financial year, and I feel reasonably assured that when we next meet we shall again be in a position to congratulate ourselves upon a year of successful achievement.

The resolution was seconded by Mr. A. J. Clark and unanimously agreed to.

Special resolutions approving the proposed increase of capital and the bonus share issue were also carried unanimously.

THE AMALGAMATED DENTAL COMPANY

BUSINESS MAINTAINED AT A SATISFACTORY LEVEL

The Twenty-fifth Annual General Meeting of The Amalgamated Dental Company, Limited (formerly Claudius Ash, Sons and Co., Limited, and De Trey and Co., Limited) was held yesterday at the Holborn Restaurant, High Holborn, London.

Mr. E. Russell Polden (chairman of the company), in moving the adoption of the report and accounts, said that general trade conditions in the home market during 1929 showed, for the most part, little or no improvement over the preceding year, and depression had been experienced in some European countries and Australia, which undoubtedly had had its reflection in the company's business. Having regard to all the circumstances, the directors felt that the results proved that, by the strenuous efforts made in all branches of the business, they had maintained their position. There was an available profit of £212,649, which compared with £215,307 in the previous year, and, after transferring £20,000 to general reserve, the directors recommended dividends similar to those paid for 1928—namely, the full 8 per cent., less tax, on the Preferred Ordinary shares and 3d. per share, free of tax, on the Deferred Ordinary shares, which, having regard to the income-tax being now 4s. 6d. in the £, would be at the rate of 6.46 per cent. gross, as compared with 6¼ per cent. a year ago.

Importance of Dental Health

There was unquestionably a certain satisfaction to be derived from the steady and progressive awakening of the public mind to the importance of dental health. The company employed in all its departments the best available brains in research and technical work, and confined its activities solely to the production and distribution of materials and equipment of the highest grade. The dental profession generally was extremely jealous in its regard for the quality of the materials they used, and it might fairly be said that they regarded high-grade materials in a sense as their collaborators. The administrators of the various schemes for the care of dental patients made distinct specifications in regard to this important question of quality, so that the professional man in charge of the work was safeguarded, as was also the public, and there was accordingly reason to believe that the general advance towards better health should react in a favourable manner in the company's interests.

The company dealt in commodities essential to the practice of a profession the importance of which had begun more popularly to be appreciated in regard to general health. Health considerations were vital factors and could not be entirely neglected, even in times of severe economic stress, even if other items of personal expenditure were ruthlessly reduced. A resolution to see the dentist often proved to be a valuable safeguard against the more serious and distressing disabilities which assailed mankind in times of stress. To this extent the company might be said to be engaged in a necessity business, and the fact that their business had been maintained at a satisfactory level was in large measure due to this element of necessity and the greater public consciousness of the relationship physical well-being bore to the effort which the world called for, and was in dire need of to-day.

An Efficient and Highly Organized Service

The company's present position owed much to the consolidation brought about following amalgamation, which had resulted in an organization capable of serving the dental profession wherever they traded on the basis of efficiency which could fairly be claimed to be unsurpassed. While it was this highly organized service in the supply of first-grade materials to which a great deal of the relative success of the company might be attributed, it should not be thought that they were engaged in a non-competitive field. Competition from various sources was a factor which had to be met with unremitting energy, as also had local economic conditions, which in certain parts of the territory covered by the company were at times definite elements against

EGYPTIAN HOTELS, LTD.

MR. BAEHLER'S STATEMENT

The Thirty-third Annual General Meeting of the Egyptian Hotels, Limited, was held yesterday at 11, Ironmonger-lane, London, E.C.

Sir William B. Peat, C.V.O. (the chairman), in the course of his speech, said:—Gentlemen,—You will observe from the accounts that the profit for the year amounts to £55,144, which, in the circumstances prevailing during the past year, may be considered satisfactory. The directors recommend a dividend of 17½ per cent. on the Ordinary shares, which will absorb £43,636 and which, after payment of the Preference dividend of £5,750, will leave a balance to be carried forward of £4,568. During the year the Ordinary share capital of the company has been doubled in amount by the issue of 125,000 Ordinary shares at par to the Ordinary shareholders. The amount being paid in Ordinary dividend is equal to the amount distributed last year, but by reason of the increase of capital the rate is reduced from 35 per cent. to 17½ per cent.

The decline in profits shown is due to causes over which the company has no control. There has been a reduction in the number of visitors to Egypt as a consequence of the financial crisis which has developed in various parts of the world, and especially for that reason the cruises visiting Egypt in the spring have not been so well patronized. Our managing director, who has been visiting the United States, will take the opportunity of saying a word or two on that subject.

As a result of the expenditure in the enlargement and renovation of the Semiramis Hotel, the company now possesses a magnificent freehold asset.

At the general meeting last year reference was made to the demand for a good hotel in Cairo of a less luxurious character than that of the Shepheard's Hotel or the Semiramis Hotel, which demand it was intended to satisfy by the opening by the company of the Metropolitan Hotel. This hotel provides first-class accommodation to people of moderate means. Reference was also made to the opening of a new hotel at Fayoum, together with a small pavilion at Karoun in the interest of sportsmen. All these enterprises have been well received, and now that the expenses in connexion with their opening have been written off the results will be a normal addition to the profits of the hotels.

The development in the extension of the company's property has, of course, greatly increased the potential earning power of the whole undertaking. The management in Egypt look forward with confidence to the expansion of the revenue of the company in the future.

The whole of the hotels and property which the company controls have been maintained in first-class condition, and improvements have been effected to keep the properties and equipment of the company in line with modern development. These maintenance expenses have all been charged to profit and loss account, and it is considered that the era of great expenditure in this respect is now over.

In my opening remarks I made the observation that in the circumstances prevailing during the year the profit shown by the accounts may be considered as satisfactory. As you are well aware, the London board has no control over the actual management of the hotels in Egypt. This work is carried out by Mr. Baehler, the managing director, who is supported by a local board, and I think that Mr. Baehler and the local board must be congratulated upon producing such satisfactory results in the face of world-wide depression and reduced purchasing power, which has naturally brought about a contraction in the volume of business obtainable.

I beg to move: "That the directors' report and accounts for the year ended April 30, 1930, be received and adopted."

Luxurious Enlargement of Semiramis Hotel

Mr. Charles Baehler (chairman of the board in Cairo, and managing director), in seconding the resolution, said:—Gentlemen,—You have heard the chairman's explanation of the balance-sheet and the financial position of the company. I wish, in as brief a manner as possible, to explain to you the state of the company's business in Egypt during the past financial year.

I have little to add to the causes which, as a consequence of the world's financial crisis, have diminished the spending power, as well as the number, of the visitors to Egypt, but I am glad to say that the attraction which Egypt exerts has proved so strong that we suffered less than any other part of the world as a result of that crisis.

I recollect that last year I referred to the Semiramis Hotel, which is now complete, and may be called—in the words of one of our highly valued clients—"the finest hotel in the world." He also added, by the way, that it is the most expensive one, but our company has several hotels with 2,000 rooms in Cairo and in its immediate vicinity where visitors can find most comfortable and up-to-date accommodation at reasonable terms. Semiramis being only open from December to April, we have a very short period of profitable working.

Our other main hotels are open from October to May, and some the whole year round.

Semiramis Hotel is a magnificent freehold overlooking the Nile, and its appointments are perfect. The shareholders possess in that property a splendid asset.

Shepheards has maintained its universal reputation, and it is not too much to say that the life of Egypt is concentrated there. For many years we have expended considerable sums to maintain it in first-class condition in every respect, and it is undoubtedly a modern and up-to-date hotel, although it has a history of 80 years. No efforts are spared to maintain that reputation.

At our other hotels, the chief of which are the Continental-Savoy and the Mena House, the standard of excellence has been thoroughly maintained with success.

New Hotel in Jerusalem

The King David Hotel in Jerusalem, in which our company is interested, and whose management it will take over, is nearing completion, and I hope that this will be towards the middle of December. The hotel is situated in the very best position, overlooking the city, and will certainly fill a great want to the ever-increasing visitors to the Holy Land.

I have just been on a visit to the United States, where my reception was most cordial and the hospitality overwhelming, not only from my own colleagues, but from the public generally. It is amazing to find what a great reputation Shepheards enjoys, so much so that I came to be called "Mr. Shepheard." I was delighted to get the impression that the number of American visitors during the coming season is likely to be well maintained, and I have been able to make arrangements with the tourist agencies for the numerous cruises which are coming next winter to the Mediterranean and round the world, all of which will visit Cairo.

I cannot let this opportunity pass of paying a tribute to our local board, whose constant care and devotion to the company's interests have largely contributed to the welfare and smooth running of our enterprise, including therein Mr. L. Suter, the general manager, and Mr. C. Muller, general inspector of the company.

The resolution was carried unanimously, and a cordial vote of thanks was passed to Mr. Baehler, managing director of the company.

FREIGHT MARKETS

On the BALTIC SHIPPING EXCHANGE yesterday the River Plate section maintained an improved tendency, but up to the close of 'Change no business was arranged apart from the berthing of a steamer with 6,000 tons to start for Hull at 10s. 6d. Later business at 14s. 6d. from up-river to U.K.-Cont. showed an increase of 1s. on previous rates. The Danube branch had a better tone, with 13s. 3d. to 13s. 9d. current for July shipment. The North American section remained dull, and grain chartering from other directions made little progress. A moderate business from the Mediterranean and some timber chartering from the Baltic comprised the remainder of the day's limited trade.

Fixtures included the following:—Constanza-Varna-Bourgas, Constantinople-Coutsodoctis, 6,200 tons, 10 per cent., Antwerp-Hamburg range, 10s. 3d., July-Aug. Danube, Evanghelistria, Diaoaki, 4,500 tons, 10 per cent., Antwerp or Rotterdam, 13s. 9d., July. Danube, Kosmith, 5,700 tons, 10 per cent., Antwerp or Rotterdam, 13s. 3d., July. Buenos Aires, Simonburn, 8,300 tons, berthed Hull with 6,000 tons heavy grain to start at 10s. 6d., July. Vladivostock, steamer, 2,000 tons (liner space) Rotterdam or Hamburg, 18s., Sept. Bona, steamer, 1,700 tons, Drogheda, 10s. spot. Huelva, steamer, 2,200 tons, Hamburg or Harburg, 6s. 6d., Tinto terms, July.

American futures opened unchanged to 1 point lower, with little interest pending fresh news from American markets. Some trade buying and a little Continental support appeared afterwards, and at midday values were unchanged to 1 point up. A further improvement in the early afternoon, assisted by firmer Bombay advices, was followed by a set-back, owing to discouraging opening cables from New York, the market taking a "bearish" view of the acreage estimate issued by the American Cotton Crop Service, which, at 46,605,000 acres, indicated a decrease of 1 per cent. The close was quiet at a rise of 1 point to 2 points. Liverpool closing prices:—July, 7.21; Oct., 6.98; Jan., 6.99; March, 7.07. New York 11 a.m. prices:—July, 13.32; Oct., 12.90; Jan., 13.10; March, 13.30.

WOOL

LONDON, July 7.—The Colonial Wool Merchants' Association announce that the opening dates for the wool sales to be held in London during 1931 shall be as follows:—First series, January 20; second series, March 10; third series, April 28; fourth series, July 7; fifth series, September 15; and the sixth series, November 24.

BRADFORD, July 7.—The tone in this market is no better. In all departments the turnover is very limited, and there is no prospect of any improvement until the summer holiday period is about over and orders begin to come to hand for goods for next spring. The loss of business during the prolonged strike is now keenly felt. The ordinary operatives are now less well employed, having completed the urgent orders that waited their return to work. While the continued absence of a large number of weaving overlookers does not inconvenience some firms who are able to produce sufficient goods to cover present requirements, the making of partially manufactured materials into stock is checked because there is little faith in the prices recently paid in Australia for raw material. Indeed, the movement of prices for tops and yarns in this market is still downward, although they are relatively cheaper than wool. At the series of wool sales which opens in London to-morrow it is expected that there will be a marked decline of prices unless there is very active support by Continental buyers. Prices of tops nominally are about as follows:—64's, warp, 28d.; average, 27d.; 56's, 21d.; 50's, 17½d.; 40's, prepared, 15d.

METALS AND MINERALS

LONDON, July 7.—Copper.—The standard market opened quiet and easier with September sold at £48. American week-end advices were disappointing, as during the week there were renewed offerings from outside quarters at cheaper rates for domestic spot delivery. The demand here improved slightly at the reduced level of values, but the close was dull with cash 8s. 9d. and three months 5s. lower. Sales, 600 tons; cash at £48 17s. 6d. to £48 15s.; July, £48 15s. to £48 10s.; Aug., £48 10s.; Sept., £48 to £47 17s. 6d. to £48; three months, £48 to £47 17s. 6d. to £48. Settlement price, £48 15s. In the afternoon Sept. sold at £47 17s. 6d. to £48, and three months at £47 15s. Refined descriptions remained quietly steady; electrolytic was quoted £54 10s. to £56 10s., and wire bars £56 10s. Stocks of refined copper in warehouse were 62 tons smaller on the week at 1,855 tons and stocks of rough copper 204 tons lighter at 4,907 tons.

Tin.—Eastern advices gave 225 tons sold on Saturday at £137 10s., and 175 tons to-day at £137 15s., c.i.f., the last sale showing a fall of 15s. from Friday. The opening here was somewhat steadier, there being a fair inquiry for three months, which sold at £137 10s. Following this initial business, conditions remained dull throughout and the close was barely steady at a loss of 11s. 3d. for both cash, 8s. 9d. for three months. HURCOMBS, PICCADILLY, W.1

On July 5th my business took me motoring Oxford way and three calls in that city were of special interest. Those familiar with Dr. Johnson's Letters and Memoirs will recall the coterie of friends—viz., Dr. Johnson, Sir Joshua Reynolds, and everybody who was anybody, used to meet at Mrs. Thrale's hospitable house at Streatham. She was a beautiful and charming woman, who lived to a ripe old age—a matchmaker, and actually took a keen interest in bringing about the elopement of her niece, Frances Plumbe, who was only 15, with Mr. Rice, a great-great-grandfather of a lady on whom I called. There were 13 children of the marriage and Mrs. Rice (née Plumbe) died at the age of 34. There are over 30 letters from Mrs. Thrale, two or three from Mr. Thrale, one from Dr. Johnson concerning this romantic elopement. The following is a fair sample:—" If Fanny does not dine with the High Sheriff herself—Mrs. Thrale hopes she may see her on Fryday: she will meet many people she will like, and many more will like her; Mrs. Thrale will beg her husband's leave when they see each other at Croydon to-day—best respects to Mr. and Mrs. Rice. If there is to be a ball o' Fryday Mrs. Thrale will not think of breaking in on her niece's amusements, but if nothing better is to be done, why not dine here?—Streatham 11 August." This interesting collection of many such letters of Mrs. Thrale's will be sold about July 21st, and a beautiful Queen Anne Bureau said to have belonged to Mrs. Thrale will also be sold about the same time.

At another call I brought away four volumes (in all) of a few hundreds of letters from eminent men and women such as Lewis Carroll, the late Archbishop of Canterbury, Cardinal Manning, Past and Present Poet Laureates, Charles Dickens, including a cheque on Coutts and Co. for £150 in Sept., 1865, Newbolt, the author of " When the One Great Scorer Comes," women writers such as Charlotte Yonge, and others by Dean Stanley, his successor, Dean Bradley, very personal letters from Kings, Princes and Princesses, Politicians such as Lord Rosebery, Lord Salisbury, all the great musical people of Victorian times, also Jerome K. Jerome, one from Dean Inge, of St. Paul's, on the death of a dear one, one from Lord Fitzalan, who succeeded his father as 13th Duke of Norfolk in 1842. " 8 Stanhope St. July 4th, 1840.—My dear Doctor, Lady Fitzalan had a daughter yesterday evening at 7.30. They are both as well as possible. I thought you would like to hear. Yours sincerely, Fitzalan." These will be sold the same date as the Thrale letters.

If my memory serves me well, Mr. Thrale was a rich brewer, and I believe it was the brewery which afterwards became the property of Barclay and Perkins. I may be wrong. A week ago one of my travelling representatives put a picture in the car of a pleasant-looking gentleman painted by Gainsborough to the order of Mr. Whitbread, the founder of the famous brewery in the City of London. How curious, too, that last month I was writing of Inns. I believe Whitbreads advertise with pictures of " Inns " both winter and summer seasons. It may be that the old-established firm (1742) will, in due time, have pictures of " Autumn and Spring." A week ago I was at Netley and brought away in the car a couple of Van Goyens, which will be sold on the same day. It is said that the Sale-room Season is closing, and that there will be a good wind up for an otherwise moderate auction year. My season, however, lasts all the year round, and has done so for the last ten years. One need not be a mathematician to arrive at the conclusion that if all others close down for two or three months then the one who keeps open is bound to have a busy time. Apart from the first half of August, my sales go on as usual, and the Press may report some wonderful prices in August and September.

Truth is often stranger than Fiction. A most interesting article by Bernard Falk, " A Story with a Moral," appeared in a great London daily last Wednesday. It is about " Three Painters We All Want To-day "—Guardi, Zoffany, and Richard Wilson. One would think that the gifted writer had been reading Hurcomb. It is but a short time ago that I conducted a sale on the premises at Rochester. It seemed that this Cathedral City was celebrating a gala or a fête day, so numerous were the cars from London, &c., making for my sale. I sold an insignificant Guardi for several hundreds of pounds for which the owner only expected a few pounds. A Zoffany I recently sold at Piccadilly for £3,000. Richard Wilson, poor beggar, who lived in one room in Tottenham-court-road, had to borrow £10 to take himself home to Wales to die. What a joy it would have been for him to have seen me sell one of his pictures for a few hundred pounds, especially after it had failed to sell some years ago at a well-known auction room for £17 17s.

Coming down in the train to Piccadilly Friday morning I noticed on the front page of a daily newspaper, which was being read by a passenger opposite, a headline dominating all other matter: " WALL STREET'S BLOW TO EUROPE."

This gives me the opportunity of repeating what I have tried to explain during the last few weeks—that I strongly advise readers who possess treasures similar to those which realise such enormous prices at Piccadilly to ask me to call on them or come here and discuss prices while they are still high. Once again, let me say that my season lasts all the year round, and whether it is the month of August or any other month, prices will be maintained because of the competition I am able to command.

During August and September every buyer comes to the sales being under the impression that he will secure bargains because all the others will be on holiday. Everyone thinks the same, and consequently a huge crowd turns up.
